FOREWORD

Public Law 95-473, an Act to "revise, codify and enact without substantive change the Interstate Commerce Act," was signed by President Carter on October 17, 1978. (92 Stat. 1337). The new law constitutes a substantial revision and reorganization of the laws administered by the Interstate Commerce Commission. It repeals the Interstate Commerce Act (49 U.S.C. §1 et seq., §301 et seq., §901 et seq., and §1001 et seq.) and certain related statutes. These laws have now been replaced by a new subititle IV of title 49 of the United States Code, 49 U.S.C. §10101 through §11916.

This issue of the Advance Bulletin reflects Commission cases annotated under the new codification Cross reference tables from the old Interstate Commerce Act to the new codification will be found in Volume II of the Advance Bulletin beginning on page 1323.

The Advance Bulletin supplements the Commission's bound volumes of Interstate Commerce Acts Annotated. This issue is Number 4 of Volume III. All of the annotations in Volume II will appear in the bound volume 23 of the Interstate Commerce Acts Annotated. Volume 23 is now closed with annotations under the old Interstate Commerce Act now repealed by P. L. 95-473. Volume 24 will reflect annotations under the new revision (Subtitle IV of Title 49 United States Code).

A number of Bulletins will constitute a volume; and the pages will be numbered consecutively within each volume rather than within individual Bulletins. To facilitate the location of subject headings, the Table of Contents of each Bulletin may ultimately be removed to form a cumulative table for the volume. The Bulletin is published quarterly.

Members of the public, attorneys and practitioners, the I.C.C. staff may consult the consolidated file from which the Bulletin is compiled in Room 3378 of the I.C.C. Building For cases which appear in the Bulletin only as reconsidered or appealed, prior citations and annotations may be obtained by consulting the consolidated file or by calling Mr. John F. McMorrow or Mr. Robert A. Emery, (202-275-7143).

Where a Bulletin case is marked with an asterisk (*), its history may be found in the Table of Cases at the back of the Bulletin.

The Advance Bulletin is prepared in the Annotations Unit under the direction of Mr. Jack R. Long, Chief, Reference Services Branch, Section of Applications Evaluation and Authorities, Office of Proceedings, Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C. 20423. Comments and suggestions regarding improvement of the format of the Bulletin will be welcomed, and may be made in writing or by calling (202-275-7221).

TITLE 49

SUBTITLE IV---INTERSTATE COMMERCE

§10101. TRANSPORTATION POLICY

1. Recodification of the Act.--While language of §13(5) as enacted was somewhat ambiguous, recodification of Act, while making no substantive changes, clarifies provisions of section, now appearing as §11501.--Carolina, C. & O. Ry. v. I.C.C., 593 F.2d 1305 (1310-1)*.

Codifying statute (P.L. 95-473) and its legislative history make plain that Congress intended no substantive change in any provision of Act.--Id., p. 1310.

5. National transportation policy, in general.--National transportation policy [now §10101] constitutes substantive law to be implemented by Commission.--Winnebago Farmers Elevator Co. v. Chicago & N.W., 354 I.C.C. 859 (869).

Adequate transportation system: Because power to enforce duty of adequate service is imperative to Commission's ultimate purposes and responsibilities, Commission has jurisdiction to enforce §1(4) [now §11101], this being made apparent by addition of national transportation policy [now §10101] mandate to promote adequate service.--Winnebago Farmers Elevator Co. v. Chicago & N.W., 354 I.C.C. 859(868-9).

§10102(3). CAR SERVICE DEFINED

1. In general.--Rule of 242 US 208 was not intended to apply to all actions taken by Commission to enforce §1(4) [now §11101] but only to those requiring carrier to obtain special equipment to fulfill its duty under Act, and this rule was nullified by enactment of §§1(10) and (11) [now §§10102 and 11121] by Transportation Act of 1920.--Winnebago Farmers Elevator Co. v. Chicago & N.W., 354 I.C.C. 859 (866-7).

While "transportation" is broadly defined term, "car service" relates only to use to which vehicles of transportation are put, not transportation service rendered by means of them.--Id., pp.871-2.

§10102(4). DEFINITIONS--COMMON CARRIER

88. Shippers.--Carrier cannot function as shipper itself and purchase transportation to final destination with its own funds, since to do that it would have to be either freight forwarder or authorized carrier holding authority to perform entire surface carriage operation, while choosing for its own convenience to purchase transportation from another authorized carrier for part of operation.--A. C. Enterprises, Inc., Invest. and Revoc., 126 M.C.C. 562 (569).

§10102(12). DEFINITIONS--MOTOR CONTRACT CARRIER

5. Contract carrier defined.--Proposed service qualifies as contract carriage under §203(a)(15) [now §10102] when applicant will serve one shipper and will assign equipment to shipper's exclusive use.--White Contract Carrier Application, 126 M.C.C. 852 (856).

Service to six shipprs constitutes contract carriage under §203(b)(15) [now §10102].--Charter Exp., Inc., Ext.--Truck and Trailer Parts, 126 M.C.C. 671 (676).

§10102(13). MOTOR PRIVATE CARRIER DEFINED

1. In general.--Under Act, shipper has absolute right to transport its goods in private carriage if it so chooses; there is no way that Commission can compel shipper to utilize for-hire carrier, whether common or contract, for any or all of its transportation needs.--Charter Exp., Inc., Ext.--Truck and Trailer Parts, 126 M.C.C. 671 (678).

§10102(23). DEFINITIONS--TRANSPORTATION

56. Delivery.--Transportation includes delivery; thus, railroad can charge neither less than published line-haul rate for delivery of freight, nor more than published line-haul rate for delivery of empty cars at sidetrack for loading.--Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. B. I. Holsher and Co., 466 F.Supp. 885 (894).

81. Tracks.--While "car service" relates only to use to which vehicles of transportation are put, not transportation service rendered by means of them, "transportation" is broadly defined by §1(3) [now §10102], and includes not only transportation services provided and vehicles used but also all instrumentalities and facilities, such as tracks; thus, under §1(4) [now §11101], Commission has power to order defendant to upgrade line serving complainant shipper.--Winnebago Elevator Co. v. Chicago & N.W., 354 I.C.C. 859 (871-2).

CHAPTER 103--INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

§10306. CONDUCT OF PROCEEDINGS

15. Equity powers of Commission.--Section 17(3) [now §10306] instructs Commission to conduct its proceedings "in such manner as will best conduce...to the ends of justice"; Commission itself does not doubt its right and duty to consider equities in evaluating cases affecting or involving national transportation policy; and if Congress intended to exclude all equitable considerations from such cases, there is no reason to believe that it intended this prohibition to apply only to Commission and not courts, which must also respond to will of Congress in this regard.--Chemical Leaman Tank Lines, Inc. v. I.C.C., 593 F.2d 241 (245)*.

If it is accepted that equity principles and equitable defenses may be relied upon in deciding Interstate Commerce Act cases, in case where three-judge court, possessing undoubted equity powers, left open possibility of consideration of equitable claims on remand, Commission's development of record on possible equitable defenses and determination of case on equitable grounds was justified; thus, when Commission issued certificate which contained no prohibition against tacking, and competing carrier exhibited inexcusable delay in protecting its rights by challenging lack of tacking restriction, Commission's determination that such inaction, when coupled with other facts, constituted equitable defense of laches and that alteration of certificate would be harsh and inequitable, is affirmed.--Id., p.246.

SUBCHAPTER II--ADMINISTRATIVE

Powers and Duties

15. In general.--Section 12 [now §10321], which authorizes and requires Commission to execute and enforce provisions of the Act, furnishes Commission with ample authority to enforce §1(4) [now §11101] duty to provide adequate service, despite lack of express delegation of power; because Commission has powers reasonably ancillary to effective performance of its responsibilities (392 US 157, 390 US 747), and power to enforce duty of adequate service is imperative to Commission's ultimate purposes and responsibilities, Commission has jurisdiction to enforce §1(4).---Winnebago Farmers Elevator Co. v. Chicago & N.W., 354 I.C.C. 859 (867-8).

19. Carrier management in general.--Decision to invest in boxcars and lease them to other railroads is management business judgment, and Commission cannot find that judgment inconsistent with public interest.--Wellsville, Addison & Galeton Corp.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 247 (248)*.

§10327. COMMISSION ACTION AND APPELLATE PROCEDURE IN RAIL CARRIER PROCEEDINGS

32. Time limits.--When §17(9)(c) [now §10327] and rule 98(c) establish 20-day time limit for appeals to be filed after service of decision, but applicant's petition for reconsideration is eight days late, and applicant requests that if petition is considered late-filed it be treated as part of its reply to protestant's petition seeking review, held: since two simultaneously filed pleadings are interrelated, protestant's motion to strike is denied, petition is treated as part of motion to strike/reply.--Terminal Ry. Ala. State Docks--Operation, Mobile, AL, 354 I.C.C. 747 (748).

Statutorily prescribed time limitaiton prevails over rule developed by Commission, and procedural time limits of §17(9) [now §10327] apply to pending proceedings to extent that event triggering time limit takes place after enactment of 4R Act (P.L. 94-210); thus, where §17(9)(b) sets forth 20-day period for filing exceptions, and service of initial decision in abandonment proceeding, after enactment of §17(9), was triggering event for filing exceptions, provision of 30-day preeffectiveness period in initial decision, without more, does not constitute authorization for additional 10 days in which to file exceptions.--Chicago & E.I.R. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 789 (792).

Commission's policy, however, is to apply procedural requirements of 4R Act with leniency during period of transition, when failure to do so might preclude parties from seeking timely judicial review; and Commission may rely on §17(9)(g) to reopen proceeding, when substantially changed circumstances exist.--Id., p.792.

Letter-appeal which is late-filed and shows no certificate of service on other parties must be rejected.--Boston & Maine Corp. Reorganization--Tender Offer, 354 I.C.C. 621 (622)*.

Reopening; Rehearing; Reargument; or Reconsideration

50. Substantially changed circumstances.--In abandonment proceeding, merger of applicant into another railroad after hearing constitutes substantially changed circumstances justifying reopening of proceeding under §17(9)(g) [now §10327].--Chicago & E.I.R. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 789 (792).

54. General transportation importance.--Issue of imposition of employee protective conditions in entire line abandonment is issue of general transportation importance; proceeding reopened.--Wellsville, Addison & Galeton R. Corp.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 744 (745)*.

60. Matters considered.--On appeal from review board decision to Division 2, when no specific arguments were addressed to board's nonimposition of employee protective condition on abandonment, it was error to reverse board's findings on this issue.--Wellsville, Addison & Galeton R. Corp.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 744 (745)*.

§10328. INTERVENTION

15. Employees.--When union argues that §17(12) [now §10328], which permits employee representatives to intervene in any proceeding arising under the Act which may affect employees, gives it absolute right to participate in proceeding, but Commission finds that transaction in question is beyond its jurisdiction under §1(18)(d) [now §10907], Commission does not reach this issue.--Terminal Ry. Ala. State Docks--Operation, Mobile, AL, 354 I.C.C. 747 (748).

CHAPTER 105---JURISDICTION

§10501(a)(2). GENERAL JURISDICTION--WHERE TRANSPORTATION TAKES PLACE

Interstate Commerce

1. Interstate commerce defined.--Essential character of any type of commerce, be it interstate, foreign, or intrastate, is governed by fixed and persisting transportation intent of shipper at time of shipment, and such character is retained throughout movement in absence of interruption of continuity thereof; and where warehouse serves only as temporary storage to permit orderly and convenient transfer of goods from one form of transportation to another in course of carrying out what is intended as continuous movement to destination, continuity of movement is not broken.--Rogers Transfer, Inc., Declaratory Order, 126 M.C.C. 448 (453-4).

SUBCHAPTER II--MOTOR CARRIER TRANSPORTATION

§10523. EXEMPT MOTOR VEHICLE TRANSPORTATION IN TERMINAL AREAS

5. In general.--Implied authority to serve all points within terminal area of municipality or unincorporated community attaches only to operating rights specifically naming point; when authority granted merely authorizes service at points within defined territory, there is no implied authority to operate outside that territory.--A. C. Enterprises, Inc., Invest. and Revoc., 126 M.C.C. 562 (565).

Authority to serve airport located in or near municipality does not confer authority to serve motor carrier terminal area at that municipality; motor carriers have terminal areas only at incorporated municipalities and unincorporated communities, and airports are neither.--Id., p.658.

§10526. MISCELLANEOUS MOTOR CARRIER TRANSPORTATION EXEMPTIONS

35. Taxicab operation.--Bona fide taxicab service, excluded from regulation by §203(b)(2) [now §10526], involves transportation of passengers and their baggage in local operations; connecting-carrier line-haul transportation of ordinary air-motor cargo is not exempt.--A. C. Enterprises, Inc., Invest. and Revoc., 126 M.C.C. 562 (568-9).

40. Transportation incidental to aircraft transportation.--Air exempt zone based on §203(b)(7a) [now §10526] applies only to entry to airport for delivery of essentially local pickups to air carrier and leaving airport with shipments for essentially local delivery to consignees, and any movement other than for those purposes in reliance on exemption is unlawful; thus, carrier cannot tack certificate with air exempt zone.--A. C. Enterprises, Inc., Invest. and Revoc., 126 M.C.C. 562 (565-6); and even if air carrier or airfreight forwarder had complete control over goods on through bill of lading, service performed by such tacking would still be unlawful, and this is true when air carrier or forwarder has authority to serve airport but chooses instead for reasons not involving emergencies to terminate air carriage segment of operation at earlier point and use surface transportation to airport; carrier is aware that when it receives merchandise under its certificated authority, air portion of movement has ended, and if no emergency situation is involved, when respondent "tacks" zone exemption to authority, continuous motor-air movement has ended, and tacking operations are clearly unlawful.--Id., pp.566-7.

Under air exemption, goods must, inter alia, be under through bill of lading covering, in addition to line-haul movement by air, collection, delivery, or transfer service performed by motor carrier.--Id., p.567.

When carrier is tendered air cargo by direct air carrier or airfreight forwarder not holding appropriate air carriage authority to serve airport used, carrier's operations would not be affected when it uses its own separate surface carriage authority; but when carrier relies on incidential-to-air exemption, it is in effect operating for specific air carrier involved on traffic moving under authority, control, and tariffs of air carrier, and it cannot properly handle such shipments if it knows or reasonably should know that delivery point is not within air carrier's terminal area by virtue of tariff published by air carrier. --Id., pp.569-70.

Exempt zone of Chicago O'Hare Airport, as it relates to transportation of passengers who have had or will have immediately prior or subsequent movement by air pursuant to 49 CFR 1047.45, individually determined to include northern Indiana points from which subtantial volume of passengers utilize airport.--Exempt Zone (Passengers)--Chicago, IL O'Hare, 126 M.C.C. 332 (333)*.

60. Commercial zones.--Carrier with authority to serve defined territory does not hold implied authority to serve city or town in contiguous territory merely because that city or town falls within commercial zone of point within its authorized service limits; carrier would hold such authority only if its certificate authorized service at point either by specifically naming it or by including it within some other type of description having specific authorization features, e.g., "points on and south of" named highway or other boundary.--A. C. Enterprises, Inc., Invest. and Revoc., 126 M.C.C. 562 (564-5).

CHAPTER 107--RATES, TARIFFS, AND VALUATIONS

SUBCHAPTER I---GENERAL AUTHORITY

Volume of Traffic

108. As cost factor.--When Commission concluded that Rail Form A unit costs represented reasonable cost approximation for multiple-car shipments in question because of relatively small number of carloads normally handled each day, but shipper argued that alleged reduced costs of handling multiple-car shipments should be considered, held: in view of fact that most cars considered did not move in multiple-car units, Commission's rejection of multiple-car shipment adjustment was not irrational; and Commission in so holding did not improperly shift burden to shipper, since once railroads submitted evidence supporting use of unit costs, shipper could not put railroads to further proof without bringing forward some evidence that use of Rail Form A data was not reasonable.--Aluminum Co. of America v. I.C.C., 581 F.2d 1004 (1006)*.

Cost of Particular Services

124. Switching.--While reciprocal switching charges are frequently constructed without regard to actual cost of service on theory that mutually incurred costs balance out, when substantial reciprocity is absent, cost of performing service is most important factor in determining justness and reasonableness of proposed switching charge.--Increased Switching Charges at Kansas City, MO, 356 I.C.C. 887 (890).

Comparison of Rates

Similarity of Services and Circumstances

220. Comparison of rates for services under similar circumstances proper.--Comparisons of rates on different commodities can be accorded significant weight only if transportation characteristics of compared commodities are substantially similar to those of commodity at issue; thus, when coal switching is dissimilar from other switching, comparison of reciprocal switching charges on other commodities is not probative of reasonableness of proposed reciprocal switching charge on coal.--Increased Switching Charges at Kansas City, MO., 356 I.C.C. 887 (890-1).

Territories Compared

261. Rates in different territories.--To be of any probative value, compared rate must apply to territory with similar terrain and other transportation conditions affecting cost, and there must be evidence that it is rate which is actually used rather than set in vacuum; therefore, when Commission found proposed increased rates on petroleum coke within Southwestern territory and between Southwestern territory and other territories reasonable on basis of comparison with rates to adjacent Western Trunk Line territory, but compared WTL movements were made under transit arrangements but proposed movements were not, and no evidence was adduced to show that conditions in compared territories were similar and rates were set competitively, Commission failed to show adequate basis for reliance on rate comparison. Remanded.--Aluminum Co. of America v. I.C.C., 581 F.2d 1004 (1008-9)*.

Rates Based on Quantity of Traffic

520. Multiple-car rates.--Where railroad, for own operating convenience, furnishes less cars than are ordered, it cannot complain that this violates tariff; thus, shipper is entitled to otherwise applicable multiple-car rate instead of single-car or any higher rate where origin carrier is unable to furnish full unit of cars required by tariff if shipper can show (1) it was able to take advantage of lower multiple-car rate, (2) it timely ordered necessary cars from carrier, and (3) it was physically able to accept and load cars ordered, only to find railroad unable to furnish cars in sufficient number prior to commencement of demurrage on those cars placed first (see 341 ICC 647, 655).--Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. B. I. Holsher and Co., 466 F.Supp. 885 (893).

Where tariff provides that lower 10-car rate will not apply when due to shipper's disability assembly of shipment at origin requires switching of more than one cut of empty cars to shipper's facility, and tariff defines "cut" as quantity of cars delivered to consignor's track or tracks at one location at one time; railroad contends that "shipper's facility" and "track or tracks" refers to facilities owned or leased by shippers, while shippers contend that terms also include sidetracks customarily furnished to shippers by railroad; and railroad has seldom been able to supply complete 10-car unit for loading, so that it is mere sophistry for railroad to argue that tariff should be interpreted against shippers, held: terms "shipper's facility" and "track or tracks" include that section of sidetrack set aside for or customarily used by shipper, and lower 10-car rate, rather than higher 5-car rate claimed by railroad, applies. Judgment for shippers.--Id., p.893.

Line-Haul, Terminal, and Switching Services

523. Reciprocal switching.--While reciprocal switching charges are frequently constructed without regard to actual cost of service on theory that mutually incurred costs balance out, when substantial reciprocity is absent, cost of performing service is most important factor in determining justness and reasonableness of proposed switching charges; thus, when respondent provides no cost evidence, and its comparison of switching charges on coal with those on other commodities is not probative, proposed increase in reciprocal switching charges on coal in cuts of less than 50 cars found not shown just and reasonable, and proposed application of reciprocal switching charges on less-than 50 car cuts higher than those on more-than 50 car cuts found not to constitute reasonable practice.--Increased Switching Charges at Kansas City, MO, 356 I.C.C. 887 (890-1).

Percentage Increases

540. In general.--When Commission ordered that citrus fruit rates for the Long Island R. be adjusted so as to permit that line to collect 12.5 percent terminal surcharge, and rather than increasing cost to shippers ordered that surcharge be effectuated by lowering amount railroads could divide for their freight costs, in essence thereby adopting maximum of old rate structure which was lower than new citrus fruit rates adopted by all other railroads, Commission's order lacks any reasoned basis because reasoning of law judge adopted by Commission did not include discussion of surcharge, and Commission did not offer any reason for adoption of such rate; remanded.--Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. I.C.C., 588 F.2d 517 (519)*.

Transit

610. Generally.--Complainant shipper alleged that defendant railroads charged inapplicable rates on bakery and flour mill waste and on dried bakery product. Through transit rates included Ex Parte No. 281 general increases, according to complainant, were inapplicable on these shipments because they were allegedly moving for purpose of recycling, since during period covered by complaint increases were not effective on commodities moved for recycling due to injunction issued in 346 F. Supp. 189. Basic issue is whether increases were applicable to transited shipments herein when inbound shipments were for recycling but outbound shipments of dried bakery product were not for recycling. Under transit arrangement at issue assailed rates were applicable on entire movement from origins to ultimate destinations; since dried bakery product was not itself recyclable commodity, having already been recycled from waste product into one having commercial value (as animal feed), increases in Ex Parte No. 281 were applicable to through rates on dried bakery product.--International Bakerage v. Central of Ga. R. Co., 350 I.C.C. 893 (896-99).

§10702(a). AUTHORITY FOR CARRIERS TO ESTABLISH RATES, CLASSIFICATIONS, RULES, AND PRACTICES--COMMON CARRIERS

Classification of Property

78. Reasonableness, in general.--Commission is reluctant to make final disposition of classification controversies involving new products solely on basis of applicability, particularly where there is wide disparity in ratings at issue; therefore, evidence as to reasonableness as well as applicability is received.--Roadway Exp. Petition for Declaratory Order, 356 I.C.C. 50 (56).

In examining reasonableness of classification ratings, mere fact that each product in question is used as part in assembling same end product provides no basis for assumption that they share any similarity of transportation characteristics, particularly when there is no similarity with respect to density.--Id., pp.60-1.

Just and Reasonable Classification Required

81. Comparison of ratings.--Showing that assailed rating is relatively higher than those on other articles made of same material does not necessarily indicate that assailed rating is excessive; it may indicate that compared ratings are too low.--Roadway Exp. Petition for Declaratory Order, 356 I.C.C. 50 (61).

Classification Structure

131. Descriptions of commodities.--Specific provisions take precedence over general; thus, when issue is whether product referred to as "wire protector sleeves, plastic, split" is included within generic commodity description "unexpanded plastic articles, NOI" of freight classification or within description "unexpanded plastic pipe or tubing other than containers", and commodity is found to be plastic pipe or tubing, latter, more specific description applies.--Roadway Exp. Petition for Declaratory Order, 356 I.C.C. 50 (56-8); however, when that more specific description was later amended only to apply to commodities "other than flexible", that description no longer applied; thus, in absence of more specific description, general description embracing product ("unexpanded plastic articles, NOI") applied.--Id., pp.57-60.

Elements Considered in Determining Classification

135. In general.--Identity for transportation purposes is determined at time of tender for shipment, not at earlier or later time, and facts weighing heavily in making determination are producer's description of commodity for sale purposes, its value and general use, its billing, and how it is regarded in trade; use to which commodity may be put is not controlling, but is helpful in determining what commodity is.--Roadway Exp. Petition for Declaratory Order, 356 I.C.C. 50 (57).

144. Density.--In examining reasonableness of classification ratings, mere fact that each product in question is used as part in assembling same end product provides no basis for assumption that they share any similarity of transportation characteristics, particularly when products, although both made of plastic, have no similarity with respect to density, highly important element in motor freight classification.--Roadway Exp. Petition for Declaratory Order, 356 I.C.C. 50 (60-1).

Indication that variable-density ratings in question are not unreasonable is fact that they compare favorably with those approved in 44 MCC 501.--Id., p.61.

171. Use to which article put.--Identity for transportation purposes is determined at time commodity is tendered for shipment, and use to which commodity may be put is not controlling but is helpful in determining what commodity is; thus, when question is whether commodity described as "wire protector sleeves, plastic, split" is included in commodity description "unexpanded plastic pipe or tubing, or tubes other than containers" or in more general description "unexpanded plastic articles, NOI", and commodity at issue possesses all qualities normally associated with tubing except that it is slit, there is no value in stressing particular use made of product when its basic identity is clearly established by other factors, especially when this commodity may be used as tubing in several recognized ways, although it is not used to convey flowable material; thus, commodity at issue is embraced in more specific commodity description.--Roadway Exp. Petition for Declaratory Order, 356 I.C.C. 50 (57-8).

Since tariff terms must be taken in same sense in which they are generally understood and accepted commercially, and since nature of product is to be determined at time of shipment and not on basis of subsequent use, so that representations of manufacturers rather than user are primarily looked to, in determining thickness of tubing for classification purposes, Commission rejects contention that thickness should be measured by depth of corrugations, in view of common knowledge that thickness is generally expressed in terms of gauge or thickness of material; any other interpretation would require strained and unnatural construction contrary to accepted principles of tariff interpretation.--Id., pp.58-9.

174. Trade representations by manufacturer or shipper.--Identity for transportation purposes is determined at time of tender for shipment, and facts considered in making that determination include, inter alia, producer's description of commodity for sales purposes and how it is regarded in trade; thus, when question is whether commodity described as "wire protector sleeves, plastic, split" is included in commodity description "unexpanded plastic pipe or tubing, or tubes other than container" or in more general description "unexpanded plastic articles, NOI", and commodity has all qualities normally associated with tubing except that it is slit, mere slitting of tubing does not change its essential nature in view of fact that manufacturer makes no distinction between slit and unslit form, manufacturers describe it as tubing, and motor carrier groups refer to it as tubing.--Roadway Exp. Petition for Declaratory Order, 356 I.C.C. 50 (57-8); thus, it is properly embraced in more specific commodity description.--Id., p.58.

Since tariff terms must be taken in sense in which they are generally understood and accepted commercially, and since nature of product is to be determined at time of shipment and not on basis of subsequent use, so that representations of manufacturers rather than user are primarily looked to, in determining thickness of tubing for classification purposes, Commission rejects contention that thickness should be measured by depth of corrugations, in view of common knowledge that thickness is generally expressed in terms of gauge or thickness of material; any other interpretation would require strained and unnatural construction contrary to accepted principles of tariff interpretation.--Id., pp.58-9.

Specific Rules

210. Rule 10. Carload mixtures.--When commodity tariff only applies on shipments of petroleum products "as described in" four specified items of UFC, rule 10 would not bring partially refined petroleum shipments into tariff; rule cannot be invoked to obtain classification on single liquid commodity, and will not bring commodity within "described" requirements of tariff.--Quaker State Oil Refining Corp. v. B. & O. R. Co., 356 I.C.C. 668 (672)*.

219. Rule 17. Articles not classified rated by analogy.--While under rule of analogy (rule 17), involved partially refined petroleum might take same classification rating as is provided on lubricating oil in item in Uniform Freight Classification, it is not determinative of applicability of incentive rate when commodity rate tariff only applies on shipments of petroleum products "as described in" four specified items of UFC, since, when rule of analogy is necessary to obtain classification rating on commodity, it is not "described in" any item of classification; moreover, rule 17 does not apply in connection with ratings or rates published in exceptions to classification or in commodity tariffs, so it is inapplicable in present case.--Quaker State Oil Refining Corp. v. B. & O. R. Co., 356 I.C.C. 668 (672)*.

220. Rule 18. Combination articles.--When commodity rate tariff only applies on shipments of petroleum products "as described in" four specified items of UFC, rule 18 would not bring partially refined petroleum shipments into tariff; rule cannot be invoked to obtain classification on single liquid commodity, and will not bring commodity within "described" requirements of tariff.--Quaker State Oil Refining Corp. v. B. & O. R. Co., 356 I.C.C. 668 (672)*.

Penalty Charges Other Than Demurrage

421. Storage.--Where shipper assumed that it leased track on which it held privately owned or leased tank cars, but track was not included in precise terms of its lease of railroad property, and shipper had not acted prudently in storing cars on track before checking terms of lease, railroad was required by its tariff to collect demurrage and hazardous storage charges for detention of cars on that track, despite its failure for twenty years to inform shipper that shipper had not in fact leased that track from railroad.--Cities Service Oil Co. v. Soo Line R. Co., 356 I.C.C. 838 (845).

Terminal Services and Facilities

652. Delivery; generally.--In view of fact that transportation under line-haul rates includes delivery, were railroad allowed to impose lease charge for use of its sidetracks by shippers, it would be collecting more money than is permissible under its published tariff, in violation of the Act.--Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. B. I. Holsher and Co., 466 F.Supp. 885 (893).

666. Switching.--Under 241 ICC 53, 90, which defines various classes of switching, connection terminal switching is class of switching service which is performed at origin and destination terminal by carriers.--Terminal Ry. Ala. State Docks--Operation, Mobile, AL, 354 I.C.C. 747 (749).

667.--Placement of cars.--Where tariff provides that lower 10-car rates will not apply when due to shipper's disability assembly of shipment at origin requires switching of more than one cut of empty cars to shipper's facility, and tariff defines "cut" as quantity of cars delivered to consignor's track or tracks at one location at one time; railroad contends that "shipper's facility" and "track or tracks" refers to facilities owned or leased by shippers, while shippers contend that terms also include sidetracks customarily furnished to shippers by railroad; and railroad has seldom been able to supply complete 10-car unit for loading, so that it is mere sophistry for railroad to argue that tariff should be interpreted against shippers, held: terms "shipper's facility" and "track or tracks" include that section of sidetrack set aside for or customarily used by shipper, and lower 10-car rate, rather than higher 5-car rate claimed by railroad, applies. Judgment for shippers.--Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. B. I. Holsher and Co., 466 F.Supp. 885 (893).

674. --Reciprocal.--While reciprocal switching charges are frequently construced without regard to actual cost of service on theory that mutually incurred costs balance out, when substantial reciprocity is absent, cost of performing service is most important factor in determining justness and reasonableness of proposed switching charges; thus, when respondent provides no cost evidence, and its comparison of switching charges on coal with those on other commodities is not probative, proposed increase in reciprocal switching charges on coal in cuts of less than 50 cars found not shown just and reasonable, and proposed application of reciprocal switching charges on less-than 50 car cuts higher than those on more-than 50 car cuts found not to constitute reasonable practice.--Increased Switching Charges at Kansas City, MO, 356 I.C.C. 887 (890-1).

§10703. AUTHORITY FOR CARRIERS TO ESTABLISH THROUGH ROUTES

Duty to Establish Through Routes

61. In general.--While labor activity in violation of any other specific labor legislation is enjoinable despite restrictions on court's equity jurisdiction by Norris-LaGuardia Act, union activity in violation of nonlabor legislation is still protected; thus, when railroads argue that they are statutorily required to provide services to struck railroad's cars under §1(4) [now §10703], which defendant union is trying to preclude, their petition to enjoin picketing by railroad is denied.--Western Maryland R. Co. v. System Bd., 465 F.Supp. 963 (969).

Motor Carriers

200. Property carriers, generally.--If carrier has shipment that it is not authorized to handle to final destination itself, it may properly turn shipment over to carrier authorized to make delivery, and when carrier and connecting carrier have not published joint-through rates, charges to shipper or consignee are based on combination of separate rates; carrier cannot function as shipper itself and purchase transportation to final destination with its own funds, since to do that it would have to be either freight forwarder or authorized carrier holding authority to perform entire surface carriage operation, but choosing for its own convenience to purchase transportaiton from another authorized carrier for part of operation.--A. C. Enterprises, Inc., Invest. and Revoc., 126 M.C.C. 562 (569).

§10704. AUTHORITY AND CRITERIA: RATES, CLASSIFICATIONS, RULES AND PRACTICES PRESCRIBED BY INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

Nature of Commission's Function

45. In general.--When railroad effectively flagged out from increased joint rate so that filed tariff was not lawfully filed with respect to it, charges collected by it under that tariff were overcharges within meaning of §16(3)(g) [now §11705]; and fact that Commission subsequently found increased joint rates reasonable under §15(7) did not make these rates lawful as to flagging railroad, since Commission did not prescribe increases under §15(1) [now §10704].--Axinn & Sons Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Long Island R. Co., 466 F.Supp. 993 (999)*.

§10706. RATE AGREEMENTS: EXEMPTION FROM ANTITRUST LAWS

2. Construction and interpretation.--Collective formulation and publication of intrastate rates by defendant motor carrier rate bureaus found to violate §1 of Sherman Act; violation enjoined.--United States v. Southern Motor Carriers Rate Conf., 467 F.Supp. 471 (487)*.

5. Independent action; ratemaking procedure.--Section 5a [now §10706] permits railroad to exercise its right of independent action by flagging out of new rates and thereafter entitles it to hearing before new joint rates go into effect, and until such hearing is held and determination made of lawfulness of rates, railroad has right to insist on maintenance of existing joint rates; thus, when railroad flagged out from joint rate increase, increased rates, as far as that railroad is concerned, are unauthorized, and subsequent finding of reasonableness of joint rates by Commission does not convert unauthorized tariff retroactively into authorized tariff, since it is not filing of tariffs per se to which right of independent action attaches but filing of tariff without consent of all parties to proposed tariff.--Axinn & Sons Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Long Island R. Co., 466 F.Supp. 993 (995-6)*; thus, rates collected by flagging railroad under that tariff are unlawful overcharges.--Id., pp.996-7.

§10707. INVESTIGATION AND SUSPENSION OF NEW RAIL CARRIER RATES, CLASSIFICATIONS, RULES, AND PRACTICES

Procedure

35. Burden of proof, in general.--Because proposed rates in question are charged rates, §15(8) [now §10707] imposes burden of proof upon respondent railroad. --Increased Switching Charges at Kansas City, MO, 356 I.C.C. 887 (888).

40. Time limits.--When Commission is unable to complete proceeding within seven month period, it must report to Congress in accordance with §15(8) [now §10707] that duration of hearing has been extended.--Increased Switching Charges at Kansas City, MO, 356 I.C.C. 887 (888).

§10708. INVESTIGATION AND SUSPENSION OF NEW NONRAIL CARRIER RATES, CLASSIFICATIONS, RULES, AND PRACTICES

2. Breadth of investigation and suspension powers of Commission.--When railroad effectively flagged out from increased joint rate so that filed tariff was not lawfully filed with respect to it, charges collected by it under that tariff were overcharges within meaning of §16(3)(g) [now §11705]; and fact that Commission subsequently found increased joint rates reasonable under §15(7) did not make these rates lawful as to flagging railroad, since Commission did not prescribe increases under §15(1) [now §10704].--Axinn & Sons Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Long Island R. Co., 466 F.Supp. 993 (999)*.

§10709. DETERMINATION OF MARKET DOMINANCE IN RAIL CARRIER RATE PROCEEDINGS

5. Pending proceedings.--When proceeding was begun prior to enactment of P.L. 94-210 and Commission issued decision subsequent to enactment but prior to promulgation of regulation defining market dominance, on remand of decision question of market dominance will arise, and Commission should apply law as amended by P.L. 94-210.--Aluminum Co. of America v. I.C.C., 581 F.2d 1004 (1009)*.

SUBCHAPTER II--SPECIAL CIRCUMSTANCES

Released Rates and Ratings

65. In general.--While shippers are charged with notice of terms, conditions, and regulations contained in tariff schedule pertaining to carrier's liability which in turn affect rates charged carriage of goods, carrier in order properly to limit its liability must do more than merely show that it maintains appropriate tariff schedules with Commission, since carrier's arbitrary limitation of liability for full actual damages is not effective unless shipper enters into agreement limiting that liability as result of certain specified action in respect to voluntary valuation of shipper's goods; thus, carrier cannot limit liability by implication, and there must be absolute, deliberate, and well-informed choice by shipper.--Anton v. Greyhound Van Lines, Inc., 591 F.2d 103 (108).

Where retired military officer's household goods moved under government bill of lading, and at no time did either plaintiff officer or Air Force (assuming it arguendo to be plaintiff's agent) declare in writing released value of goods as required by Carmack Amendment, as matter of law defendant failed properly to limit its liability.--Id., pp.108-9.

SUBCHAPTER III---LIMITATIONS

Extension of Credit

20. Collection of delinquent charges.--Whether failure by carrier to comply with time limits prescribed by 49CFR 1322 estops carrier from collecting freight charges from shipper, conflict among lower federal and State appellate courts noted (dissent from denial of cert.).--Brown Transport Corp. v. Atcon, Inc., 439 U.S. 1014 (1015).

§10747. TRANSPORTATION SERVICES OR FACILITIES FURNISHED BY SHIPPER

Carrier's Duty to Provide Instrumentalities and Service

15. Carrier's right and duty to provide instrumentalities and service.--Railroads have not only obligation to furnish, upon reasonable demand, transportation services, facilities, and instrumentalities required by law, but conversely right to insist on shippers' use of those services carriers are willing and able to provide, this corollary right being matter of economic necessity, since otherwise railroad investments would not be sufficiently protected; under §15(13) [later §15(15); now §10747], however, railroads, at their option, may, in lieu of furnishing services or instrumentalities within their obligation, employ or permit owner of property transported to provide services and pay allowance therefor.--Bud Antle, Inc. v. United States, 593 F.2d 865 (871-2)*.

20. Allowance in lieu of performance optional with carrier.--Simply because shipper's undertaking to perform services or to furnish instrumentality is voluntary, to its advantage, or for its convenience does not necessarily excuse carrier's obligation to make allowance; proper inquiry is not whether shipper voluntarily performed transportation services but whether shipper insisted on right to perform or otherwise intervened to prevent performance by willing carrier.--Bud Antle, Inc. v. United States, 593 F.2d 865 (874)*.

Particular Allowances

62. Trailer-on-flatcar service.--When originating carriers entered into agreement with shipper for use of shipper's trailers in plan II transcontinental TOFC service, but connecting carriers refused to grant shipper similar allowance, although they accepted shipper's trailers at interchange points, and shipper's provision of trailers did not prevent connecting carriers from providing their own equipment, but rather connecting carriers voluntarily accepted trailers, held: connecting carriers' refusal to publish allowance was unreasonable practice in violation of §1, and shipper was entitled to award of reparations, despite lack of prior publication of allowances in tariff; moreover, under §§15(15) [now §10747] and 1(14) [now §11122], Commission has power to order carriers to publish allowances for future.--Bud Antler, Inc. v. United States, 593 F.2d 865 (874-6)*.

Originating carriers are not required to place their reporting marks on shipper's trailers or to collect on shipper's behalf rentals from connecting carriers.--Id., p.876.

65. Publication of allowances.--Neither terms of §15(13) [later §15(15); now §10747] nor its legislative history supports Commission's position that §15(13) operates, in absence of published allowance, to bar recovery for uncompensated services legitimately performed by shipper; if shipper permissibly performs services carrier is bound to render, but is not paid because amount and conditions of payment of such allowance have not been published, proper recourse is by complaint to Commission, and shipper may be entitled to reparations even if allowances had not been previously published in tariff.--Bud Antle, Inc. v. United States, 593 F.2d 865 (872-4)*.

Compelling carriers to publish allowance neither exceeds nor is incompatible with power granted Commission but is inherent in its prescribed functions, and power to require publication of allowance may be implied from car service power granted Commission under §1(14) [now §11122]; thus, when originating carriers entered into agreement with shipper for use of shipper's trailers in plan II transcontinental TOFC service, but connecting carriers refused to grant shipper similar allowance, although they accepted shipper's trailers at interchange points, and such refusal constituted unreasonable practice under §1, Commission has authority to order connecting carriers to publish allowance.--Id., p.876; whether Commission may fix future allowance in its order compelling publication is not decided at this time, but there is no objection to Commission offering guidelines to carriers on allowance to be set.--Id., p.876.

§10750. DEMURRAGE CHARGES

268. Private cars.--Where shipper assumed that it leased track on which it held privately owned or leased tank cars, but track was not included in precise terms of its lease of railroad property, and shipper had not acted prudently in storing cars on track before checking terms of lease, railroad was required by its tariff to collect demurrage and hazardous storage charges for detention of cars on that track, despite its failure for twenty years to inform shipper that shipper had not in fact leased that track from railroad.--Cities Service Oil Co. v. Soo Line R. Co., 356 I.C.C. 838 (845).

Cases where shipper and carrier had entered into oral lease or had neglected to renew lease distinguished, and found implicity overruled by decision in 350 ICC 777, requiring strict application of demurrage on private or leased cars, even if detained on private track of different ownership.--Id., pp. 844-5.

Because private cars are part of national car fleet and are just as important as railroad-owned cars, and failure to charge demurrage on private cars would lead to discrimination, proposal to exempt from application of demurrage rules all private cars whenever located on any private track is not reasonable.--Id., p.845.

Demurrage is applicable for detention of private cars on private track owned by same interest because of failure to comply with tariff requirements for proper identification of cars.--Id., p.845.

SUBCHAPTER IV---TARIFFS AND TRAFFIC

Principles Governing Tariff Interpretation

10. In general.--General rules of tariff interpretation are: (1) where there is no issue of fact and words are used in ordinary meaning, interpretation presents question of law; (2) tariff is no different from any contract; (3) terms must be taken in sense in which they are generally used and accepted, and tariff must be construed in accordance with meaning of words used; (4) tariff should be construed against carrier, since carrier drafted tariff, and any ambiguity or doubt should be decided in favor of shipper; (5) such ambiguity or doubt must be reasonable and not result of straining language, and there must be substantial, not merely arguable, basis to justify resolving doubt against carrier; (6) published rules relating to tariffs must have reasonable construction and should be interpreted in such way as to avoid unfair, unusual, absurd or improbable results; and (7) strict construction of tariff against carrier is not justified where such construction ignores permissible and reasonable construction which conforms to intentions of framers of tariff, avoids possible violations of law, and accords with practical application given by shippers and carriers alike.--Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. B. I. Holsher and Co., 466 F.Supp. 885 (891).

Specific provisions take precedence over general provisions, and rule of classification is that in absence of more specific description, general description embracing product is to be applied.--Roadway Exp. Petition for Declaratory Order, 356 I.C.C. 50 (56, 60).

In interpreting tariff, terms used must be taken in same sense in which they are generally understood and accepted commercially.--Id., p.58.

12. Ambiguities construed against maker.--Since railroad has duty to express its intent in tariffs in clear and plain terms so that those referring to them may readily understand their meaning, if tariffs are ambiguous, or permit of two meanings, shipper may construe them in most favorable way to himself which terms permit.--Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. B. I. Holsher and Co., 466 F.Supp. 885 (890-1).

Where tariff provides that lower 10-car rates will not apply when due to shipper's disability assembly of shipment at origin requires switching of more than one cut of empty cars to shipper's facility, and tariff defines "cut" as quantity of cars delivered to consignor's track or tracks at one location at one time; railroad contends that "shipper's facility" and "track or tracks" refers to facilities owned or leased by shippers, while shippers contend that terms also include sidetracks customarily furnished to shippers by railroad; and railroad has seldom been able to supply complete 10-car unit for loading, so that it is mere sophistry for railroad to argue that tariff should be interpreted against shippers, held: terms "shipper's facility" and "track or tracks" include that section of sidetrack set aside for or customarily used by shipper, and lower 10-car rate, rather than higher 5-car rate claimed by railroad, applies. Judgment for shippers.--Id., p.893.

15. Construction not to be strained or unnatural.--Since tariff terms must be taken in same sense in which thay are generally understood and accepted commercially, and since nature of product is to be determined at time of shipment and not on basis of subsequent use, so that representations of manufacturer rather than user are primarily looked to, in determining thickness of tubing for classification purposes, Commission rejects contention that thickness should be measured by depth of corrugations, in view of common knowledge that thickness is generally expressed in terms of gauge or thickness of material; any other interpretation would require strained and unnatural construction contrary to accepted principles of tariff interpretation.--Roadway Exp. Petition for Declaratory Order, 356 I.C.C. 50 (58-9).

Commodity Rates

53. Rates applicable to articles as commercially described.--When involved commodity is not lubricating oil, does not have characteristics of lubricating oil, is subject to further refining, and is described and considered by complainant shipper as partially refined petroleum, but when incentive commodity rate tariff applies only on shipments of petroleum products "as described in" four specified items of Uniform Freight Classification, none of which includes partially refined petroleum, incentive rate does not apply, and defendant carrier correctly applied base rate in its freight tariff.--Quaker State Oil Refining Corp. v. B. & O. R. Co., 356 I.C.C. 668 (672)*.

Observance of Published Tariff

231. Misquotation or tariff error.--Purpose underlying §217(b) [now §10761] is to prevent tariff rate discrimination, and in accordance with this policy and stringent language of the Act, properly published tariffs are held to be incorporated into any agreement between carrier and shipper; thus, shipper, as well as carrier, must be presumed to know the law and to understand that rate charged can lawfully be only that fixed by tariff, and carriers who sue to recover full tariff rate after mistakenly undercharging shipper cannot be estopped from asserting correct rate on basis of their prior representations to shipper that rate was lower.--Aero Trucking, Inc. v. Regal Tube Co., 594 F.2d 619 (621).

When employee of carrier misrepresented prior to shipment that no detention charges would be assessed to shipper, but carrier had on file with Commission tariff imposing such charges, applicable tariff was by law incorporated into contract between shipper and carrier, and since shipper is presumed to have knowledge of applicable tariff rules, shipper cannot rely on carrier's statement that no detention charges would be assessed and shipper is therefore liable to carrier for assessed detention charges.--Id., pp.621-2.

Argument, that since present case does not involve undercharges, requirement that carrier charge misquoted tariff rate is inapplicable, is rejected; §217(b) treats "compensation for transportation or for any service in connection therein" precisely the same, and when carrier waits at shipper's loading dock it performs service in connection with transportation of shipper's goods for which it must receive tariff rate; same type of discrimination present in undercharge cases is present here, since if shipper has knowledge that actual tariff is greater than that quoted by carrier, it may decide to alter its business operation in order to compensate for higher rate.--Id., pp.621-2.

When shipper asserts third party complaint against carrier's employee who misquoted rate, arguing that if shipper is liable to carrier then employee is liable to shipper, employee is granted summary judgment; shipper alleges that it was damaged by its reliance on employee's misrepresentation, but shipper is conclusively presumed to know tariff rate, and no suit can be predicated on shipper's reliance on employee's erroneous statements regarding rates.--Id., pp.622-3.

§10762. GENERAL TARIFF REQUIREMENTS

Types of Rates, Charges, Services Published

27. Joint rates.--Carrier flags out from joint rate increase, see Axinn & Sons case, N.95, infra.

Filing

95. In general.--When §6(6) [now §10762] requires tariffs to be filed in compliance with Commission's regulations, and Commission has issued such regulations in 49 CFR 1300.52(b), when railroad effectively flagged out from increased joint rate, filed increase tariff was not lawfully filed with respect to it, and charges collected by it under that tariff were overcharges within meaning of 16(3)(g) [now §11705].--Axinn & Sons Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Long Island R. Co., 466 F.Supp. 993 (996)*.

103. Acceptance of tariffs.--When railroad effectively flagged out from increased joint rate, filed increase tariff was not lawfully filed with respect to it, and charges collected by it under that tariff were overcharges within meaning of §16(3)(g) [now §11705]; fact that Commission subsequently found joint rate increase reasonable did not convert unauthorized tariff retroactively into authorized tariff.--Axinn & Sons Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Long Island R. Co., 466 F.Supp. 993 (995-6)*.

CHAPTER 109---LICENSING

SUBCHAPTER I---RAILROADS AND FERRIES

§10901. AUTHORIZING CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION OF RAILROAD LINES

Acquisition and Operation

75. In general.--Section 5(2) [now §11343 et seq.] is appropriate provision for dealing with unification of two or more regulated railroad enterprises as in case of consolidation or merger; §1(18) [now §10901] applies with acquisitions of certain kinds of trackage when just extension of one carrier operations rather than consolidation of two regulated carrier operations is involved.--Terminal Ry. Ala. State Docks--Operation, Mobile, AL, 354 I.C.C. 747 (750).

§10903. AUTHORIZING ABANDONMENT AND DISCONTINUANCE OF RAILROAD LINES AND RAIL SERVICE TRANSPORTATION

Abandonment

54. Trackage rights.--Over abandoned line, see Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. Abandonment case, n.64, infra.

59. Grounds for abandonment, in general.--Point at which abandonment is considered justified is matter of sound judgment determined by circumstances of each case, and Commission's duty is not determination of property rights of shippers or communities that may be inconvenienced or even forced out of business by abandonment, but rather to weigh present and prospective burdens imposed upon interstate commerce; however, public convenience and necessity are not determined by Commission to protect railroad but rather to protect interstate commerce from onerous burdens which may affect efficiency and ability of carrier to perform its duty to public.--Baltimore & O. R. Co. Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 798 (813-4).

General evidentiary criteria relating to downgrading of service issue are: (1) nature of service and public need shown in past for service, (2) effect of carrier's act, (3) need demonstrated by carrier to economize under implied intent test, and (4) any evidence as to specific intent deliberately to downgrade for purpose of turning what could be profitable operation into deficit operation in perfecting abandonment case; as to need to economize in (3), carrier can show, in answer to charges of deliberate downgrading: (a) whether on systemwide basis carrier is only marginally profitable or operating at deficit, (b) whether particular line is marginally profitable, operated at deficit, or would have operated at deficit were it not for deferral of maintenance and rehabilitation, and (c) whether carrier can clearly show that available funds for maintenance and rehabilitation are required for those portions of line in its system for which greater public need has been demonstrated and which offer larger profit potential for carrier, and that carrier has definite proposals for how such expenditures are made.--Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 292 (302)*.

Under these criteria, when line's deterioration took place during 15-year period it was owned by applicant operated at deficit for only last two years, evidence reflects implied intent of applicant to downgrade service on line, while facts that applicant's board of directors authorized abandonment of line within year of its acquisition, applicant informed shippers that line would be abandoned, and applicant deferred abandonment so long as operations were profitable with minimum maintenance, show that applicant deliberately downgraded service on line; application denied.--Id., pp.302-3; need to economize by carrier, to justify deferred maintenance on line, should be shown for period when line was not properly maintained and not at time after line has deteriorated.--Id., p.302.

Rail carrier's only obligation in abandonment proceeding governed by §1(18) [later §1a, now §10903 et seq.] is to establish that line proposed to be abandoned is burden on interstate commerce; if all evidence submitted by all parties demonstrates that burden outweighs local need for continuation of line, carrier is entitled to certificate permitting abandonment.--Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 121 (124).

60. Losses from operation.--Under old §1(18), applicable to abandonment applications filed before Nov. 10, 1976, savings on investment from salvage value of line are not considered by Commission in computing loss from present operations (i.e., avoidable costs); but under §1a [now §10903 et seq.] and regulations issued thereunder (49 CFR 1121.40), applicable to applications filed on or after Nov. 10, 1976, Commission in deciding merits of abandonment considers savings on investment from salvage value of line in computing avoidable costs.--Baltimore & O. R. Co. Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 798 (799).

Commission finds it difficult to accept claim that applicant deferred maintenance of line becuase in 426 US 500, 505, it indicated that it had no such deferred maintenance or delayed capital improvements; neither will Commission consider applicant's use of average normalized maintenance as cost in lieu of actual expenditures.--Id., pp.799-80.

Variable unit cost method adopted in new abandonment regulations (49 CFR 1121) is more accurate means of calculating off-branch costs than arbitrary percentage formula, and it is not essential that data, calculated under new method and presented after reopening, be comparable with data previously developed under old 50-percent allocation formula, when Commission can benefit from more reliable evidence than it previously had; since analysis of merits of abandonment application is not based on historial operations over line but on present and prospective future operations, previous data is relevant only to extent that it illustrates consistent deficits that may be expected to continue into future.--Chicago & E. I. R. Co. Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 789 (794).

While overall system profitability is one factor considered, it is not determinative, since cash drain from unprofitable lines can impair carrier's financial stability over period of years and cause erosion of service on all its lines.--Id., p.795.

Commission cannot require carrier to continue deficit operation unless (1) sufficient traffic to support line may be expected, (2) overriding public need for service exists, or (3) other factors, such as carrier's actions, militate against approval of abandonment.--Id., p.795.

When traffic over line has steadily declined, no increase is foreseeable, there is no reason to believe that line will be profitable in future, line is in poor condition, adequate alternative rail service is available, and there is no basis for assupmtion that if additional equipment were available line would generate more traffic, abandonment is authorized.--Id., pp.794-6.

When partly through railroad's egregious deferral of maintenance and concomitant poor service and partly through unusual weather and economic and transportation conditions, historic operations do not accurately reflect potential utilization of line, it is more instructive to determine costs of continued operations, ascertain usage level at which revenues equal total avoidable costs, and compare that point with range of realistic traffic potential; thus, when railroad's calculations of avoidable costs are accurate and reasonable projections from prior years' expense data, and no reasonable estimate of line's future traffic would produce revenues approaching total avoidable costs of continued operations, adverse effects on users are outweighed by detriment to public of continued operation of uneconomic and excess facilities; abandonment authorized.--Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 735 (737-40).

Commission consistently refused to consider interest on salvage value of line in determining losses incurred from operations.--Id. p.738.

Return on investment is not to be characterized as part of line's "actual loss" calculated under Commission's new abandonment regulations (49 CFR 1121.45); estimated subsidy figures constitute not loss from operations but rather amount of financial assistance projected as necessary to cover avoidable losses and subsidization expenses and provide fair return; however, Commission may consider return on value as benefit accruing to applicant on abandonment.--Id., p. 738.

Although railroad should have expended more to maintain line, fact that it did not do so does not alter real cost of rehabilitation today, or reduce burden of that cost on applicant and interstate commerce.--Id., p.740.

When applicant seeks to abandon branch because of comparatively small gross revenue from it, its little use by shippers, losses attributable to its continued operation, and adequacy of rail and motor carrier service, before abandonment may be authorized, applicant must show that losses to be sustained from continued operation of line are so large, when balanced against extent of traffic and public need for continued operation, that applicant may not justly be required to continue to bear financial loss entailed by operation, and magnitude of losses must be considered in relation to need for service and effect of losses upon carrier's ability to continue adequate and efficient service; thus, when applicant's overall financial condition is good, length of line is somewhat longer than those normally involved in proceedings of this nature, volume of business of shippers on line is increasing, some shippers are directly dependent on continued rail service, and branch is in good condition and there is no demand to rehabilitate line to handle heavier cars, application is denied; after one-year test period, applicant may file new application containing evidence concerning measures to eliminate deficits and effects on operation of branch as integral part of newly merged railroad system of which it is part.--Gulf, M. & O. R. Co. Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 422 (423-4, 430-1)*.

Protestant's contentions, that acquisition and maintenance of boxcars inflates expenses of operating line to be abandoned or that railroad's expenses are overstated, are rejected; decision to invest in boxcars and lease them to other railroads was management business judgment, and Commission cannot find that judgment inconsistent with public interest.--Wellsville, Addison & Galeton R. Corp.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 247 (248)*.

Amounts for flood damage and for loss on sale of ties are properly included as maintenance of way and structure expenses; and writeoff of obsolete parts is properly included in locomotive repairs.--Id., p.249.

Expenses of nonrecurring nature, including expenses for flood damage, loss on sale of ties, writeoff for obsolete parts of locomotives, repair of freight cars on foreign lines, and stripping and preparing cars for shipment to scrap yard, may not be claimed as avoidable expenses, since they may not be used as guide for judging future operating expenses.--Id., pp.249-50.

64. Traffic insufficient to justify existence of line.--Paramount consideration in abandonment cases has traditionally been whether expenses required for continued service on line sought to be abandoned can be justified in terms of reasonably predictable revenues; therefore, given evidence of falling freight car traffic, marginal profitability, and imminent need for sizeable expenditures to keep branch in operation, Commission's decision to allow abandonment was not irrational, especially in view of independent regional study indicating that continuation of rail service was not of major significance to region's economy. Affirmed.--Maine Dept. of Transp. v. I.C.C., 587 F.2d 541 (543)*.

Commission acted rationally in rejecting law judge's recommendation that only one-third of branch be abandoned, because potential traffic did not justify even this reduced cost of rehabilitation and would not generate sufficient revenues for railroad to recover that cost.--Id., p.543.

When traffic over line consists of seasonal agricultural supplies and grain, and applicant's refusal in certain instances to provide transit rates and unit train rates was justified in view of lack of repeated volume movements, while traffic is insufficient to generate enough income to meet costs of operating line, burden on interstate commerce outweighs inconvenience to shippers; application granted.--Baltimore & O. R. Co. Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 798 (801-2).

Because it is better business to revive losing operation than to give it up, especially in railroading in view of importance of branch lines as feeders to rest of operation, application to abandon portion of line over which shipper plans to generate substantial traffic is denied, but application to abandon other portions of line which would require substantial rehabilitation expenditure and over which another railroad wishes to operate under trackage rights agreement is granted.--Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 574 (580-1).

When prospects for increased rail traffic on line do not exist, and present traffic is inadequate to justify increased maintenance required for continued safe operation of line and expenditure required for rehabilitation of line, continued operation of line is not justified; and in view of marginal financial condition of applicant, to compel applicant to continue to operate line would only contribute to its financial difficulties. Abandonment granted.--Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 121 (125-6).

65. Safety.--While line is in poor condition and meets FRA class I standards only, applicant's estimates of rehabilitation costs are not considered as part of burden of continuing service when estimates are based on upgrading to standard permitting operations at 49 miles per hour; need to operate at that speed on low-density line is not shown.--Chicago & E.I.R. Co.--Adandonment, 354 I.C.C. 789 (794-5).

While when railroad has so extensively deferred maintenance that its line requires upgrading to meet class I standards that maintenance policy may violate common carrier duties, and even if record lacks detail necessary to find deliberate downgrading, railroad's neglect of trackage bears directly upon weight accorded past operation, data concerning past performance are simply tool to predict future level of use, and may be disregarded if nonrepresentative.--Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 735 (736).

Expenditures required for rehabilitation of line must be considered in determining whether continued operation imposes undue burden, and rehabilitation expenditure should not be made if there is not some prospect of recouping it; thus, when traffic on line is inadequate to justify increased maintenance required for compliance with FRA standards and continued safe operation of line, abandonment is allowed.--Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 121 (125).

68. Interests of community and patrons.--While argument can be made that energy crisis warrants something like heightened presumption against abandonments, it is for Congress and Commission, not courts, to fashion national transportation policy; therefore, given modest financial condition of railroad and prevailing uncertainty as to when and how energy crisis will affect railroads and regional economics, Commission was not legally bound to accept protestant's broad argument that oil crisis would cause region to become once more dependent upon railroad to meet vital transportaiton needs, as basis for denying abandonment of financially-burdensome branch line found presently to be of only slight importance to region. Abandonment affirmed.--Maine Dept. of Transp. v. I.C.C., 587 F.2d 541 (543-4)*.

When major shipper on line has alternative rail service available, and other users of line will be inconvenienced and will incur higher transportation costs to truck goods to nearby railroads, adverse effects are not of such magnitude to outweigh carriers burden when adequate alternate motor-rail transportation is available; abandonment granted.--Chicago & E.I.R. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 789 (795).

While abandonment will adversely affect some local patrons by raising shipping costs and removing market flexibility, most stations along line are within 15 paved highway miles from alternative rail station; increased transportation costs and shipper inconvenience are typical effects of abandonments and here do not outweigh detriment to public of continued operation of uneconomic and excess facilities.--Chicago & N.W. Transp. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 735 (739-40).

Grain elevators operate under severe handicap without rail service, and failure to provide cars is not jusitfication for abandonment of line; thus, where present financial straits of applicant would outweigh public's need for line's continuation if upon rendering of reasonable service line were not profitable or would not at least pay own way, but applicant has not sustained burden of showing that regardless of manner in which segment of line is operated it would still be burden upon interstate commerce, since shippers on line were rail oriented until poor service forced substantial diversion to trucks, shippers desire to move by rail if reasonable service and cars were available, and potential for rail traffic and commensurate revenues are shown by amount moved by truck, application to abandon is denied.--Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 292 (300-1)*.

When main shipper on one segment of branch has alternative service available, traffic over branch has decreased, and applicant is in poor financial condition, abandonment application as to that segment is granted.--Id., pp. 301-2.

While shippers are likely to incur inconvenience and increased transportation costs as result of abandonment, these are not sufficient to outweigh detriment to public interest of continued operations of uneconomic and excess facilities, especially where alternate means of transportation are readily available; thus, when shipper merely demonstrates preference for rail serivce rather thanreliance on rail service for successful operations, it fails to show that increased transportation costs will result in loss to operations rather than reduction in profits, and alternate means of transportation are available, abandonment is allowed.--Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 121 (125-6).

Conditions Imposed

80. In general.--When State agency expresses interest in acquiring abandoned right-of-way for nontransportation use, and property is found suitable for other public purposes, abandonment is conditioned to allow interested persons first opportunity to acquire property for public use; but since expressed interest is in nonrail use, rails and ties can be removed during negotiation period.--Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 735 (740).

Employees

91. Protective conditions.--While language of §1a(4) [now §10903] appears to require imposition of protective conditions in all abandonments, legislative history of section shows that Congress did not intend to change Commission's policy as to certificates involving total termination of service by railroad; under Commission precedent, protective conditions are not imposed in cases involving complete abandonment of operations, because it is unwarranted to require further consumption of railroad's properties for payment of employees after railroad ceases operations, but conditions are imposed where applicant has corporate parent that would benefit from abandonment and could be made responsible for cost of labor protection.--Wellsville, Addison & Galeton R. Corp.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 744 (745-6)*.

Where railroad has no corporate parent, and its small and deficit producing boxcar leasing operations are inadequate to justify imposition of protective conditions, no conditions are imposed.--Id., p.746.

§10904. FILING AND PROCEDURE FOR APPLICATIONS TO ABANDON OR DISCONTINUE

Applications

4. Consolidation.--It would be inappropriate to consolidate present proceeding for consideration with two other abandonment proceedings initiated separately by railroad, when decisions in those cases are final and need not be disturbed.--Baltimore & O. R. Co. Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 798 (799).

8. Parties.--Record must be developed on, and Commission must consider, effect of post-hearing merger on financial status of operations over line in question, since combined entity resulting from merger cannot be disregarded; thus, where after initial decision applicant was merged into MoPac, but data submitted were those of MoPac system, of which applicant was previously part, so that Commission had before it evidence as to burden on MoPac from continued operations over line, substitution of parties is mere formality, enabling certificate of abandonment to be issued in name of carrier actually owning line, and is granted.--Chicago & E.I.R. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 789 (790-1).

Investigations

28. Time limits.--Statutorily prescribed time limitation prevails over rule developed by Commission, and procedural time limits of §17(9) [now §10327] apply to pending proceedings to extent that event triggering time limit takes place after enactment of 4R Act (P.L. 94-210); thus, where §17(9)(b) sets forth 20-day period for filing exceptions, and service of initial decision in abandonment proceeding, after enactment of §17(9), was triggering event for filing exceptions, provision of 30-day preeffectiveness period in initial decision, without more, does not constitute authorization for additional 10 days in which to file exceptions.--Chicago & E.I.R. Co.--Abndonment, 354 I.C.C. 789 (792).

Commission's policy, however, is to apply procedural requirements of 4R Act with leniency during period of transition, when failure to do so might preclude parties from seeking timely judicial review; and Commission may rely on §17(9)(g) to reopen proceeding, when posthearing merger involving applicant constitutes substantially changed circumstances.--Id., p. 792.

Burden of Proof

80. In general.--While railroad bears burden of justifying abandonment, protestant bears burden of establishing viability of suggested alternatives such as partial abandonment.--Maine Dept. of Transp. v. I.C.C., 587 F.2d 541 (543)*.

Presumption established by 34-carload rule (49 CFR 1121.20-24) can be rebutted by protestant.--Wellsville, Addison & Galeton R. Corp.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 247 (250)*.

§10905. OFFERS OF FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO AVOID ABANDONMENT OR DISCONTINUANCE

10. Reasonable return.--Return on investment is not to be characterized as part of line's "actual loss" calculated under Commission's new abandonment regulations (49 CFR 1121.45), since estimated subsidy figures constitute not loss from operations but rather amount of financial assistance projected as necessary to cover avoidable losses and subsidization expenses and provide fair return; return on value of line represents congressionally mandated level of compensation for operator of subsidized line, and estimated subsidy consists of this compensation element plus projected excess of costs over revenues, so as to facilitate determination of estimated subsidy under §1a(7) [now §10905], not to evaluate merits of abandonment.--Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co.--Abandonment, 354, I.C.C. 735 (738).

§10907. EXCEPTIONS

5. Spur, industrial, switching, or side tracks.--When purchased track will be used as switching yard and to furnish connection terminal switching between points of connection with two line-haul carriers and sidings of industries presently served by one of those carriers; connection terminal switching is class of switching service which is performed at origin and destination terminals by carriers; and under §1(18)(d) [now §10907] track to be used for connection terminal switching like other switching track may be acquired without Commission approval provided impact of acquisition is entirely local, petition to dismiss purchase application is granted because trackage is exempt under §1(18) and its acquisition is also exempt from §5(2).--Terminal Ry. Ala. State Docks--Operation, Mobile, AL, 354 I.C.C. 747 (749).

Under §1a(1) [now §10907], abandonment of switching track is exempt from Commission jurisdiction.--Id., p.750.

§10908. DISCONTINUANCE OR CHANGING INTERSTATE TRAINS OR FERRY TRANSPORTATION SUBJECT TO STATE LAW

5. Jurisdiction.--Section 744 of Regional Rail Reorganization Act does not authorize Conrail summarily to discontinue passenger service over final system plan line, and it must proceed under §13a(1) [now §10908].--Illinois v. Conrail, 589 F.2d 1327 (1334).

SUBCHAPTER II--OTHER CARRIERS AND MOTOR CARRIER BROKERS

§10922. CERTIFICATE OF MOTOR AND WATER COMMON CARRIERS

Procedure

15. Filing applications; parties; notice.--

Parties; multiple applications: When protestants have recently received broad grants to transport foodstuffs to destination territory involved, it would be inequitable to deny application on basis that comparable authority has been granted to other carriers in substantially contemporaneous application proceedings.--Gateway Transp. Co., Inc.--Ext.--Foodstuffs, 126 M.C.C. 406 (410-1).

18. Burden of proof.--Appropriate burden of proof to be applied in proceedings of regulatory agencies is contained in §556(d) of Administrative Procedure Act, which states that order must be supported by "reliable, probative and substantial evidence"; these words cannot be interpreted as requiring applicant to prove need for proposed motor carrier service by "clear and convincing evidence."--Manufacturers Exp., Inc., Ext.--Malt Beverages, 126 M.C.C. 174 (177).

22. Evidence.--When Commission decided to disregard supporting evidence of shipper which no longer was in business, but inadvertently included in certificate granted operations only supported by that evidence, court grants Commission's petition to remand to correct obvious error.--Appleyard's Motor Transp. Co. v. I.C.C., 592 F.2d 8 (13)*.

Novak criteria: Novak criteria are not binding requirement, and failure of applicant to fulfill specific Novak criteria does not of itself require reversal of Commission's grant; when supporting shippers stated area of present operation and area they hoped to include in future expansion, substantial evidence supported grant.--Appleyard's Motor Transp. Co. v. I.C.C., 592 F.2d 8 (12)*.

Novak criteria are not merely technical requirements; rather, they constitute minimal showing expected of any applicant seeking grant of motor carrier authority, and are meant to assure that sufficient information will be available to determine nature and extent of transportation needs of shippers.--C & H Transp. Co., Inc. v. I.C.C., 589 F.2d 565 (572-3)*.

Commission has outlined certain evidentiary guidelines (so-called Novak criteria, 103 MCC 555) with which applicant is ordinarily expected to comply so as to allow for rational determination of what service authorization, if any, would be consistent with public interest and these evidentiary guidelines are applicable to both contract and common carrier application proceedings; guidelines are not intended to serve as procedural hurdles in decisionmaking process of Commission, but rather to serve as vehicle for providing Commission with sufficient information to reach its determination in given proceeding. Applying these guidelines in instant case, each applicant has established prima facie case.--Pre-Fab Transit Co., Ext.--Aluminum Products, 126 M.C.C. 833 (839-41).

When evidence establishes that substantial volume of involved commodities will move to points in proposed destination territory, and shipper's failure to specify all destinations is of little import because shipper provides adequate explanation for this deficiency and opposition to application is neglible, application is granted.--Bralley-Willett Tank Lines, Inc., Ext.--Hopewell, 126 M.C.C. 236 (241)

Representative points: While shippers must have reasonably thorough knowledge of capabilities of existing carriers, and evidence must support sought-after authority in all its breadth, there is no requirement that data on need and benefit be gathered for every point in area of proposed operations, since Commission should not be denied normally reasonable inferences that what is true for fair sampling of localities is probably true for most; thus, all that is required is evidence portraying situation at representative number of points.--May Trucking Co. v. United States, 593 F.2d 1349 (1352-3)*.

When supporting evidence related primarily to inadequacy of existing service in northrn Idaho, grant embracing southern Idaho was also warranted when shippers stated that they needed applicant's service in south, applicant had served area under temporary authority, and it could be presumed that existing carriers' performance did not vary dramatically with change in latitude.--Id., pp.1353-4.

Weight of evidence: Failure of protestants to file replies to applicant's petition indicates lack of continuing interest in involved traffic and detracts from weight that their opposition would normally be accorded; although their evidence will not be further discussed, it remains and has been considered in reaching decision.--Schneider Tank Lines, Inc., Ext.--Chemicals, 126 M.C.C. 860 (861); Bralley-Willett Tank Lines, Inc., Ext.--Hopewell, 126 M.C.C. 236 (237).

Witnesses: Witness's knowledge of matters attested to does not have to be acquired firsthand, but may be acquired through normal operation of involved business; thus, witness who was required to familiarize himself with applicant's existing operations in order to perform properly his duties as regional vice-president should have been allowed to offer evidence, and length of his experience in territory goes to weight accorded his testimony rather than his competence; however, while evidence of applicant's operations as it existed before witness assumed office should be considered, evidence concerning routes sought in application, which witness conceded that he was unfamiliar with, is stricken, since witness lacks knowledge of matters attested to.--Interstate Motor Frt. System Conversion Applic., 126 M.C.C. 23 (24)*.

23. Official notice; res judicata; stare decisis.--Failure to prove in one proceeding that public convenience and necessity warrant new service does not mean that better evidence cannot suffice for subsequent application.--May Trucking Co. v. United States, 593 F.2d 1349 (1351)*.

Public Convenience and Necessity

106. Restriction of operation.--

Plantsite: When small protestant has served other firms at point in question, those firms express support for protestant's position, and they have not joined in supporting application, applicant is limited to service at supporting shipper's facilities.--Pacific Intermountain Exp. Co.--Off-Route, 126 M.C.C. 866 (871)*.

Prior or subsequent movement by rail: Restriction requiring "prior" movement by rail and restriction requiring "immediately prior" movement by rail have same meaning; both refer to uninterrupted, continuous movements from origin to destination.--Rogers Transfer, Inc., Declaratory Order, 126 M.C.C. 448 (452).

Prior or subsequent movement by water: Restriction requiring "prior" movement by water and restriction requiring"immediately prior" movement by water have same meaning; both refer to uninterrupted, continuous movements from origin to destination.--Rogers Transfer, Inc., Declaratory Order, 126 M.C.C. 448 (452-3).

Essential character of commerce is governed by fixed and persisting transportation intent of shipper at time of shipment, and such character is retained throughout movement in absence of interruption of continuity thereof; thus, when shippers intend that meats move as continuously as possible to ultimate consignees, whatever storage takes place at warehouse is incidential and services to facilitate transfer of goods from water to motor modes, and such storage does not break continuity of movement of meat from water vessel to warehouse and thence to ultimate consignees is single continuing movement and can be performed under certificate requiring "prior" or "immediately prior" movement by water.--Id., pp. 453-4.

107. Competition.--Adverse impact clearly results for applicant when its first effort to obtain interstate operating rights is denied; it is not same thing as denying minor, or even major, proposal for expanded operation by established carrier.--White Contract Carrier Application, 126 M.C.C. 852 (857).

Existing carriers: Injury to existing carriers through competition becomes relevant only when there is corresponding injury to public, since Congress designed the Act to benefit people not to create protected monopolies for those who profess to serve public; thus, when protestant merely shows that applicant will compete with other carriers and may succeed in luring away some of their customers, but does not show that applicant's operations will likely promote inefficiency and waste or destroy protestant's ability to compete, Commission properly granted application.--May Trucking Co. v. United States, 593 F.2d 1349 (1356)*.

Where protesting carriers do not presently have business, grant would have adverse effect on them only in unusual case.--White Contract Carrier Application, 126 M.C.C. 852 (857).

When protestant is one of nation's largest carriers and has monopoly on traffic at issue, applicant operating one unit will not seriously harm protestant and will provide needed competition.--Id., pp. 857-8.

When protestants have recently received broad grants to transport foodstuffs to destination territory involved, it would be inequitable to deny application on basis that comparable authority has ben granted to other carriers in substantially contemporaneous application proceedings; indeed, desirable side effect of grant is to restore applicant to competitive position vis-a-vis carriers who have recently received similar authority.--Gateway Transp. Co., Inc.,--Ext.--Foodstuffs, 126 M.C.C. 406 (410-1).

Existing carriers have no absolute immunity against future competition, even where added competition may cause decline in revenues, where issuance of new authority will best serve public interest; thus, when applicant is substantial competitor in area under certificate of registration, shippers have relied on applicant's service under now terminated lease agreement with nonparty carrier, locally domiciled applicant will offer service more responsive than protestants, and operations of protestants are sufficiently stable to absorb any loss of revenue resulting from grant, advantages to be derived from shipping public from applicant's improved service outweigh disadvantages to opposing carriers; granted.--Suwannee Transfer, Inc.--Ext., 126 M.C.C. 366 (375)*.

125. Convenience and necessity; demand for service in general.--Policy statement describing standards for deciding applications for motor carrier authority, Ex Parte No. MC-121, see 44 FR 60296.

Language of Pan-American criteria is guideline not straitjacket; important thing is protection and promotion of public interest, not that of certificated carriers.--Appleyard's Motor Transp. Co. v. I.C.C., 592 F.2d 8 (11)*.

Showing that adequately meets §5(2) [now §11343] may not necessarily meet more stringent requirements of §207 [now §10922], since §5(2) only demands demonstration of "public interest" while §207 requires showing of "public convenience and necessity", and latter standard is higher than former.--C & H Transp. Co., Inc. v. I.C.C., 589 F.2d 565 (576)*.

Conversions of authority: Irregular-to-regular-route, see Interstate Motor Frt. System case, n.230, infra.

Distance to available carrier: Commission views with favor applications for common carrier authority where locally domiciled applicant offers service more responsive than that available from existing carriers; thus, when applicant has proximately located terminals or agency facilities and is able to provide responsive service for shippers' localized requirements, while protestants rely on equipment terminating at point in question for subsequent utilization to more distant destinations, application is granted.--Suwannee Transfer, Inc.--Ext., 126 M.C.C. 366 (374-5)*.

Economy and efficiency: When grant will enable applicant better to balance operations by eliminating deadhead miles on outbound movements, enhancement of efficiency and internal financial stability within applicant's operation is Commission's legitimate concern where it may be achieved at little expense to existing carriers.--Gateway Transp. Co., Inc.--Ext.--Foodstuffs, 126 M.C.C. 406 (411).

Public convenience and necessity may be found in operating economies and in those things which contribute to expedition and efficiency because, while they most obviously benefit carrier and shipper, they also contribute indirectly to more reliable, expeditions, and less costly transportation, advantages of which are realized ultimately by consuming public; thus, when applicant seeks to substitute direct, single-line service for joint-line service now provided, protestant does not handle traffic, and shipper intends to continue to use applicant's joint-line service if application is denied, so that denial would result in maintenance of status quo while grant would improve quality of existing service by eliminating circuity, saving fuel and time in transit, and at least not increasing empty backhauls, application is granted.--Manufacturers Exp., Inc., Ext.--Malt Beverages, 126 M.C.C. 174 (178).

Existing carriers; service: Supporting shipper need not have had experience with every existing carrier, since it is essential only that sum of evidence indicates persuasively that existing carriers are unable or unwilling to provide kind or level of service desired; thus, when shippers' evidence of inadequacy of existing service relates primarily to northern Idaho, but shippers also testify as to need in southern Idaho, and it can be presumed that carriers' performance does not vary dramatically with change in latitude, grant to serve southern Idaho is also warranted.--May Trucking Co. v. United States, 593 F.2d 1349 (1354-5)*.

Where protestants do not presently have business, grant of it to newcomer would adversely affect them only in unusual case.--Id., p.1355.

While applicant will be free also to serve shippers who did not testify in his behalf, and some of protestant's business will thus be vulnerable to divesion, this argument is beside the point; competition, while frequently entailing loss of customers, is ordinarily in public interest, and protestant must show not only that applicant will compete with other carriers and may succeed in luring some of their customers away but also that applicant's operations will likely promote inefficiency and waste or destroy protestant's ability to compete.--Id., pp.1355-6.

Language of Pan-American criteria is guideline not straitjacket, and important thing is protection and promotion of public interest not that of certificated carriers; thus, when supporting shippers, presently using private carriage, present evidence of need for applicant's service for future expansion of business and express satisfaction with applicant's service to limited extent now available, there is no question of diversion of traffic from protestants, but even if there were, no carrier is entitled to protection from competition at expense of depriving shippers of new and improved service which might divert some traffic from other carriers.--Appleyard's Motor Transp. Co. v. I.C.C., 592 F.2d 8 (10-12)*.

Focusing almost solely upon calibre of available services loses sight of totality of shipper's reasonable transportation needs, in terms of which capabilities of existing carriers must be measured; thus, when shipper's transportation needs are soon to be increased by 400 percent, operating authorities of protestants are limited and they can provide only interline service, and shipper needs more direct service, application is granted.--Pacific Intermountain Exp. Co.--Off-Route, 126 M.C.C. 866 (870-1)*.

Adequacy of existing service is only one element to be considered in arriving at broader determination of public convenience and necessity; thus, when supporting coal shippers complain of problems obtaining sufficient equipment from protestant and all shippers anticipate increasing needs for transportation of vital commodity they produce and when record does not support finding that protestant's service is inadequate but does indicate that status quo should not be preserved with respect to present level of available transportation service, additional carrier is needed for supporting shippers who should not be forced to rely primarily or solely on transportation service offered by single protestant. Application approved.--Samuel J. Lansberry, Inc., Ext.--Centre County, 126 M.C.C. 456 (458)*.

Finding of inadequacy of existing service on basis of past failure to provide service is not indispensable to finding that proposed service is required; thus, when existing service is not shown inadequate on basis of service failures, but shippers have relied on applicant's service under now terminated lease agreement with nonparty carrier, locally domiciled applicant will offer service more responsive than protestants, and protestants are either specialized carriers or regular-route carriers unable to provide responsive service required, application is granted.--Suwannee Transfer, Inc.--Ext., 126 M.C.C. 366 (373-5)*.

To extent protestants participate in proposed service through interline with carriers who have not joined in opposing application, such operations are entitled to only minimal weight.--Cadline Transport Ltd. Com. Car. Applic. 126 M.C.C. 357 (363)*.

When only protestant has territorially limited authority and, in view of large volume of involved traffic, inadequate number of suitable vehicles, and when evidence establishes that substantial volume of involved commodities will move to points in proposed destination territory, more than one carrier is needed to meet shipping requirements; thus, application is granted despite supporting shipper's failure to specify all destinations, since shipper adequately explains this deficiency, opposition to application is negligible, and grant will have no material adverse effect on any existing carrier.--Bralley-Willett Tank Lines, Inc., Ext.--Hopewell, 126 M.C.C. 236 (241)*.

When protestant's service is not grossly inadequate, but on numerous occasions supporting shipper who has been unable to obtain service from protestant has been forced to use applicant's more expensive interline operation, single-line application is granted.--Id., p.241.

Although protestant holds authority to perform direct, single-line service, and its service cannot be specifically described as inadequate, additional authority may be granted where other factors indicate that public interest would be best served by grant; thus, where applicant seeks to substitute direct, single-line service for joint-line service now provided, and shipper has indicated its intention to continue to use applicant's joint-line service even if application is denied, so that denial would result in maintenance of status quo while grant would improve quality of existing service, application is granted.--Manufacturers Exp., Inc., Ext.--Malt Beverages, 126 M.C.C. 174 (178).

Fitness, in general: When applicant has paid civil forfeiture and there is no indication that unauthorized operations have continued, no nexus is presented which would warrant any adverse fitness finding.--Cadline Transport Ltd. Com. Car. Applic., 126 M.C.C. 357 (363)*.

Any problems that applicant Canadian carrier may have with Canadian regulatory authorities are matters to be pursued before those bodies; record does not warrant finding of unfitness.--Id., p.363.

Financial fitness: When law judge considered Small Business Administration loans to applicant only for purposes of ascertaining whether applicant was fit, willing, and able to conduct proposed operations, court is afforded no ground for probing behind stated rationale for some other unexpressed use of this information; grant affirmed.--May Trucking Co. v. United States, 593 F.2d 1349 (1351)*.

Following the traffic: Commission recognizes carrier's interest in preserving traffic it now handles to significant degree; thus, when applicant seeks to substitute direct, single-line service for joint-line service it now provides so as to make operation more efficient, protestant does not handle traffic so no change in competitive situation will be effected by grant, and applicant is already substantial competitor and provided satisfactory direct service from brewery to supporting distributor's warehouses before brewery moved to new location, application is granted.--Manufacturers Exp., Inc., Ext.--Malt Beverages, 126 M.C.C. 174 (177-8).

Foreign commerce: Any problems that applicant Canadian carrier may have with Canadian regulatory authorities are matters to be pursued before those bodies; record does not warrant finding of unfitness.--Cadline Transport Ltd. Com. Car. Applic., 126 M.C.C. 357 (363)*.

Although applicant's Canadian authority is contingent upon receipt of corresponding authority from Commission, applicant's submission of such authority satisfies policy of requiring proof of such authority.--Id., p.363.

Future need: In future needs case, Commission's judgment is to be accorded great weight; therefore, when supporting shippers, presently using private carriage, present evidence of need for applicant's service for future expansion of business and express satisfaction with applicant's service to limited extent now available, substantial evidence supports Commission's conclusion that expansion of high quality service is consistent with public convenience and necessity, making it inappropriate to frustrate applicant's willingness and ability to offer good service to larger market area, providing benefits of increased competition and removing traffic from private carriage, without depriving existing carriers of present revenues.--Appleyard's Motor Transp. Co. v. I.C.C., 592 F.2d 8 (10-12)*.

Intrastate operations: Past operations of single-State carrier under certificate of registration are relevant evidence of continuing public need for service and are admissible in proceedings involving applications for certificates of public convenience and necessity, but request for authority more extensive than that authorized under certificate of registration requires substantially same degree of proof of public need as would be required in any application under §207 [now §10922] for new authority; thus, when evidence shows that applicant under certificate of registration is substantial competitor in involved market, public need is shown for authority sought wholly within State in question, and need for interstate service by applicant is shown when protestants, unlike applicant, are not locally domiciled carriers able to offer responsive service; application granted.--Suwannee Transfer, Inc.--Ext., 126 M.C.C. 366 (373-4)*.

Lease arrangement: Where shippers have relied upon applicant's operation under now terminated lease agreement with nonparty lessee carrier, fact that lessee has not opposed application for competitive operation indicates that proposed operation would not harm existing carriers, and applicant's operation under lease shows it to be competitor in area, application is granted.--Suwannee Transfer, Inc.--Ext., 126 M.C.C. 366 (373-6)*.

Past operations: When petitioner carried meats under color of right while operating under grandfather certificate authorizing carriage of "grocery store supplies", petitioner is granted authority to carry meats between points shown.--Hilt Truck Line, Inc., Petition for Modification, 125 M.C.C. 416 (425).

Rates: There is nothing invidious in proposal by applicant to charge lower rate; matter of rates is one factor to be weighed in determining need for new service (368 US at 91-2).--White Contract Carrier Application, 126 M.C.C. 852 (858).

Single-line service: When protestants assert that they can provide needed service by interline, but no interline carriers have joined protestants in opposing applications, Commission cannot assume nonprotestant's willigness to handle traffic; and even if protestants had firmly established continuity of interline service, when shipper anticipates fourfold increase in traffic and shows reasonable need, in light of marketing aims, storage limitations, and competitive position, for more direct service, application is granted.--Pacific Intermountain Exp. Co.--Off-Route, 126 M.C.C. 866 (870-1)*.

When supporting shipper has large volume of traffic and requires carrier capable of providing split pickups at its three facilities, as well as providing multi-State deliveries; applicant has served shipper in past through joint-line service with protestant Coastal, which agreement was canceled by Coastal; applicant is now providing considerable service to shipper and is merely seeking logical expansion of that service; and application is designed to authorize complete service now unavailable to shipper, while opposition to application is slight, application is approved.--Schneider Tank Lines, Inc., Ext.--Chemicals, 126 M.C.C. 860 (863-64)*.

When carrier seeks to substitute single-line for joint-line service, Commission focuses its attention primarily upon four factors: (1) adequacy and extent of applicant's joint-line service; (2) adequacy and extent of other competitive services; (3) beneficial and adverse impacts of new improved service upon applicant's competitors, including applicant's prior interline carrier; and (4) public benefits to be derived from fuel conservation and the promotion of economy and efficiency. Applicant now serves most supporting shippers and is substantial competitor for involved traffic, and existing carrier's service is less than satisfactory, especially in light of three to five day average transit time for 191-mile trip; although approval could lead to considerable diversion from existing carriers, it is not unreasonable to expect that applicant's improved service may act as competitive spur to protestants. Approved.--Chief Freight Lines Co. Ext.--Dallas, 126 M.C.C. 794 (798-99).

When applicant is attempting to substitute single-line service for its existing joint-line operation, resulting in improved and more efficient method of handling commodities it already transports which will benefit both applicant and supporting shipper, and when eliminating necessity to interline should produce savings in time, fuel, and reduced paperwork, while supporting shipper complains that existing interline service causes delays and increases opportunities for damage, held: direct service should ameliorate these problems, and while these benefits immediately affect applicant and its supporting shipper, they ultimately accrue to general public; in contrast to these benefits, there are few, if any, discernible detrimental effects, since carriers with which applicant interlines did not protest application, and it is logical to assume that this traffic is of no great interest to them and they will not be adversely affected by approval.--Knox Motor Service, Inc., Ext.--Transformers, 126 M.C.C. 413 (417)*.

When shippers need direct service to avoid shrinkage or spoilage of hides which may be incurred if there are delays in transit, existing carriers do not meet this need, and applicant has met need under temporary authority, direct authority is granted.--Cadline Transport Ltd. Com. Car. Applic., 126 M.C.C. 357 (362)*.

When protestant's service is not grossly inadequate, but on numerous occasions supporting shipper has been unable to obtain service from protestant and has been forced to use applicant's more expensive interline operation, single-line application is granted, since applicant has previously furnished equipment for both legs of joint-line movements of traffic, grant will enable applicant to reduce fuel consumption, and grant will minimize future deteriorations in service while having minimal effect on protestant.--Bralley-Willett Tank Lines, Inc., Ext.--Hopewell, 126 M.C.C. 236 (241)*.

Where applicant seeks to substitute direct, single-line service for joint-line service it now provides so as to make operation more efficient, protestant does not handle traffic so no change in competitive situation will be effected by grant, and applicant is already substantial competitor and provided satisfactory direct service from brewery to supporting distributor's warehouse before brewery moved to new location, application is granted, especially since shipper intends to continue to use applicant's joint-line service even if application were denied, and grant will improve quality of service by eliminating circuity and enhancing efficiency.--Manufacturers Exp., Inc., Ext.--Malt Beverages, 126 M.C.C. 174 (177-8).

Special service, equipment: Gra-Bell principle (115 MCC 872, 880) is intended only to prevent exceedingly rare manufactured cases based upon arbitrary or capricious shipper demands for service; public interest cannot be served by forcing shippers to adjust their market distribution patterns to conform artificially to confines of protestants' operating rights, such policy would so shackle and inhibit transportation industry as to render efficient innovation unlikely, and it is not Commission's proper function to substitute its good business judgment for shippers', since Commission is remarkably unqualified to perform that function, and it clearly exceeds Commission's statutory mandate.--Pacific Intermountain Exp. Co.--Off-Route, 126 M.C.C. 866 (871)*.

When few protestants hold wide territorial and commodity authority necessary to offer comprehensive service to supporting shippers, and grant will place applicant in position to handle mixed-load and multiple-stop traffic which shippers claim protestants cannot transport, application is granted.--Gateway Transp. Co., Inc.--Ext.--Foodstuffs, 126 M.C.C. 406 (410).

When shippers need spotting of equipment, use of open-top trailers, and loading of commodities in special sequences, and stress that shrinkage or spoilage may occur if there are delays in transit of hides, so that direct service is required, application is granted because existing carriers do not meet these needs.--Cadline Transport Ltd. Com. Car. Applic., 126 M.C.C. 357 (362)*.

Temporary authority: Although operations pursuant to temporary authority raise no presumption of need for corresponding permanent operations and do not without more establish need for service, they may be considered in determining carrier's ability to provide service, indicating nature and volume of traffic, and showing effect of grant on existing carriers; thus, when shippers show need for direct service for carriage of hides, existing carriers do not meet this need, but substantial volume of traffic carried under temporary authority shows that applicant does, application is granted.--Cadline Transport Ltd. Com. Car. Applic., 126 M.C.C. 357 (362-3)*.

Volume of traffic: When shipper anticipates fourfold increase in traffic volume, and existing carriers' authorities are limited, application is granted.--Pacific Intermountain Exp. Co.--Off-Route, 126 M.C.C. 866 (870-1)*.

When very large volume of traffic collectively shipped by supporting firms is sufficient to sustain one additional carrier without unduly prejudicing existing carriers, public need exists for proposed service and applicant is not now entrant into market, and authorization would enable applicant to continue to compete for traffic by providing somewhat improved, more comprehensive and flexible service on equal footing with other recently authorized carriers, application is granted.--Gateway Transp. Co., Inc.--Ext.--Foodstuffs, 126 M.C.C. 406 (410).

128. Change in route.--

Gateway elimination: When transferee filed §5(2) [now §11343] application to acquire operating rights of transferor and in connection with this filed §207(a) [now §10922] application to combine purchased authority with that already held and eliminate resulting gateway, and Commission granted authority to provide direct-route service from 19 states to 39 states, but supporting testimony of shippers supported at best grant of direct authority only between states to which it specifically referred and was substantively deficient under Novak criteria, and supporting traffic studies either failed to show traffic which actually moved through gateway or failed to show transferee substantial competitor over gateway, evidence adduced was insufficient to support grant under either public convenience and necessity standard or gateway elimination criteria (61 MCC 421, 428), especially since Commission failed to analyze effects of eliminating gateway on transferee's competitive position and on time and mileage saved; remanded.--C & H Transp. Co. v. I.C.C., 589 F.2d 565 (571-5)*.

Commission's challenge to validity of analysis based on all possible origin and destination permutations and combinations encompassed within grant, on grounds that sporadic nature of call-on-demand shipments of size and weight commodities renders unrealistic requirements that evidence be offered pertinent to all states within grant, is rejected; although atomization may be contrary to precedent in motor-carrier acquisition cases under §5(2), in gateway elimination cases, state by state analysis has been used.--Id., pp.576-7.

In proceeding to eliminate gateway under rules promulgated in 119 MCC 530, applicant must establish (1) that it is transporting substantial volume of traffic from and to points involved by operating in good faith through its gateway and, in so operating, is effectively and efficiently competing with existing carriers, and (2) that elimination of gateway would not enable it to institute new service, or service so different from that presently provided as materially to improve its competitive position to detriment of existing carriers.--Groendyke Transport, Inc., Ext.--Gateway Elim., 126 M.C.C. 571 (574)*.

Threshhold question in any gateway elimination proceeding is whether applicant has transported substantial amount of traffic through pertinent gateway, since to grant authority from and to points to which applicant has not actually transported traffic would result in windfall grant of authority neither contemplated by gateway rules nor required by public convenience and necessity; there is no mechanical test to determine substantiality, but rather, number of shipments which would constitute substantial participation in traffic involved is relative one, and applicant's participation must be related in light of circumstances in each particular case. Applicant has demonstrated to Commission's satisfaction that its operations have been substantial and competitive with protestants' operations, and grant of authority is not likely to result in any substantially enhanced ability by applicant to handle involved traffic.--Id., pp. 574-76.

Purpose of gateway elimination rules is to eliminate, consistent with public interest and national transportation policy, unnecessary miles traveled by motor common carriers of property operating through gateways over irregular routes; by obviating necessity of observing heretofore required common service points, Commission has determined that carriers will be able to operate in more efficient, economic, and fuel-saving-manner.--Id., p.576.

Rights embodied in grant of direct service authority, which eliminates gateway, are severable from all, or portion of, underlying irregular-route authority, following standards of §§5(2) [now §11343 et seq.] and 212(b) [now §10926], with each transaction to be considered on own merits; thus, when Commission finds concurrent sale and retention of operating authority is consistent with public interest, as is required for transaction proposed under §5(2) or §212(b), competitive service between vendee and vendor will not be created, and transaction will not constitute windfall transaction in which operating rights are sold without diminishing in any material degree scope of vendor's present service while vendee at same time is authorized to perform almost identical, duplicative service, but if transaction would result in duplication of services, principles developed under §5(2) will require restructuring of transaction or cancellation of certain authority to avoid such result.--Maxwell Co., Petition for Declaratory Order, 126 M.C.C. (170-1).

Specification of Routes

230. Regular-,irregular-route characteristics.--Act contemplates both regular- and irregular-route service, but duty to establish classification between services resides in Commission, which has set forth criteria of regular-route service in 47 MCC 23; because of this distinction between two different types of service, irregular-route certificate cannot be used to provide regular-route service.--Interstate Motor Frt. System Conversion Applic., 126 M.C.C. 23 (38-9)*.

In application to convert irregular-route authority into regular-route, issue is whether applicant's operations over irregular-route have gradually evolved into regular pattern or whether transition was encouraged in knowing violation of terms of certificate; and when operations are performed according to predetermined geographical plan such that operations of upcoming period can be reliably forecast, applicant has opened terminals in order to handle LTL traffic, applicant has tended to adhere to fixed routes which is single most telling trait of regular-route operator, applicant has established fixed and published schedules, and applicant's service is repetitive and periodical in nature, application should be denied, since applicant's service does not present increasing and constant volume of lawful past operations such as is necessary to support conversion.--Id., pp.25, 39-42.

Where conversion of authority is to be granted in lieu of, rather than in addition to, existing authority, but applicant intends not to surrender any authority and does not suggest how it can preserve distinction between regular- and irregular-route service under dual authority, application should be denied, since approval of situation where carrier could serve same points under both regular- and irregular-route authority is not in public interest; thus, successful conversion applicants must request restriction providing against service under simultaneously held irregular-route authority to any points authorized under regular-route operation.--Id., pp.25, 43.

231. Combination of routes.--While §212(c) [omitted from recodification as expired] requires that authority of contract carriers converted into common carriers under that section not be expanded, so that tacking of such authorities is prohibited, when Commission issued certificate under §212(c) which contained no prohibition against tacking, and competing carrier exhibited inexcusable delay in protecting its rights by challenging lack of tacking restriction, Commission's determination that such inaction, when coupled with other facts, constituted equitable defense of laches and that alteration of certificate would be harsh and inequitble, is affirmed.--Chemical Leeman Tank Lines, Inc. v. I.C.C., 593 F.2d 241 (243, 246)*.

Deviation from Routes

250. Superhighway rules.--Since in order to comport with superhighway rules same vehicle that departs from underlying regular service route to perform operations pursuant to rules must also return to route, operation involving provision of pickup and delivery service between points on superhighway route and terminal by utilizing vehicles which in performing service do not depart from and return to underlying regular service route, are not within ambit of provisions of superhighway rules; however, carrier is free to establish terminal facilities wherever it chooses and to operate in any manner it deems best so long as vehicles utilized in performing superhighway operations actually depart from and return to underlying service route.--Petition for Declaratory Order--Superwhy. Opers., 125 M.C.C. 688 (692-4).

§10923. PERMITS OF MOTOR AND WATER CONTRACT CARRIERS AND FREIGHT FORWARDERS

25. Necessity, demand for service.--When applicant small, locally based carrier desires to provide shipper two-way service responsive to rapidly increasing traffic volume; applicant will not seriously harm protestant, one of largest carriers in nation; denial would harm applicant when this is its first attempt to obtain interstate operating rights; shipper would be harmed by denial when protestant has monopoly on traffic and competition provided by applicant would benefit shipper; and fact that shipper's revenues have increased 26-fold in three years shows change in its transportation requirements, application is granted.--White Contract Carrier Application, 126 M.C.C. 852 (856-8).

When applicant will serve six shippers; proposed provision of flexible, responsive service does not constitute unique, specialized service but protestants are incapable of rendering comparable service; grant will not harm protestants because most of traffic is presently carried by private carriage; denial would force shipper to depend on expensive private carriage or use protestants' unsatisfactory service; and shipper's changing needs are not significant factor, application is granted.--Charter Exp., Inc., Ext.--Truck and Trailer Parts, 126 M.C.C. 671 (676-80).

When protestants do not provide service proposed, and grant would not divert traffic from them, grant would affect protestants' services within meaning of §209(b) [now §10923] only in unusual cases; thus, holding in 115 MCC 675 that application will be denied when shipper proposes to tender applicant contract carrier t.l. traffic while relegating protestant common carriers to handling l.t.l. traffic, is overruled, since common carriers have no right to handle all of shipper's traffic, and denial of contract carrier application designed to replace private carriage on this basis would not achieve desired effect of encouraging common carriage, but would only force shipper to continue to rely on private carriage.--Id., pp.677-9.

When authority sought is broad in scope, shipper's need for service throughout territory is provable only by future need which must necessarily be less certain and definite than proof of present need, and development of shipper's production and distribution capabilities is gradual process, although evidence with respect to precise locaitons of customers is somewhat vague, shipper presents sufficient evidence of its marketing operations and traffic patterns to enable Commission to conclude that its merchandising will result in both inbound and outbound traffic moving throughout territory sought.--Id., p. 680.

In determining whether issuance of permit will be consistent with public interest and national transportation policy, former §209(b) [now §10923] requires consideration of following five criteria: (1) number of shippers to be served by applicant, (2) nature of service proposed, (3) effect grant of authority would have upon services of protesting carriers, (4) effect denial would have upon services of applicant and its supporting shipper, and (5) changing character of shipper's requirements; upon application of these criteria to evidence of record, Commission concludes that application should be granted.--Claycon Transports Corporation Ext.--Clay, 126 M.C.C. 420 (423-25).

§10924. LICENSES OF MOTOR CARRIER BROKERS

3. Applications generally; parties; notice.--Commission's new rules and procedures for licensing and entry control of tour brokers (Ex Parte MC-96) are vacated and proceeding is remanded to Commission because of failure to comply with Administrative Procedure Act requirements (§553(b)), governing proposed rulemakings.--National Tour Brokers Assn. v. United States, 591 F.2d 896 (903)*.

§10925. EFFECTIVE PERIODS OF CERTIFICATES, PERMITS, AND LICENSES

2. Interpretation of licenses, general principles.--

Radial, nonradial routes: Radial service is transportaiton of property over irregular routes from fixed base point or points to points or places located within such radial area as shall have been fixed in certificate or from any point located within such radial area to carrier's fixed base point or points, while nonradial service is transportation over irregular routes between points or communities located within such general territory as shall have been defined geographically and authorized in certificate and any other points or communities located within same general territory without respect to hub community or fixed base point of operation; thus, radial authority permits transportation of freight between points in two or more geographically described areas but does not permit cross-haul transportation of freight between points located wholly within one of described areas.--Cape Air Frt., Inc. v. United States, 589 F.2d 478 (479)*.

When certificate authorizes service between named points on the one hand and, on the other, "points in that part of Pennsylvania, and points in" ten named states, service authorized is radial, and insertion of coma before phrase "and points" does not render it nonradial; certificate is not ambiguous, and this interpretation follows uniform Commission practice with regard to radial and nonradial authorization. Affirmed.--Id., pp.480-1.

Commission's holding that words "on the one hand, and, on the other," are words of art used to describe radial authority between base point and points in second described geographical area, has been judicially upheld.--Id., p.481.

When carrier's authority enables it to transport commodities radially between points in named counties, on one hand, and on other, named airports, shipments may be picked up either at point in named county or at airport and transported in opposite direction to airport or authorized nonairport point; but carrier cannot make pickup and delivery between named counties or between named airports, since such operations would constitute illegal crosshaul.--A. C. Enterprises, Inc., Invest. and Revoc., 126 M.C.C. 562 (567-8).

Territorial descriptions: In description "points on and south of" named highway or other boundary, "on" element is specific authority to serve municipalities or unincorporated communities through which highway or other boundary passes, while "south of" feature is territorial authorization, as is authority merely defined by county boundaries.--A. C. Enterprises, Inc., Invest. and Revoc., 126 M.C.C. 562 (565).

§10928. TEMPORARY AUTHORITY FOR MOTOR AND WATER CARRIERS

5. Procedures, grounds for granting temporary authority.-- When due to clerical error protests were omitted from public docket but included in personal files of Motor Carrier Board members, so that protests were considered before Board granted application for temporary authority but protestants were not given direct notice of grant, no prejudice arose from delay in notifying protestants, since Commission extended time for administrative review and on reconsideration engaged in de novo review of applicaiton and protests.--East Texas Motor Frt. Lines v. United States, 593 F.2d 691 (693-4)*.

While Commission proceedings on temporary authority applications need not comply with certain requirements of Administrative Procedure Act, including issuance of findings and conclusions, and reasoned opinion is not necessary in every temporary authority case, case involving extensive grant of temporary authority over protests of number of carriers requires Commission to explain its results to allow effective appellate review, so that Motor Carrier Board opinion limited primarily to reiteration of statutory requirements for granting temporary authority and Commission decision on reconsideration consisting of one sentence were unsatisfactory; however, record allows satisfactory review of Commission decision, which is affirmed.--Id., pp. 694-5.

While Commission failed to require compliance with regulation (49 CFR 1131.2(c)) which requires that shipper statements supporting temporary authority application contain certain information specified, this failure is not grounds for reversal when statements contain sufficient information to provide some kind of factual basis for decision; thus, record including 380 supporting shipper statements, some of which express type of exigency that cannot await while permanent authority application is processed, provides Commission with sufficient information on which to base rational decision, and constitutes "some" evidence to support grant, weight of which evidence is for Commission to evaluate.--Id., pp.696-7.

While Motor Carrier Board decision stated that temporary authority was required because applicant showed immediate and urgent need which could not "adequately" be met by existing carriers, and statutory term referring to existing carrier service is "capable", use of word "adequately" did not indicate that Commission improperly engaged in inquiry into quality of existing service; adequacy in this context means that existing carriers are not sufficient to satisfy perceived need, and capability necessarily connotes same consideration of sufficiency.--Id., p.697.

Consideration of termination or reduction of interlining is not necessarily inappropriate concern in temporary authority.--Id., p.697.

10. Effect in applications for permanent authority.--Although operations pursuant to temporary authority raise no presumption of need for corresponding permanent operations and do not without more establish need for service, they may be considered in determining carrier's ability to provide service, indicating nature and volume of traffic, and showing effect of grant on existing carriers; thus, when shippers show need for direct service for carriage of hides, existing carriers do not meet this need, but substantial volume of traffic carried under temporary authority shows that applicant does, application is granted.--Cadline Transport Ltd. Com. Car. Applic., 126 M.C.C. 357 (362-3)*.

15. Reviews of grants of temporary authority.--Scope of appellate review in temporary authority case is to ensure that administrative action was not arbitrary or capricious and was supported by some evidence; and failure of Commission to require compliance with regulation (49 CFR 1131.2(c)) which provides that application for temporary authority must be accompanied by statements of support from shippers containing certain information specified is not grounds for reversal.--East Texas Motor Frt. Lines v. United States, 593 F.2d 691 (696)*.

§10930. LIMITATIONS ON CERTIFICATES AND PERMITS

Motor Carrier Dual Operations

2. Construction and interpretation.--Legislative history of former §210 shows that Congressional purpose in enacting §210 was to protect public from discriminatory rate practices when single carrier provides both common and contract carriage for same shipper or shippers, with discretion vested in Commission to determine when dual operations would be consistent with public interest. Commencing about 1940, Commission articulated "mere possibility" standard for these cases, holding that if mere possibility of discriminatory practices exits, Commission cannot approve dual operating authorities. In recent times, however, this "mere possibility" standard has been reevaluated and specifically rejected because standard is akin to absolute prohibition eschewed by Congress; proper standard should be based on those factors which indicate whether there is real-world likelihood that discriminatory rate practices may occur rather than "mere possibility" of abuses. Commission herein defined two-step process to be used for proper consideration of dual operations proposal and also delineated factors upon which realistic opportunity for discriminatory practices depends. Upon application of this interpretation to instant case, dual operations were approved.--Cargo Contract Carrier Corp. Ext.--Bananas, 126 M.C.C. 874 (876-80).

While Commission has in past held in many proceedings that mere potential or opportunity for discrimination is sufficient to warrant denial of applications or imposition or restrictions or conditions on presently held authorities so as to preclude any possibility for discrimination, it is now felt that Commission should seek to determine whether realistic possibility of discrimination would result from grant of dual operating authority, because "mere potential or opportunity" for discrimination standard is overly restrictive and can, in certain circumstances, lead to seemingly absurd results; determination whether realistic possibility of discrimination will result should be made on case-by-case basis, and factors to be considered in this determination are set forth herein.--Delaware Express Co. v. Milford Express, Inc., 126 M.C.C. 462 (466-67)*.

4. Discrimination; criteria to assess.--Section 210 [now §10930] does not compel denial if there is any mere, remote, or theoretical possibility of unlawful activity; rather, public interest and national transportation policy warrant authorization of dual operations except in those instances where there exists relationship of facts from which it can be logically and realistically determined that (1) applicant is likely to be serving party both as common and as contract carrier, and (2) nature of dual services will offer realistic opportunity to engage in undesirable rate practices which §210 seeks to prohibit.--Charter Ext., Inc., Ext.--Truck and Trailer Parts, 126 M.C.C. 671 (680-1).

When applicant holds common carrier authority to transport cleaning compounds, oil and grease, tires, block rubber, and plastic articles from various points to points in Missouri and as contract carrier applicant will be authorized to transport materials and supplies used in manufacture of truck and trailer suspension systems from various points to shipper's Missouri facilities, it may be inferred with reasonable certainty that applicant will be in position to serve shipper under both common and contract authority if dual operations were approved, creating substantial opportunity for discriminatory rate practices; thus, when proposed dual operations are not consistent with public interest and national transportation policy, proceeding is held open for 90 days to afford applicant opportunity to eliminate objectionable dual operations.--Id., p.681.

CHAPTER 111---OPERATIONS OF CARRIERS

SUBCHAPTER I---GENERAL REQUIREMENTS

§11101. PROVIDING TRANSPORTATION AND SERVICE

Carriers to Provide and Furnish Transportation

1. General nature of duty.--Line-haul rate obligates carrier to provide car, proper place at which to load it, conveyance of loaded car, and its terminal delivery.--Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. B. I. Holsher and Co., 466 F.Supp. 885 (894).

4. Jurisdiction of Commission and of-courts.--Because power to enforce duty of adequate service is imperative to Commission's ultimate purposes and responsibilities, Commission has jurisdiction to enforce carrier's duty under §1(4) [now §11101] to provide and furnish transportation upon reasonable request, overruling prior cases to contrary.--Winnebago Farmers Elevator Co. v. Chicago & N.W., 354 I.C.C. 859 (868-71).

Rule of 242 US 208 was not intended to apply to all actions taken by Commission to enforce §1(4) but only to those requiring carrier to obtain special equipment to fulfill its duty under Act; and this rule was nullified by enactment of §§1(10) and (11) [now §§10102 and 11121] by Transportation Act of 1920.--Id., pp. 866-7.

Commission should have primary jurisdiction in most cases involving duty to provide adequate service, in interest of uniformity and in order to obtain benefit of Commission's expertise.--Id., p. 870.

Over What Lines Transportation Afforded

20. Carrier's own lines.--Commission has jurisdiction to enforce carrier's duty under §1(4) [now §11101] to provide adequate transportation, and in view of broad definition of "transportation" in §1(3) [now §10102], term includes all instrumentalities and facilities, such as tracks; thus, Commission has power to order carrier to upgrade line serving complainant shipper.--Winnebago Farmers Elevator Co. v. Chicago & N. W., 354 I.C.C. 859 (871-2).

In determining level to which line should be upgraded, mere fact that competing elevator has access to superior facilities does not require finding that §§1(4) and 1(11) [now §11121] require same level of service in all other situations; thus, when upgrading line to handle jumbo hopper cars would require virtual reconstruction of line, expense and physical limitations of line are controlling, and suitability of track for movement of boxcars is sufficient.--Id., pp.872-3.

Where line fails to meet minimum FRA class I standards, derailments are frequent, and shipper has at times been unable to obtain sufficient rail service to carry its grain, transportation provided over line is inadequate under §1(4); and for line in question adequate service is held to be: (1) track maintained to FRA class I standards, (2) service commensurate with this level of maintenance, and (3) reasonable availability of equipment that can be accommodated on such track (i.e., boxcars).--Id., pp.874-6.

Assuming arguendo that §1(4) requires only what is reasonable under circumstances, it is reasonable under circumstances, here to require upgrading to class I level, this being minimum standard under Federal law.--Id., p.876.

While deferred maintenance is legitimate carrier policy and does not constitute deliberate downgrading of service except in certain situations, where deferred maintenance is of such degree that line requires upgrading to meet FRA class I standards, it may violate railroad's common carrier duties.--Id. p.877.

In detemining frequency of service, found that continuation of service on as needed basis is appropriate, and line need not be upgraded to level that would permit snow removal, since expense of upgrading required would be unwarranted.--Id., p.877.

Upgrading order issued despite pendency of abandonment applicaiton as to line, since to do otherwise would be to render remedy a nullity, in view of fact that after denial of prior abandonment application carrier did not attempt to repair line, and present abandonment application was filed only after shipper filed complaint as to adequacy of service.--Id., pp.879-81.

If damages are to be awarded for failure to provide adequate service, they must be fully and precisely documented and be directly related to carrier's failure to render level of service Commission requires; damages must be traced directly to carrier's failure to maintain line at FRA class I levels, and failure to provide service and equipment and resulting motor carriage must be related to analysis of precise comparisons of motor and rail rates to determine if additional costs were incurred as result of railroad's refusal to provide service and equipment.--Id., pp.881-3; thus, when shipper has not given sufficient supporting detail to establish amount of damage suffered, and figures on which request for damages is based are inconsistent, Commission cannot award damages for injuries proximately caused by railroad's failure to provide service required by §1(4).--Id., pp.882-3.

Where railroad has so extensively deferred maintenance that its line requires upgrading to meet class I standards, that maintenance policy may violate common carrier duties.--Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 735 (736).

What Embraced in Transportation to be Furnished

24. In general.--Carrier ordered to upgrade line, see Winnebago Farmers case, n.20, supra.

68. Loading and unloading.--Refusal of defendant railroad to load superphosphate on barges of specified construction at port facility, found not shown to be unjust, unreasonable, unduly preferential or prejudicial, or otherwise unlawful, when Act does not make service absolute obligation, and railroad acted reasonably where loading would involve harmful emissions of phosphate dust, and solutions proposed by complainant shipper would involve railroad's expenditure of large amounts of time and labor above that entailed in loading any other vessels.--United States Steel Corp. v. Seaboard, 356 I.C.C 481 (484).

Exceptions to Duty to Furnish Transportaion

94. Embargoes; Commission's jurisdiction.--Commission's jurisdiction over validity and reasonableness of embargoes is recognized.--Winnebago Farmers Elevator Co. v. Chicago & N. W., 354 I.C.C. 859 (869).

§11102. CLASSIFICATION OF CARRIERS

7. Classification of carriers; commodity basis.--

Foodstuffs: Where supporting shippers deal invarious citrus products or ship such commodities as tomatoes, cooking oil, shredded coconut, and health foods, "foodstuffs" adequately describes for transportaiton purposes commodities involved.--Gateway Transp. Co., Inc.--Ext.--Foodstuffs, 126 M.C.C. 406 (411).

Groceries: Commodity description "groceries and grocery story supplies" is not equivalent to description "such commodities as are dealt in or sold by wholesale, retail, and chain grocery stores" (117 MCC 9); "such commodities as are dealt in by" grocers would not place limit on class of shippers or consignees served and would border on grant of transport general commodities.--Hilt Truck Line, Inc., Petition for Modification, 125 M.C.C. 416 (417, 424).

"Groceries" are defined in 61 MCC 311.--Id., p.423.

In description "groceries and grocery store supplies", "groceries" is not subject to intended use description, but "grocery store supplies" is.--Id., p.424.

When description "grocery store supplies" fails to describe operations intended to be authorized in grandfather proceeding, certificate is modified to read "commodities dealt in by grocery stores", in order to cover articles "handled in" rather than merely "used by" grocery stores.--Id., pp.424-5.

Hides: Description "hides and byproducts thereof" adequately commodities sought to be transported: "hides" includes skins and pieces thereof, as well as trimmings, from which gluestock is made; "belly" is hide from underside of animal; "pelt" is defined as skin; and "splits" would appear to be part of hide; it should be noted that term "bellies" as used herein does not include any fresh or cured edible meats.--Cadline Transport Ltd. Com. Car. Applic., 126 M.C.C. 357 (363)*.

Iron and steel articles: Iron-and-steel articles authority may include items not on Descriptions case list (61 MCC 209, 276), since that list is descriptive; thus, unassembled firesprinkler systems are properly included in such authority, since presence of brass sprinkler heads in such systems is de minimus.--May Trucking Co. v. United States, 593 F.2d 1349 (1354)*.

Material and supplies used in: Commodity description "materials and supplies used in the manufacture of aquariums" is intended use generic descirption, and embraces those commodities which are intended, at time of movement, for use in particular type of activity, enterprise, or place specified in description and which, at time of movement, are in form or condition to be so used without further processing or manufacturing; thus, when intended use of "salvageable aquariums" is either rehabilitation of defective aquariums or their dissembly into part for reassembly of those parts into new aquariums, salvageable aquariums may be transported under materials and supplies authority.--White Contract Carrier Application, 126 M.C.C. 852 (858-9).

Parts: Applicant seeks to transport "electrical transformers and parts thereof"; no specific authority is required, however, for transportation of parts and accessories moving incidental to and at same time as authorized base commodity, so that, since there is no evidence that parts are shipped independently of base commodity, it will be sufficient to designate simply "electrical transformers" as commodity description in service authorization.--Knox Motor Service, Inc., Ext.--Transformers, 126 M.C.C. 413 (418)*.

SUBCHAPTER II--CAR SERVICE

General Nature of Duty to Supply Cars

1. Duty to furnish safe and adequate car service.--While "transportation" is broadly defined term, "car service" relates only to use to which vehicles of transportation are put, not transportation service rendered by means of them; thus, duty to provide safe and adequate car service under §1(11) [now §11121] involves vehicles which are used, but not transportation provided by means of them, so does not involve quality of track used to provide service.--Winnebago Farmers Elevator Co. v. Chicago & N. W., 354 I.C.C. 859 (871-2).

Types of Equipment

10. Special types of equipment, in general.--Rule of 242 US 208 was not intended to apply to all actions taken by Commission to enforce §1(4) [now §11101] but only to those requiring carrier to obtain special equipment to fulfill its duty under Act, and this rule was nullified by enactment of §§1(10) and (11) [now §§10102 and 11121] by Transportation Act of 1920.--Winnebago Farmers Elevator Co. v. Chicago & N. W., 354 I.C.C. 859 (866-7).

§11122. COMPENSATION AND PRACTICE

10. Allowances for use of equipment.--Compelling carriers to publish allowances for use of shipper's equipment neither exceeds nor is incompatiable with power granted Commission but is inherent in its prescribed functions under §15(15) [now §10747], and power to require publication of allowance may be implied from car service power granted Commission under §1(14) [now §11122].--Bud Antle, Inc. v. United States, 593 F.2d 865 (875-6)*.

CHAPTER 113---FINANCE

SUBCHAPTER III---COMBINATIONS

§11343. CONSOLIDATION, MERGER, AND ACQUISITION OF CONTROL

2. Construction and interpretation.--

Transactions subject to section, generally: Section 5(2) [now §11343 et seq.] is appropriate provision for dealing with unification of two or more regulated railroad enterprises as in case of consolidation or merger; §1(18) [now §10901] applies with acquisitions of certain kinds of trackage when just extension of one carrier operations rather than consolidation of two regulated carrier operations is involved.--Terminal Ry. Ala. State Docks--Operation, Moile, AL, 354 I.C.C. 747 (750).

15. Routes, rights, transferred, retained, combined.--

Dormant operating rights: In determining whether transaction under §5 [now §11343 et seq.] is consistent with public interest, carrier must establish that authority sought to be acquired is not dormant by demonstrating substantial service within area authorized, but test of substantiality does not require showing of service from every point contained within authority, and shipment to representative number of points within area suffices to refute dormancy challenge and justify §5 acquisition; however, although atomization may be contrary to precedent in motor carrier acquisition cases, same rule does not apply in gateway elimination actions, because showing that adequately meets §5(2) may not necessarily meet more stringent requirements of §207 [now §10922], since §5(2) only demands demonstration of "public interest" while §207 requires showing of "public convenience and necessity", and latter standard is higher than former.--C & H Transp. Co., Inc. v. I.C.C., 589 F.2d 565 (576)*.

Duplicate operating rights: Despite number of separate authorities that carrier holds authorizing operations between two specified points, carrier is deemed to hold only one right to operate between points, so that when carrier seeks to transfer certain of its operating authorities to another carrier, it is improper for it both to transfer and to retain essentially duplicating operating authorities; however, sale and retention of operating rights between same points may be approved where such rights authorize service over different routes or with different intermediate points, constitute separate operation, cover transportation of different commodities, or provide completely different service.--Maxwell Co., Petition for Declaratory Order, 126 M.C.C. 166 (169).

Rights embodied in grant of direct service authority, which eliminates gateway, are severable from all, or portion of, underlying irregular-route authority, following standards of §§5(2) [now §11343 et seq.] and 212(b) [now §10926], with each case to be considered on own merits.--Id., p.171.

48. Purchase.--

Section 10901 and §11343 authorizations: Section 5(2) [now §11343 et seq.] is appropriate provision for dealing with unification of two or more regulated railroad enterprises as in case of consolidation or merger, and §1(18) [now §10901] applies to acquisitions of certain kinds of trackage when just extension of one carrier operations rather than consolidation of two regulated carrier operations is involved; thus, when acquisition of connection switching trackage is exempt from Commission jurisdiction under §1(18)(d) [now §10907], and transaction involves merely transfer of rail yards from one carrier to another without any change in operations, transaction is also exempt from §5(2).--Terminal Ry. Ala. State Docks--Operations, Mobile, AL, 354 I.C.C. 747 (750).

50. Leases.--Employee protective conditions imposed in lease cases, see Mendocino Coast Ry., Inc.--Lease and Operate case, §11347, n.1, infra.

56. Trackage rights.--Employee protection imposed in trackage rights cases, see Norfolk & W. Ry. Co.--Trackage Rights--BN case, §11347, n.1, infra.

§11344. CONSOLIDATION, MERGER, AND ACQUISITION OF CONTROL: GENERAL PROCEDURE AND CONDITIONS OF APPROVAL

5. Public interest, generally.--Showing that adequately meets §5(2) [now §11343 et seq.] may not necessarily meet more stringent requirements of §207 [now §10922], since §5(2) only demands demonstration of "public interest" while §207 requires showing of "public convenience and necessity", and latter standard is higher than former.--C & H Transp. Co. v. I.C.C., 589 F.2d 565 (576)*.

§11345. CONSOLIDATION, MERGER, AND ACQUISITION OF CONTROL: RAIL CARRIER PROCEDURE

Consolidation Procedures

5. Waiver of.--While 49 CFR 1111.2(b)(1)(ii), exhibit B, requires applicants to show for each connecting line-haul carrier at each major interchange point annual carloads handled between each origin-destination State pair, when scope of proposed transaction is sizable and required table would be 750 pages long if required in its entirety, Commission waives requirements of table B with respect to movements of less than 100 cars per year, since such information would not aid in evaluation of proposed transaction; but since full requirements of section 1111.2(b)(1)(ii) may have relevance to smaller consolidaiton proposals, it is retained in consolidation procedures.--Southern Pac. Transp. Co.--Pur.--Chicago, R. I. & P., 354 I.C.C. 760 (761).

While 49 CFR 1111.2(a)(8) requires map of not less than 20 miles to the inch, this is preferable minimum, and no formal waiver is required to allow applicants to use map of 100 miles scale, although smaller transactions would require more detailed maps.--Id., pp.761-2.

§11347. EMPLOYEE PROTECTIVE ARRANGEMENTS IN TRANSACTIONS INVOLVING RAIL CARRIERS

1. In general.--When involved acquisition of yards tracks is beyond Commission's jurisdiction under §1(18)(d) [now §10907] and §5(2) [now §11343 et seq.], there is no basis for imposition of labor protective conditions.--Terminal Ry. Ala. State Docks--Operation, Mobile, AL, 354 I.C.C. 747 (750).

When §5(2)(f) [now §11347] requires employee protective conditions no less protective than those previously imposed under §5 and under §405 of Rail Passenger Service Act, and in past Commission imposed Oklahoma conditions, which do not contain sections 4 and 5 of Washington Agreement, in cases involving extended lease agreement between railroads, Norfolk & W. conditions (354 ICC 605), which are imposed in trackage rights cases, are, as modified, appropriate for imposition in lease cases.--Mendocino Coast Ry., Inc.--Lease and Operate, 354 I.C.C. 732 (733-4).

In trackage rights case, Oregon Short Line employee protective conditions, as modified (354 ICC 584), are properly imposed, since operative language of §5(2)(f) [now §11347] is almost identical to that of §1a(4) [now §10903].--Norfolk & W. Ry. Co.--Trackage Rights--BN, 354 I.C.C. 605 (606); text of imposed conditions printed.--Id., pp.610-5.

Since in past Commission imposed different protective conditions in different types of §5(2) cases, e.g., Oklahoma conditions, lacking sections 4 and 5 of Washington Agreement, in trackage rights cases, and New Orleans conditions in merger-control cases, and since Congress did not indicate any disapproval of this fact when it passed 4R Act (P.L. 94-210), Commission need not now impose sections 4 and 5 of Washington Agreement in trackage rights cases; resulting arrangement is not less protective of employee interests than old §5(2)(f) arrangements, and since no consolidation of forces is required in ordinary trackage rights cases there is no need for them to be imposed.--Id., pp. 607-8.

SUBCHAPTER 115---FEDERAL-STATE RELATIONS

§11501. COMMISSION AUTHORITY OVER INTRASTATE TRANSPORTATION

2. Construction and interpretation.--While language of §13(5) as enacted was ambiguous, recodification of Act, while making no substantive changes, clarifies provisions of section; thus, under §11501, as recodified, it is clear that when Commission obtains exclusive jurisdiction after expiration of 120-day period of State inaction, it cannot treat intrastate rate filing like interstate rates, but must follow procedures set forth in §11501 for prescription of intrastate rates.--Carolina, C. & O. Ry. v. I.C.C., 593 F.2d 1305 (1310-1)*.

5. Jurisdiction.--When State agency has not acted finally within 120 days on proposed intrastate rate increase, Commission obtains exclusive authority over controversy pursuant to §11501(b)(1), but "exclusive authority" given Commission is not plenary, but rather expressly confined by §11501(b) to prescribing intrastate rate under circumstances set out in subsection (b)(1) and substantive standards set out in §11501(a); thus, once Commission ousts State of jurisdiction, it cannot treat intrastate rate increase like interstate rates and permit filing of intrastate increase directly with Commission under §15(8), now §10707. Commission order rejecting intrastate tariff for lack of jurisdiction, affirmed.--Carolina, C. & O. Ry. v. I.C.C., 593 F.2d 1305 (1313)*.

Section 13(5), now §11501, operates exclusively as jurisdictional provision, and cannot be read as operative cross-reference to §10707.--Id., pp.1311-2.

CHAPTER 117---ENFORCEMENT: INVESTIGATIONS, RIGHTS AND REMEDIES

§11701. GENERAL AUTHORITY

General Nature of Proceedings

2. Jurisdiction to entertain complaint.--When proceeding was initiated upon complaint pursuant to §13(1) [now §11701], but after complainant learned that defendant had raised issue of Commission's alleged lack of jurisdiction complaint brought action in federal district court based on same facts, and court stayed proceeding before it so as to assure that there would be forum in which to try case if Commission found no jurisdiction, case was not referred to Commission by court, and issue of Commission's primary jurisdiction was not raised, since proceeding arose upon original complaint to Commission.--Winnebago Farmers Elevator Co. v. Chicago & N. W., 354 I.C.C. 859 (859-60, 864).

General Nature of Findings

29. General revenue cases; general issues, findings.--In proceeding initiated to examine rail rate structure on grain and grain products, intent being to concentrate on possible self-defeating nature of general rate increases, disparities and distortions resulting from application of general rate increases along with their uneven effects on individual railroads, and effect of such general increases on carrier incentive to service commensurate with shipper requirements, found: general increases may at times irreversibly precipitate diversion of already profitable traffic in areas where there is meaningful motor and barge competition and especially where present rates are well in excess of costs; for this reason, selective rate adjustments should be encouraged, to provide mechanism for carriers to begin aligning rates more closely with costs in light of competitive considerations.--Investigation of Railroad Frt. Rate Structure--Grain, 345 I.C.C. 2975 (2980, 3006-13, 3026).

Evidence

135. Res judicata; stare decisis.--While in finding that Commission has jurisdiction to enforce duty to provide adequate service under §1(4) [now §11101] Commission overrules longstanding Commission precedent, administrative agency is not inextricably bound by its past decisions or policies since this would deter necessary flexibility, and Commission may, in light of reconsideration of relevant facts and its mandate, alter its past interpretation and overturn past administrative rulings and practice.--Winnebago Farmers Elevators Co. v. Chicago & N. W., 354 I.C.C. 859 (870-1).

§11702. ENFORCEMENT BY THE COMMISSION

5. Enforcement actions.--While voluntary cessation of allegedly illegal conduct does not deprive court of jurisdiction since controversy may remain to be settled, case may be found moot if defendant can demonstrate no reasonable expectation that wrong will be repeated; thus, when §222(b)(1) [now §11701] confers authority on Commission to seek order for future compliance with Act, and Commission alleges that defendants commonly owned certificated motor carrier and consolidating company are operated as single transportation enterprise and charge for consolidating service without tariff covering that service on file in violation of §§216(b), (d) and 217(b), but defendant shows that it is selling its operating rights to other carriers, there is no significant threat of future violations, and injunctive relief pursuant to §222(b)(1) is unwarranted.--I.C.C. v. B & T Transp. Co., 467 F.Supp. 987 (988-9).

§11705. RIGHTS AND REMEDIES OF PERSONS INJURED BY CERTAIN CARRIERS

2. Construction and interpretation.--While §204a(5) [now §11705] gives Commission primary jurisdiction to determine whether rate has been unjust and unreasonable, and §204a(6) [now §11705] does not require prior determination by Commission that rates charged are in excess of filed tariff, §204a(2) [now §11706] does not confer on Commission right to sue for recovery of damages; legislative history of 1965 amendment to §204a is void of intent to confer standing on Commission, parens patreae, to seek damages for benefit of injured shipper, and section cannot be construed as authorizing action at law by Commission for recovery of charges made by common carrier in violation of statute.--I.C.C. v. B & T Transp. Co., 467 F.Supp. 987 (989-90).

To Whom Right of Action Accrues

16. Standing of Commission.--While statute authorizes Commission to determine whether there has been violation of statute and to seek injunction relief against prospective violations, it does not confer upon Commission right to sue for recovery of damages; thus, when Commission alleges that defendants commonly owned certificated motor carrier and consolidating company are operated as single transportation enterprise and charge for consolidating service without tariff covering that service on file in violation of §§216(b), (d) and 217(b), and seeks recovery of consolidation charges in excess of those contained in applicable tariff, §204a(2) [now §11706] does not authorize Commission to bring action seeking recovery of damages using Commission's prior determination of unreasonableness of practice in question as predicate for that action, although section does authorize injured party (i.e., shipper) to bring such action after Commission makes its determination.--I.C.C. v. B & T Transp. Co., 467 F.Supp. 987 (989-90).

Failure to Furnish Transportation

111. In general.--In case of failure to provide adequate service under §1(4) [now §11101], where Commission orders carrier to upgrade line, damages must be traced directly to failure to render level of service required, be fully and precisely documented, and originate in carrier's failure to supply appropriate equipment or to maintain line at FRA class I standards; thus, when shipper has not given sufficient supporting detail to establish amount of damage suffered, and figures on which request for damages is based are inconsistent, Commission cannot award damages for injuries proximately caused by railroad's failure to provide service required by §1(4).--Winnebago Farmers Elevator Co. v. Chicago & N. W., 354 I.C.C. 859 (891-3).

Unreasonable Rates and Charges

120. In general.--Since §204a(5) [now §11705] provides that Commission has primary jurisdiction to determine whether rate has been unjust and unreasonable, court is without jurisdiction to determine reasonableness of defendants' rates within meaning of §§216(b), (d).--I.C.C. v. B & T Transp. Co., 467 F.Supp. 987 (989).

Tariff Violations

193. Overcharges.--Section 204a(6) [now §11705] does not require prior determination by Commission that rates charged are in excess of filed tariff before action at law is brought, but question whether defendants commonly owned certificated motor carrier and consolidating company are operated as single transportation enterprise and charge for consolidating service in excess of carrier's filed tariff, appears to raise factual questions requiring both expert consideration and consistency of resolution as part of uniform transportation policy; thus, case falls within primary jurisdiction of Commission, and court is without jurisdiction to determine issue.--I.C.C. v. B & T Transp. Co., 487 F.Supp. 987 (989-90).

When railroad effectively flagged out from increased joint rate so that filed tariff was not lawfully filed with respect to it, charges collected by it under that tariff were overcharges within meaning of §16(3)(g) [now §11705], and fact that Commission subsequently found joint rate increase reasonable did not convert unauthorized tariff retroactively into authorized tariff; but since it would be disruptive for railroad to continue to charge its preceding rate after Commission's determination of reasonableness of rate increases, and while each increase was unlawful as to railroad at time of filing and gave rise to potential claim for overcharges, that claim is limited to period prior to Commission's determination of reasonableness of increase.--Axinn & Sons Lbr. Co. Inc. v. Long Island R. Co., 466 F.Supp. 993 (998)*.

Where there is no claim of discriminatory rates, that filing of joint rate increases is merely voidable rather than void, or for equitable restitution based on unjust enrichment of railroad, shipper's claim is based on statutorily created action for recovery of overcharges in excess of properly filed rates and no equitable grounds exist to defeat it.--Id., p.997.

When §16(3)(g) [now §11705] defines overcharges as those charges exceeding tariffs "lawfully on file" with Commission, tariff is not "lawfully on file" when it has not been filed and published in accordance with procedures dictated by §6; thus, when railroad effectively flagged out from joint rate increase, filed increase tariff was "unlawful" with respect to it, and charges collected by it under that tariff were overcharges.--Id., p. 996.

250. Attorney's fees.--Where Commission finds carrier violates §1(4) [now §11101] duty to provide adequate service and orders carrier to upgrade line, but shipper does not make sufficient showing for award of damages, Commission has no power to make order awarding costs and attorney's fees to shipper.--Winnebago Farmers Elevator Co. v. Chicago & N. W., 354 I.C.C. 859 (883).

§11706. LIMITATION ON ACTIONS BY AND AGAINST COMMON CARRIERS

In general

2. Construction and interpretation.--While statute authorized Commission to determine whether there has been violation of statute and to seek injunctive relief against prospective violations, it does not confer upon Commission right to sue for recovery of damages; thus, when Commission alleges that defendants commonly owned certificated motor carrier and consolidating company are operated as single transportation entrprise and charge for consolidating service without tariff covering that service on file in violation of §§216(b), (d) and 217(b), and seeks recovery of consolidation charges in excess of those contained in applicable tariff, §204a(2) [now §11706] does not authorize Commission to bring action seeking recovery of damages using Commission's prior determination of unreasonableness of practice in question as predicate for that action, although section does authorize injured party (i.e., shipper) to bring such action after Commission makes its determination.--I.C.C. v. B & T Transp. Co., 467 F.Supp. 987 (989-90).

Tolling the Statute

26. Special docket applications.--Under 16(3)(b) [now §11706] Commission has jurisdiction over only complaint regarding shipments completed within two years from date of filing complaint, although under rule 25 [now 23] complaint filed within six months of denial of special docket application related back to date of original filing of that application.--Cities Service Oil Co. v. Soo Line R. Co., 356 I.C.C. 838 (839).

Claims For Damages Other Than Overcharges

80. In general.--Where carrier sues to recover demurrage and storage charges, and, while suit is stayed, shipper files complaint seeking order authorizing waiver of collection of charges or alternatively administrative ruling to assist court, under §16(3)(b) [now §11706] Commission has jurisdiction only over complaints regarding shipments completed within two years from date of filing complaint, although under rule 25 [now 23] complaint filed within six months of denial of special docket application relates back to date of original filing of that application; and, while complaint was filed more than 90 days after carrier's institution of suit so that complaint does not relate further back to become coextensive with shipments at issue in suit, in view of alternative request for ruling in aid of court, Commission's determination of issues will not be in form of order for affirmative relief, but rather in form of administrative ruling to assist court.--Cities Service Oil Co. v. Soo Line R. Co., 356 I.C.C. 838 (839).

Action for Overcharges

94. In general.--When for purposes of three-year limitation period imposed by §16(3)(c), §16(3)(e) [now both §11706] provides that cause of action accrues upon delivery or tender of delivery, this provision does not provide ordinary statutory time bar against enforcement of existing right but instead creates right and sets date of its extinction, so that ordinary tolling provisions applicable to traditional statute of limitations are inapplicable, and §§16(3)(c) and (e) are to be read literally, extinguishing, not merely barring, right to recover at end of three-year period; thus, when railroad effectively flagged out from increased joint rate so that filed tariffs were not lawfully filed with respect to it, rendering charges collected by it under tariff overcharges, plaintiff shippers' recovery of overcharges is limited to those accruing on deliveries made within three-year period.--Axinn & Sons Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Long Island R. Co., 466 F.Supp. 993 (1000-1)*.

Extension of Limitation Period

100. After suit by carrier.--While complaint was filed more than 90 days after carrier's institution of suit so that under §16(3)(d) [now §11706] complaint does not relate further back to become coextensive with shipments at issue in suit, in view of alternative request for ruling in aid of court, Commission's determination of issues will not be in form of order for affirmative relief, but rather in form of administrative ruling to assist court.--Cities Service Oil Co. v. Soo Line R. Co., 356 I.C.C. 838 (839).

Accrual of Cause of Action

106. Time of accrual, in general.--When for purposes of three-year limitation period imposed by §16(3)(c) [now §11706] §16(3)(e) [now §11706] provides that cause of action accrues upon delivery, this provision does not provide ordinary statutory time bar against enforcement of existing right but instead creates right and sets date of its extinction, so that ordinary tolling provisions applicable to traditional statute of limitations are inapplicable, and §§16(3)(c) and (e) are to be read literally, extinguishing, not merely barring, right to recover at end of three-year period; thus, when railroad effectively flagged out from increased joint rate so that filed tariffs were not lawfully filed with respect to it, rendering charges collected by its under tariff overcharges, plaintiff shippers' recovery of overcharges is limited to those accruing on deliveries made within three-year period.--Axinn & Sons Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Long Island R. Co., 466 F.Supp. 993 (1000-1)*.

§11707. LIABILITY OF COMMON CARRIERS UNDER RECEIPTS AND BILLS OF LADING

Limitation of Liability

68. In general.--While shippers are charged with notice of terms, conditions, and regulations contained in tariff schedule pertaining to carrier's liability which in turn affect rates charged carriage of goods, carrier in order properly to limit its liability must do more than merely show that it maintains appropriate tariff schedules with Commission, since carrier's arbitrary limitation of liability for full actual damages is not effective unless shipper enters into agreement limiting that liability as result of certain specified action in respect to voluntary valuation of shipper's goods; thus, carrier cannot limit liability by implication, and there must be absolute, deliberate, and well-informed choice by shipper.--Anton v. Greyhound Van Lines, Inc., 591 F.2d 103 (108).

SUPPLEMENTAL ACTS

5 USC

Declaratory orders.--Section 554(e) permits Commission, in its sound discretion, to issue declaratory orders to terminate controversy or remove uncertainty; and where petitioner clearly states issues involved, and Commission is not formulating rule which would require compliance with rulemaking provisions of APA, including publication in Federal Register for purpose of receiving representations from additional parties, petition of another carrier for leave to intervene is nevertheless granted, in order to broaden access to proceedings.--Maxwell Co. Petition for Declaratory Order, 126 M.C.C. 166 (166-7).

Hearing; whether required.--Type of hearing designated is matter within Commission's discretion; thus, when abandonment application had already been subject of one oral hearing, and purpose of reopening of proceeding was not to develop record anew, but simply to update it and receive evidence on financial effects of applicant's merger with another railroad, for this limited purpose written evidence was adequate.--Chicago & E. I. R. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 789 (792).

Notice.--When Commission published general notice in Federal Register that it was considering formulation of possible legislative amendments to be proposed to Congress, but halfway through proceeding Commission changed its mind and issued new rules and procedures for licensing and entry control of tour brokers, Commission failed to provide sufficient notice of proposed rulemaking under §553(b).--National Tour Brokers Assn. v. United States, 591 F.2d 896 (899)*; neither did "notice" provide reference to legal authority under which rule is proposed, required by §553(b)(2).--Id., p.900; nor did "notice" include terms or substance of proposed rule, required by §553(b)(3), since this requirement is to insure that interested parties are accurately apprised of purpose of proceeding in which subjects and issues are weighed.--Id., p.900.

Neither were parties given actual notice of proposed rulemaking under §553(b), since statement of Chairman of Commission at oral hearing to effect that if agency found entry controls no longer necessary, should it seek legislation or some other course of action, was clearly not statement that rulemaking proceeding was taking place, but rather inquiry whether it would be advisable to undertake rulemaking.--Id., p.901.

Commission's argument that promulgation of final rules constituted "notice", period of reconsideration "comment" period, and order denying reconsideration promulgation of final rules, is rejected; §553(b) speaks specifically about "proposed" rules, and "final" rule cannot be proposed; furthermore, purpose of requirement is that parties be able to comment on rule in formative stage not in concrete form; and Commission's argument in fact defends procedure conducted in inverse order from that contemplated by APA. Remanded.--Id., pp.901-3.

BANKRUPTCY ACT

§205. REORGANIZATION OF RAILROADS ENGAGED IN INTERSTATE COMMERCE

6. Jurisdiction.--In view of fact that §77 manifests intention of Congress to place reorganization under leadership of Commission, subject to degree of participation by court, Commission has primary jurisdiction over proposed tender offer for certain percentage of debtor's first mortage bonds, since proceeds used in offer are integral part of overall plan of reorganization approved by Commission.--Boston & Maine Corp., Reorganization--Tender Offer, 354 I.C.C. 621 (622)*.

Critical factor in determining dividing line between jurisdiction of court and Commission is whether transaction constitutes part of reorganization plan; thus, proposals affecting configuration of debtor's rail system or presenting direct questions as to its earning power or resulting capital structure, including ratio of debt to stock, amount of fixed as distinguished from contingent interest, and kind of capital structure needed to survive, are reserved by Congress for Commission.--Id., pp.622-3.

46. Damage claims.--Personal injury and property damage claims are classified as operating expenses because such risks attach to process of earning income.--Boston & Maine Corp., Reorganization--Tender Offer, 354 I.C.C. 621 (628)*.

48. Protection of employees.--Claims for injuries to employees as classified by §77(a) are directed to be paid out of assets of railroad as operating expenses.--Boston & Maine Corp., Reorganization--Tender Offer, 354 I.C.C. 621 (627-8)*.

57. Mortgages.--Tender offer for first mortgage bonds, where proceeds to be used for offer subject to same lien as property sold, see Boston & Maine Corp., Reorganization--Tender Offer case, n.85, infra.

85. Bonds and bondholders.--Proposed tender offer for certain percentage of debtor's first mortgage bonds adopted, when proceeds to be used come from sale of debtor's commuter rail properties pursuant to reorganization plan and are subject to same mortgage indenture securing bonds, and when approval will result in reduction of debt and fixed interest, simplify mortgage structure, and improve debtor's ability to attract new investment and loans.--Boston & Maine Corp., Reorganization--Tender Offer, 354 I.C.C. 621 (623)*.

Reduction of secured indebtedness of debtor cannot be viewed as other than constructive achievement in its financial condition, and by improving borrowing capacity of railroad will foster desired rehabilitation.--Id., p.623.

When proceeds to be used in tender offer originate from sale of mortgaged property and are thus burdened by same liens as were properties, reorganization court's discretion disposition of proceeds of sale is restricted lest it amount to unconstitutional taking of mortgage holders' property in violation of 5th Amendment; thus, when subsidization of operations with proceeds from sale of mortgaged assets is proposed, clearest evidence is required that it is imperative to obtain funds, that funds cannot be obtained elsewhere, that there is high degree of likelihood that debtor can be reorganized within reasonable time, and that secured creditors whose security is being compulsorily loaned will not be injured, and public interest in railroad's continued operations is only one factor to be taken into account and is not allowed to outweigh all others.--Id., pp.624-5.

Where law judge ordered reservation of part of proceeds to be used for tender offer, in order to cover certain present and potential priority claims and for deferred maintenance, improvements, and modernization, but law judge failed adequately to consider prejudice to bondholder's rights, which consideration requires determination that plant subject to superior lien is worth no less after additions and betterments than before sale and reinvestment, and funds needed for essential railroad purposes are available elsewhere and reorganization will not be jeopardized by failure to reserve funds, reservation of funds for deferred maintenance, etc., was improper; and since claims for employee injuries and other personal injury and property damage claims can be paid out of operating revenues, and reorganization court has not yet decided whether to classify other claims in question as senior priority matters, reservation of funds for priority claims is allowed only to extent court will so classify claims, and court will have power to remove reserve.--Id., pp.626-8.

If insufficient funds remain after retirement of certain first mortgage bonds, it is possible to devise new first mortgage.--Id., p.627.

SHERMAN ACT

§1. TRUSTS, ETC., IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE ILLEGAL; EXCEPTION; PENALTY

11. Purpose; interpretation generally.--In action seeking injunction against collective formulation and publication of intrastate rates by defendant motor carrier rate bureaus as violation of §1 of Sherman Act, absence of actual compulsion renders state action doctrine unavailable as defense despite fact that State law permits this activity; and Noerr-Pennington doctrine, which holds that concerted action aimed solely at influencing public officials does not violate Sherman Act, is inapplicable when collective rate formulation constitutes independently cognizable acts outside scope of First Amendment protection.--United States v. Southern Motor Carriers Rate Conf., 467 F.Supp. 471 (478-85)*.

In view of facts that guiding principle behind all Sherman Act jurisprudence is protection of competition and price fixing among competitors is per se violation of §1, when collective intrastate rate publicaiton at issue is correctly described as price fixing, State participation in anticompetitive scheme does not render private party non-actor, and collective rate publication fits description of naked price restraint, violation of §1 is shown; any arrangement whose purpose or effect is to inhibit price competition is illegal, and such arrangement need not be outright cartelization so long as it brings about, or is intended to bring about, raising, depressing, fixing, pegging, or stablizing of prices. Injunction issued.--Id., pp. 485-7.

17. Legality of prohibited combinations, permitted under State law.--While State law permits collective formulation and publication of intrastate rates by defendant motor carrier rate bureaus, absence of actual compulsion renders state action doctrine unavailable as defense; this activity is found to violate §1 of Sherman Act and is enjoined.--United States v. Southern Motor Carriers Rate Conf., 467 F.Supp. 471 (478-84)*.

JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE

§1336. INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION'S ORDERS

2. Construction and interpretation.--Review of Commission order denying reparations lies with one-judge district court, with appeal to court of appeals.--Bud Antle, Inc. v. United States, 593 F.2d 865 (867)*.

§2344. REVIEW OF ORDERS; TIME, NOTICE, ETC.

7. Arguments advanced.--When issue was not presented properly to review board, it is unavailable to shipper in judicial review of review board's decision.--Aluminum Co. of America v. I.C.C., 581 F.2d 1004 (1007)*.

NATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY

§4332. COOPERATION OF AGENCIES; REPORTS; AVAILABILITY OF INFORMATION; RECOMMENDATIONS; INTERNATIONAL AND NATIONAL COORDINATION OF EFFORTS

5. Environmental impact statement, when required.--Where abandonment would result in minimally increased fuel consumption, roadway deterioration, air pollution, and bridge traffic, insignificant environmental impact would result; in determining significance of increased fuel use, Commission relies on analyses based on two alternative thresholds, ten-percent increase over annual statewide diesel fuel use, and absolute increase of 250 million gallons annually, and if neither level is reached, it is presumed that increase is insignificant.--Baltimore & O. R. Co. Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 798 (800-1).

RAIL PASSENGER SERVICE ACT

§562. FACILITY AND SERVICE AGREEMENTS

2. Construction and interpretation.--While Amtrak asserts that Commission, in proceeding under §402(a), may only order Amtrak to accept access to "necessary" facilities, i.e., those specified by Amtrak, §402(a) calls upon Commission to require railroads, in event disagreement exists, to provide Amtrak with access to tracks and facilities if Commission finds that "doing so is necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act", so that when Commission found that ordering Amtrak's use of terminal was necessary and that Amtrak should enjoy access to terminal on same basis as other users, Commission's order was fully consistent with jurisdiction vested with Commission by §402(a).--Amtrak and Wash. Term. Co. Tracks and Facilities, 348 I.C.C. 859 (862)*.

5. Compensation, determination of just and reasonable.--Commission did not err in failing to consider quality of service as major factor in determining amount of compensation payable by Amtrak in excess of incremental costs, when Commission found that most of terminal could be disposed of if Amtrak did not use it and that for purposes of Act, nearly all of costs of terminal were incremental.--Amtrak and Wash. Term. Co., Tracks and Facilities, 348 I.C.C. 859 (863, 870-1)*.

In determining compensation to be paid, Commission examines mail revenues, quasi-excessing of Visitor Center property in terminal, business cars, liability costs, membership of board of managers, capital improvements, and parking.--Id., pp. 864-72.

REGIONAL RAIL REORGANIZATION ACT

§744. TERMINATION AND CONTINUATION OF RAIL SERVICES

2. Construction and interpretation.--Section 304(a) as originally enacted specifically excluded lines in Final System Plan from summary discontinuance procedures, and §304(e), added by P.L. 94-210, does not amend §304(a) by eliminating this exclusion; furthermore, §304(g) refers to abandonments not discontinuances; therefore, §304 does not authorize Conrail summarily to discontinue passenger service over final system plan line, and it must proceed under §13a(1) [now §10908] procedures.--Illinois v. Conrail, 589 F.2d 1327 (1331-4).

RULES OF PRACTICE

Rule 21. Replies and motions; (a) Time for filing.--When two parties file motion for leave to file joint reply to replies of opposing parties, and these replies raise new issues, filing of joint reply is allowed.--Boston & Maine Corp., Reorganization--Tender Offer, 354 I.C.C. 621 (622)*.

Rule 23. Informal complaints seeking damages; (e) Special-docket proceedings.--Special docket applications are basically uncontested proceedings handled in same manner as informal complaints under procedure provided in Rules of Practice; these proceedings do not have any value as precedent, but can only be decided by following precedent established by Commission in formal proceedings.--Cities Service Oil Co. v. Soo Line R. Co., 356 I.C.C. 838 (841).

(f) Six Months' Rule.--Under §16(3)(b) [now §11706] Commission has jurisdiction only over complaints regarding shipments completed within two years from date of filing complaint, although under rule 25(e) and (f) [now rule 23] complaint filed within six months of denial of special docket application relates back to date of original filing of that application.--Cities Service Oil Co. v. Soo Line R. Co., 356 I.C.C. 838 (839).

Rule 38. Protests against applications.--When applicant contends that protestant is not proper party to proceeding because protestant's letter of protest was not served upon parties as required by rule 38, but applicant has fully responded to protestant's petition for review, applicant's motion to strike protestant's petition is denied.--Terminal Ry. Ala. State Docks--Operation, Mobile, AL, 354 I.C.C. 747 (748).

Rule 72. Witness examination; order of procedure.--Protestants' argument, that public did not receive adequate opportunity to be heard at hearing because their witnesses were not allowed to testify before applicant had presented its evidence, is rejected; law judge's ruling was not abuse of discretion accorded him under rule 74 [now 72] and did not result in denial of due process.--Chicago & E.I.R. Co.--Abandonment, 354 I.C.C. 789 (792-3).

Rule 98. Administrative appeals--rail proceedings; (c) Time for filing.--When §17(9)(c) [now §10327] and rule 98(c) establish 20-day time limit for appeals to be filed after service of decision, but applicant's petition for reconsideration is eight days late, and applicant requests that if petition is considered late-filed it be treated as part of its reply to protestant's petition seeking review, held: since two simultaneously filed pleadings are interrelated, protestant's motion to strike is denied, and petition is treated as part of motion to strike/reply.--Terminal Ry. Ala. State Docks--Operation, Mobile, AL, 354 I.C.C. 747 (748).

FOREWORD

Public Law 95-473, an Act to "revise, codify and enact without substantive change the Interstate Commerce Act," was signed by President Carter on October 17, 1978. (92 Stat. 1337). The new law constitutes a substantial revision and reorganization of the laws administered by the Interstate Commerce Commission. It repeals the Interstate Commerce Act (49 U.S.C. §1 et seq., §301 et seq., §901 et seq., and §1001 et seq.) and certain related statutes. These laws have now been replaced by a new subititle IV of title 49 of the United States Code, 49 U.S.C. §10101 through §11916.

This issue of the Advance Bulletin reflects Commission cases annotated under the new codification Cross reference tables from the old Interstate Commerce Act to the new codification will be found in Volume II of the Advance Bulletin beginning on page 1323.

The Advance Bulletin supplements the Commission's bound volumes of Interstate Commerce Acts Annotated. This issue is Number 5 of Volume III. All of the annotations in Volume II will appear in the bound volume 23 of the Interstate Commerce Acts Annotated. Volume 23 is now closed with annotations under the old Interstate Commerce Act now repealed by P. L. 95-473. Volume 24 will reflect annotations under the new revision (Subtitle IV of Title 49 United States Code).

A number of Bulletins will constitute a volume; and the pages will be numbered consecutively within each volume rather than within individual Bulletins. To facilitate the location of subject headings, the Table of Contents of each Bulletin may ultimately be removed to form a cumulative table for the volume. The Bulletin is published quarterly.

Members of the public, attorneys and practitioners, the I.C.C. staff may consult the consolidated file from which the Bulletin is compiled in Room 3378 of the I.C.C. Building For cases which appear in the Bulletin only as reconsidered or appealed, prior citations and annotations may be obtained by consulting the consolidated file or by calling Mr. John F. McMorrow or Mr. Robert A. Emery, (202-275-7143).

Where a Bulletin case is marked with an asterisk (*), its history may be found in the Table of Cases at the back of the Bulletin.

The Advance Bulletin is prepared in the Annotations Unit under the direction of Mr. Jack R. Long, Chief, Reference Services Branch, Section of Applications Evaluation and Authorities, Office of Proceedings, Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C. 20423. Comments and suggestions regarding improvement of the format of the Bulletin will be welcomed, and may be made in writing or by calling (202-275-7221).

§10101. TRANSPORTATION POLICY

1. Recodification of the Act.--While enactment of revised Act was not intended to work any substantive change in Act, new language may serve as guide to meaning of original Act; thus, codification of §202(c) as §10523 clarifies section by showing that terminal area services need not be provided in identical manner as line-haul service.--Purolator Courier Corp. v. I.C.C., 598 F.2d 225 (227)*.

Recodified Act specifically continues in force orders issued pursuant to old Act.--Id., pp. 226-7.

Codification of Act does not impair precedent value of earlier judicial decisions and other interpretations; other interpretations presumably include administrative interpretations.--Id., p. 227.

5. National transportation policy, in general.--

Applications, operating authority: In reviewing Commission's grant of motor carrier certificate, guideline to be used in determining whether Commission has acted in accordance with discretion delegated to it is the National Transportation Policy [now §10101].--Packer Transp. Co. v. United States, 596 F.2d 891 (893)*.

§10102(4) DEFINITIONS--COMMON CARRIER

2b. Conrail.--Under 45 USC §741(b) Conrail is deemed common carrier by railroad under §1(3) [now §10102]; Congress did not intend that once created Conrail would be treated any differently from other railroads, and nothing suggests that Conrail is to be immune from regulation which is not financially favorable to it.--Conrail v. I.C.C., 590 F.2d 937 (941)*.

§10102(12). DEFINITIONS--MOTOR CONTRACT CARRIER

5. Contract carrier defined.--While common carrier is obliged to serve general public, contract carrier need only provide service to one person or limited number of persons, and carrier meets statutory requirements of §203(a) (15) [now §10102(12)] if its proposed service, although available to potentially limitless number of customers, is restricted by precise need of class of customers; thus, applicant's armored car service constitutes highly specialized service for limited class of customers and is therefore contract carrier service.--Internatl. Detective Serv., Inc. v. I.C.C., 595 F.2d 862 (865-6)*.

CHAPTER 103---INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

§10306. CONDUCT OF PROCEEDINGS

10. Entry of decisions.--That Commission may provide period of time between issuance of its orders and their effectiveness does not alter administrative finality of such orders or fact that those against whom orders are entered are bound to comply with them when they become effective; thus, orders prescribing divisions entered against Conrail's predecessor-in-interest bankrupt railroads were administratively final on date on which petitions for reconsideration were denied, and Conrail was bound by those orders, despite fact that Commission delayed their effective date until after date on which Conrail assumed rail operations of its predecessors.--Conrail v. I.C.C., 590 F.2d 937 (942)*.

SUBCHAPTER II--ADMINISTRATIVE

§10321. POWERS

19. Carrier management in general.--Change in location of carrier's principal offices can be effected at any time without Commission approval and at sole discretion of management.--Capitol Corp.--Control--Prunty Motor Exp., 127 M.C.C. 518 (529).

22. Contracts of carriers.--It is not within province of Commission to enforce private agreements.--Aluminum Co. of America v. St. Louis-S. F. Ry. Co., 357 I.C.C. 96 (98).

§10323. REHEARING, REARGUMENT, AND RECONSIDERATION--NONRAIL PROCEEDINGS

15. Reopening; reconsideration.--Petitions for reconsideration are basic feature of administrative decision making and are explicitly provided for in §17(6) [now §10323]; while administrative order is not final for purposes of judicial review until outstanding petitions for reconsideration have been disposed of, Commission order is effective despite pendency of petitions for reconsideration, so that it is reviewable in court without need of first filing such petitions.--Pennsylvania v. I.C.C., 590 F.2d 1187 (1193, 1195)*.

§10327. COMMISSION ACTION AND APPELLATE PROCEDURE IN RAIL CARRIER PROCEEDINGS

Reopening; Rehearing; Reargument; or Reconsideration

52. Material error.--When district court found error of law in Commission decision and remanded, and Supreme Court vacated to allow timely appeal of district court order to court of appeals, Commission had jurisdiction to reopen proceeding under §17(9)(g) [now §10327] since district court's opinion demonstrated material error in Commission's prior decision.--Sterling Colo. Beef Co. v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 357 I.C.C. 446 (447)*.

Section 17(9)(g) states that Commission "may, at any time" reopen on grounds of material error, and action here taken is consistent with Congressional policy in §17(9)(g), which vests in Commission continuing authority to take prompt measures to correct material error; however, Commission will not reopen when that action leads to collision or interference with reviewing court, since, despite language of §17(9)(g), Commission is without power to act inconsistently with court's jurisdiction.--Id., pp.448-9.

CHAPTER 105---JURISDICTION

SUBCHAPTER I---RAIL, RAIL-WATER, EXPRESS, AND PIPELINE CARRIER TRANSPORTATION

§10501(a)(2). GENERAL JURISDICTION--WHERE TRANSPORTATION TAKES PLACE

Interstate Commerce

3. Intrastate commerce affecting interstate commerce.--While §1(2)(a) [now §10501] provides that Commission does not have jurisdiction over intrastate commerce, Shreveport case (234 US 342) is broadly read to hold that §1(2) does not limit Commission's jurisdiction over intrastate rates affecting interstate commerce; thus, under §5b [now §10706], Commission has jurisdiction to approve agreements among railroads on intrastate rates that affect interstate commerce, and thereby to exempt such agreements from operation of antitrust law.--Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. United States, 597 F.2d 593 (595-6)*.

SUBCHAPTER II---MOTOR CARRIER TRANSPORTATION

§10523. EXEMPT MOTOR VEHICLE TRANSPORTATION IN TERMINAL AREAS

5. In general.--Section 202(c), recodified as §10523, is designed to provide motor carriers flexibility for their operations within terminal areas; and recodification of §202(c) as §10523 clarifies section by negating suggestion that terminal area service must be provided in identical manner as line-haul services.-- Purolator Courier Corp. v. I.C.C., 598 F.2d 225 (227)*.

Passenger carriers: Since §202(c), recodified as §10523, is designed to provide motor carriers flexibility for their operations within terminal areas, this flexibility would be undermined if only passenger buses could be used to pick up and deliver express in terminal areas, and recodification of §202(c) as §10523 clarifies section by negating suggestion that terminal are services must be provided in identical manner as line-haul serices, nothing in Act prohibits pick up and delivery of express within terminal area in vehicle that carries no passengers so long as that service remains incidental to principal responsibility of carrier to transport passengers; neither must Commission use same definition of terminal area for pick up and delivery of express that it uses for passenger service, since Act does not impose such limitation but only requires that terminal area pickup and delivery be incidental to passenger service and requirement that operator carry express on same vehicle with passengers for line-haul segment places significant constraint on express shipments, sufficient to insure that express will remain incidental to passenger operations even within expanded terminal area for express.--Purolator Courier Corp. v. I.C.C., 598 F.2d 225 (227-8)*.

CHAPTER 107---RATES, TARIFFS, AND VALUATIONS

Carriers to Provide and Furnish Transportation

13. Maximum rates.--Since costs alone do no determine maximum limits in ratemaking, Commission avoids establishing maximum ceiling on rates based on fixed percentage ratio of revenue to fully allocated costs when considering maximum levels of rates on noncompetitive traffic.--Fibreboard or Pulpboard, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (217).

What Constitutes Cost of Service

85. Variable cost; compensatory rates.--When proposed reduced rates are at 139 to 160 percent of variable costs, these ratios show rates to be compensatory; thus, they cannot be cancelled under §15(8) [now §10707].--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 359 I.C.C. 592 (606)*.

Fully allocated costs are more properly measure of maximum rates than variable costs, which are measure of minimum compensatory recovery.--Fibreboard or Pulpboard, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (217).

Variable level of costs provides useful tool in setting floor below which rate should not fall, since, if rate is set below this, railroad would be forced in incur unrealistically high rates to compensate for costs incurred from handling issue movements; if carrier is to remain viable, its traffic must also make some contribution to its fixed or constant costs.--General American Transp. Corp. v. Indiana Harbor, 357 I.C.C. 102 (134)*.

Return on investment in sense of recovery of cost of capital is properly includable in variable cost; cost of capital, whether in form of borrowed funds or equity, is cost borne by carries in acquiring plant and equipment to provide particular services and may be included in variable cost to extent that plan and equipment are variable, but to extent they are not, costs should be apportioned as part of fully allocated costs.--Id. p.134.

86. Fully allocated costs.--Costs alone do not determine maximum limits in ratemaking, and rates which exceed even fully allocated costs by substantial margins do not necessarily exceed maximum reasonable rate levels solely by reason of that fact.--Fibreboard or Pulpboard, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (217).

Fully allocated costs are more properly measure of maximum rates than variable costs, which are measure of minimum compensatory recovery.--Id., p.217.

Ascertainment of Costs

90. Principles involved, generally.--In updating cost studies, AAR indices can provide useful tool in predicting expense increase, but when, by comparison of these indices with actual accounting data, they are shown excessive, their value is negated.--Fibreboard or Pulpbroad, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (231).

Specific cost data relating to particular rate situation are preferable to and are of greater probative value than general cost data.-- General American Transp. Corp. v. Indiana Harbor, 357 I.C.C. 102 (130, 134)*.

Allowances for return on investment, to extent serving as incentive for continued or new risk-bearing ownership, are pure economic profits and should not be taken into account as element falling within restricted construction of term "costs".--Id., p. 134.

Reconciliation of 1972 Rail Form A and 1972 Burden Study, discussed.--Investigation of Railroad Freight Rate Structure--Lumber, 345 I.C.C. 2550 (2668).

Mere fact that sample is relatively small in relation to its universe does not itself invalidate that sample.--Id., p. 2678.

Use of averages of some kind in Rail Form A costing is inevitable; more precise costs can be constructed for specific commodity with known characteristics which are different from average, by using Rail Form A based on services actually accorded.--Id., pp. 2697, 2706.

105. Distance.--It is fallacious to assume that all expenses are related to and vary with changes in gross ton-miles; some expenses are incurred as result of cars or car-miles, while others are related to engine minutes or car days, and some are constant expenses and are not directly related to any service unit.--Fibreboard or Pulpwood, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (231).

Under Rail Form A, miles are basic service unit divisors (car-miles and ton-miles), and as result, line-haul unit costs are related to mileage; in costing particular movement, it is important that line-haul costs be developed using miles traveled in each region and mileage-related unit costs of each region.-- Investigation of Railroad Freight Rate Structure-Lumber, 345 I.C.C.2550 (2665); use of actual route of movement-miles vs. miles based on short-line distances, discussed.--Id., pp.2665-6.

Breakdown of mileage between cost regions is subject to some degree of error because cost regions are determined according to railroads involved, and not by some geographical breakdown; nonetheless, such geographical breakdown is preferable to equal split between cost regions.--Id., p. 2685.

Cost of Particular Services

118. Loading; weights.--Use of average actual lading weight more appropriately reflects costs incurred in handling issue traffic since costs are predicated upon actual weight being transported rather than tariff minimum weight.--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 357 I.C.C. 382 (395)*.

Rail Form A does not include specific individual service unit cost relating to weighing, but rather buries such costs in origin and destination terminal switching cost, interchange switching cost, and terminal special service cost; thus, Rail Form A includes weighing expenses, and inclusion of additional interchange cost for weighing is improper.--Investigation of Railroad Freight Rate Structure--Lumber, 345 I.C.C. 2550 (2667).

121. Special service.--Tank truck cleaning and disposal costs are transportation costs directly related to transportation of freight and should be classified as line-haul activity rather than as terminal or platform expenses.--Motor Carrier Accounts--Property, 357 I.C.C. 377 (379).

123. Terminal services.--Mere fact that data required in application of Rail Terminal Form F are not maintained in railroad's offices in regular course of business does not preclude use of formula in development of costs.--General American Transp. Corp. v. Indiana Harbor, 357 I.C.C. 102 (133)*.

127. Interchange.--Rail Form A development of interchange costs, discussed.--Investigation of Railroad Freight Rate Structure--Lumber, 345 I.C.C. 2550 (2662-4).

133. TOFC service.--Contention that cancellation of TOFC service at particular ramp cannot be approved unless specific financial loss is demonstrated, is rejected; where exact profit and loss figures are difficult to determine, and there is clear congressional emphasis on efficiently reorganizing Conrail's services in question, Commission is justified to some extent, Conrail is justified in terminating them.--Pennsylvania v. I.C.C., 590 F.2d 1187 (1199)*.

134. Empty repair movements.--Idea that private car moving for repairs may be instrumentality of transportation as to carrier which derives only such indirect benefit from use of national private car fleet rests upon fact that costs of ordinary repairs cannot be attributed to any single carrier.--General American Transp. Corp. v. Indiana Harbor, 357 I.C.C. 102 (127)*.

Methods which may be used in developing cost element for empty repair movements to be included in freight rate, discussed.--Id., pp. 130-1.

Carrier's cost study of empty repair movements of private cars over its lines, discussed.--Id., pp. 131-5.

Similarity of Services and Circumstances

220. Comparison of rates for services under similar circumstances proper.--When defendants argue that issue movement of zinc slabs is sporadic and isolated, while compared movement is high-volume movement from producing points in Texas to nonproducing points in northeast, but shipments at issue actually constituted high-volume movement even though they originated from stockpiling points rather than producing points, nearly all weighed over 120,000 pounds, and they were not sporadic or isolated, complainant meets its burden of proof or claims for reparations based upon unlawful rates because attacked class rates are based on 40,000-pound minimum while compared commodity rates are based on 120,000-pound minimum.--Administrator of General Services v. Burlington, 357 I.C.C. 232 (242).

Relationship of assailed rate to other rates, on same commodity, between points in same general territory, for similar distances, is one of best tests of reasonableness of assailed rate.--Id., p. 241.

221. Rates over other routes.--When commodity rates are canceled over shorter route, bringing higher class and combination rates into effect, evidence as to reasonableness of commodity rates over longer, more circuitous route cannot show substantially increased rates over shorter route reasonable, particularly where shipper has no recourse to other modes, now-canceled commodity rates were clearly compensatory, and shipper has not made extensive use of longer route; it is no answer to imposition of unjust and unreasonable rates to say that shipper may avoid payment of such rates by shipping via longer and significantly more circuitous route.--Fibreboard or Pulpboard, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (218-9).

Rates on Various Commodities

350. In general.--Lumber: History of freight rate relationships for lumber and lumber products from Northwest (pp. 2608-22), from South (pp. 2622-29), within South (pp. 2629-32), and recent developments (pp.2632-43), discussed.--Investigation of Railroad Freight Rate Structure--Lumber, 345 I.C.C. 2550 (2608-43).

Revenues derived from rail transportation of lumber and lumber products found generally to exceed their variable costs of service, with few exceptions.--Id., p.2647.

Lumber freight rates structures have adequately met needs of both shippers and carriers, there being equilibrium between West (blanket rates) and South (mileage-related rates); since Commission need not define reasonable rate relationship between West and South, it is not necessary to impose holddown formula on increases in those territories.--Id., pp.2784-5.

Rail rates have no discernible effect on lumber movements; instead, demand for lumber is dependent on housing starts.--Id. p.2785.

Lumber list found still to be valid concept, so long as there is flexibility in application and departures allowed where conditions warrant.--Id., p.2786.

Local, Through, Joint, and Proportional Rates

400. Through rates; relation to local rates.--Where total rate or charge is challenged and is shown to embrace unlawful factor, total rate or charge is to be presumed unlawful to extent such factor is demonstrated to be unlawful, but should presumption of unlawfulness arise, defendants may present rebuttal evidence, or Commission may further inquire as to actual impact of unlawful factor in light of pertinent transportation conditions; thus, when complainant attacked through rates maintained by defendants from Sterling, CO, contructed by combinations of local factors from Sterling to Chicago and Chicago to eastern points, but complainant's evidence was limited to Sterling-Chicago factor, record was adequate to sustain finding that charge for traffic moving beyond Chicago was unlawful.--Sterling Colo. Beef Co. v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 357 I.C.C. 446 (455-6); Sterling Colo. Beef Co. v. United States, 599 F.2d 365 (366-8).

Rates Based on Quantity of Traffic

515. Carload rates.--While shipper should not be required to deviate from normal business practices in order to take advantage of multiple-car rates during times of car shortage, and neither carrier nor shipper should favor multiple-car over single-car movements in allocating available equipment, when shipper knew that railroad would have difficulty furnishing full number of cars ordered due to serious car shortage during Russian grain sale, it was incumbent upon shipper to cooperate with carrier to greater degree than it might have under ordinary circumstances, and in view of diversity of shipments from shipper's facilities, carrier could not reasonably be expected to anticipate shipper's multiple-car needs on basis of large, undifferentiated car order; thus, shipper fails to make showing required under Ormet policy (341 ICC 647) that it timely ordered necessary cars from carrier, and single-car rates charged cannot be found unreasonable to extent they exceed multiple-car rates.--Garvey International, Inc. v. A., T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 356 I.C.C. 808 (812-3).

520. Multiple-car rates.--While shipper should not be required to deviate from normal business practices in order to take advantage of multiple-car rates during times of car shortage, and neither carrier nor shipper should favor multiple-car over single-car movements in allocating available equipment, when shipper knew that railroad would have difficulty furnishing full number of cars ordered due to serious car shortage during Russian grain sale, it was incumbent upon shipper to cooperate with carrier to greater degree than it might have under oridinary circumstances and in view of diversity of shipments from shipper's facilities carrier could not reasonably be expected to anticipate shipper's multiple-car needs on basis of large, undifferentiated car order; thus, shipper fails to make showing required under Ormet policy (341 ICC 647) that it timely ordered necessary cars from carrier, and single-car rates charged cannot be found unreasonable to extent they exceed multiple-car rates.--Garvey International, Inc. v. A., T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 356 I.C.C. 808 (812-3).

Line-Haul, Terminal, and Switching Services

521. Line-haul and terminal services.--In absence of tariff provisions to contrary, line-haul rates in carrier's tariff to given point include delivery only to such industries as are located upon its own rails, but additional charge may be made for switching by carrier which is not involved in line haul so long as it does not create situation of unlawful preference, prejudice, or discrimination; thus, when switching charges at issue are published in separate tariff, and line-haul tariffs clearly indicate that switching is not included in line-haul, carriers are not holding out to perform complete delivery service.--Aluminum Co. of American v. St. Louis-S. F. Ry. Co., 357 I.C.C. 96 (98).

Percentage Increases

540. In general.--General rate increases on lumber and lumber products found not to have been self-defeating with respect to generating revenues; and lumber prices fluctuate with number of housing starts independently of general increases.--Investigation of Railroad Freight Rate Structure--Lumber, 345 I.C.C. 2550 (2851).

Such general increases have not caused any substantial disparities or distortions in rate structure, but some distortions have been amplified, differentials between rate groups having been widened as resulted of successive percentage increases.--Id., pp. 2862-4.

General increases have provided sufficient revenues to stimulate capital expenditure programs and to undertake improvements in service to meet shippers' requirements.--Id., p. 2872.

Class Rates

544. Reasonableness, generally.--When compared movement of zinc slabs is similar to issue movement, shipments nearly all weighed over 120,000 pounds, attacked class rates are based on 40,000-pound minimum, and compared commodity rates are based on 120,000-pound minimum, complainant meets its burden of proof on claims for reparations based upon unlawful rates.--Administrator of General Services v. Burlington, 357 I.C.C. 232 (242).

Rates for Special Class of Service

665. Empty movements.--General rule is that carriers which benefit from loaded revenue movements of private cars may not claim that such cars, when moved empty for repairs on their own wheels, are property subject to separate transportation charge; however, car does not automatically maintain permanent status as instrumentality of transportation throughout its useful life, but may be "property" to one carrier and "instrumentality of transportation" to another, distinguishing factor being that car cannot be "instrumentality of transportation" when moved by carrier unless carrier derives some economic benefit, direct or indirect, from movement or use.--General American Transp. Corp v. Indiana Harbor, 357 I.C.C. 102 (126)*.

Although idea that private car moving for repairs may be instrumentality of transportation as to carrier which derives only such indirect benefit from use of national private car fleet rests upon fact that costs of ordinary repairs cannot be attributed to any single carrier, costs of moving "instrumentalities of transportation" must be compensated in such manner that no carrier which accrues greater than average portion of these costs will be unduly burdened; in case of private tank cars, equalization rule provides forcost of repair movement of cars, except when repairs are due to railroad damage.--Id., pp. 127-8; methods of formulating national equalization rule for other types of cars, discussed.--Id., pp. 129-31.

Separate charges for switching of empty privately owned cars for repairs after they have entered national car fleet found unlawful when railroad derives more than de minimis amount of revenue of any sort from movements of those cars, but not unlawful when railroad will not derive any economic benefit, direct or indirect, from use of those cars.--Id., pp. 136-7.

Cases concerning movement to car cleaning facility, distinguished.--Id., p. 129.

§10702(a). AUTHORITY FOR CARRIERS TO ESTABLISH RATES, CLASSIFICATION, RULES, AND PRACTICES--COMMON CARRIERS

Transportation of Property

16. Cancellation of rates.--Balancing test, weighing interests of shippers against those of carriers, is proper standard by which to assess Conrail's proposed cancellation of TOFC service at certain ramps; and where exact profit and loss figures are difficult to determine, and there is clear congressional emphasis on efficiently reorganizing Conrail's services in question, Commission is justified in deciding that even if stations involved are individually profitable to some extent, Conrail is justified in terminating them.--Pennsylvania v. I.C.C., 590 F.2d 1187 (1196-9)*.

Bills of Lading

65. Nature, function generally.--Bill of lading issued by common carrier is receipt for traffic and evidence of contract, rather than contract itself; thus, terms of affreightment as evidenced by bill of lading are not only evidence by which to determine contractual and substantive rights of complainant.--Administrator of General Service v. Burlington, 357 I.C.C. 232 (241).

Just and Reasonable Classification Required

78. Reasonableness, generally.--When complainant fails to carry burden of showing item misclassified, and issue whether classification is unreasonable cannot be determined from record, complainant should file proposal with National Classification Board to change classification; if rate level upheld by board is unsatisfactory, new formal complaint can be filed.--Alladin Lampshade Corp. v. Georgia Hwy. Exp., 357 I.C.C. 625 (632)*.

Classification Structure

131. Descriptions of commodities.--When involved lampshades are not specifically named in classification, inquiry turns to whether articles are reasonably embraced within any general description; here lampshades at issue are clearly classified under item applying to "globes, shades, diffusors, refractors or reflectors, NOI", which is not limited to molded products or restricted as to material composition or construction, and not under item applying to "diffusers, globes, shades, refractors or reflectors, NOI, incandescent or lighting fixture, molded plastic, in boxes or crates", since lampshades considered consist of combination of cloth, plastic, and metal and should be classified in item applying without distinction on articles constructed in various ways from various materials.--Alladin Lampshade Corp. v. Georgia Hwy. Exp., 357 I.C.C. 625 (632)*.

Routing

587. Routing to obtain benefit of transit.--When complainant alleges that defendant refuses to allow blending and/or milling in transit of grain and bran under single-factor through rates in question, and defendant argues that these rates are not authorized to apply via routes suggested by complainant, but routing restrictions relied upon by defendant are ambiguous and must be resolved in favor of shipper, routes designated by complainant are permissible; thus, since where tariff specifically provides for application of rates over routes composed of lines of carriers parties thereto, burden is on carriers to publish definite routing restrictions if they deem any routes unreasonable, and defendants have not restricted routing, so that single-factor through rates are proper, and are not shown to be unduly circuitous.--Roman Meal Co. v. Burlington Northern, Inc., 356 I.C.C. 562 (564-6).

Terminal Services and Facilities

680. Absorptions.--Principal test for existence of §1(6) [now §10702] violation is existence of widespread practice of absorption of switching charges at important markets by voluntary action of railroads, this being strong evidence of reasonableness of absorption practice and of unreaonableness of nonabsorption; therefore, in light of widespread absorption practices for papermills in the South and practice of absorbing charges on all other traffic in zones, defendant's refusal to absorb full amount of Terminal R. Ala. St. Docks at Mobile for complainants is unreasonable practice.--Aluminum Co. of America v. St. Louis-S. F. Ry. Co., 357 I.C.C. 96 (98-99).

While courts have suggested that it is possible to find violation of §1(6) independent of violation of §2 [now §10741] (372 F. Supp. 721, affirmed 419 US 807), defendant's refusal to absorb is violation also of §2.--Id., p.99.

§10703. AUTHORITY FOR CARRIERS TO ESTABLISH THROUGH ROUTES

Duty to estabished Through Routes

90. Disagreement as to divisions.--When respondent proposing reduced rates shows that its good faith offer of divisions was rejected by connection carriers, so that respondent does not have common control of prejudicial and preferential rates necessary to find §3(1) [now §10741] violation, reduced rates cannot be said to violate §1(4) [now §10703] duty to establish through routes and just and reasonable rates, since cost evidence shows present and proposed rates just and reasonable, and there is no evidence that protestants are unable to move issue traffic from origins to Corpus Christi destination.--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 357 I.C.C. 382 (404); and when record does not show that route has been commercially closed, connecting carriers are not required to join in proposed rate reduction.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 592 (607).

Motor Carriers

200. Property carriers, generally.--There is strong policy against encumbering grants of authority with restrictions against interchange; such restrictions contravene express proviso in §216(c) [now §10703] that carriers have privilege of establishing through routes with other common carriers in order to fulfill their public obligations.--Takin Bros. Frt. Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Chi-Fli, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 408 (419).

§10704. AUTHORITY AND CRITERIA; RATES, CLASSIFICATIONS, RULES AND PRACTICES PRESCRIBED BY INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

Nature of Commission's Function

45. In general.--While Commission can remedy preference and prejudice by prescription of rates under §15(1) [now §10704] without showing of common control required for alternative order and even if rates are within zone of reasonableness, prescription is not warranted when carriers require flexibility to meet unregulated intermodal competition and to adjust to changing transportation and economic conditions, and when record is not sufficiently comprehensive to permit rate prescription, there being no evidence of effects on rate structure despite fact that past rate prescriptions have been in relation to existing commodity rate structures.--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 359 I.C.C. 592 (599-600)*.

Basis for Determination by Commission

68. Criteria for prescription.--While common control of preferring and prejudicing rates is required to issue alternate order to correct preference and prejudice under §3(1) [now §10741], it is not necessary element when §15(1) [now §10704] order prescribes rates in order to eliminate territorial discrimination.--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 359 I.C.C. 592 (598-9)*.

The Order

78. Hearing requirements.--Since interests of Conrail as owner and operator of Northern territory lines affected are identical to those of bankrupt northeastern railroads that participated in every stage of administrative process, Conrail is bound by final order prescribing divisions entered against its predecessor-in-interest bankrupt railroads.--Conrail v. I.C.C., 590 F.2d 937 (944)*.

79. Burden of proof.--When protestants seek §10704 rate prescription to remedy preference and prejudice under §10741, protestants have burden of establishing record sufficient for rate prescriptions, including evidence describing regional grain rate structure, effects of prescribed rates for one carrier on this structure, and sufficient economic justification as to why prescribed rates should take precedence over carrier flexibility.--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 359 I.C.C. 592 (600)*.

Protestants have burden in justifying prescribed rates, in view of facts that under Administrative Procedure Act proponent of order has burden of proof unless otherwise provided by statute, and that if burden of proof were on carrier to show prescribed rates were not justified, this would place untenable burden on carrier's right to set its own rates in first instance.--Id., p. 600.

Compliance with Order

100. Duty to comply; modification.--Rate is prescribed under §10704 order; this order remains in effect unless modified; to modify prescribed rate carrier must first petition for permission to change rate level, which petition is subject to opposition, reopening of administrative proceeding and possible court appeal; and if permission to change rate is granted, so that carrier may then publish change, this change still remains subject to possible investigation and suspension in subsequent proceeding.--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 359 I.C.C. 592 (599)*.

§10705. AUTHORITY: THROUGH ROUTES, JOINT CLASSIFICATION, RATES AND DIVISIONS PRESCRIBED BY INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

Procedure

31. Parties.--When Conrail is federally created statutory successor to its predecessor railroad corporations, Conrail has acquired substantially all of its bankrupt predecessors' rail properties, and Regional Rail Reorganization Act provided for substantial continuity in stock ownership and service between bankrupt railroads and Conrail, it is bound by final order prescribing divisions entered against its predecessor-in-interest bankrupt railroads, despite fact that effective date of that order was delayed until beyond time Conrail assumed rail operations of its predecessors.--Conrail v. I.C.C. 590 F.2d 937, (940-3)*.

Closing, Cancellation

300. In general.--Route is commercially closed when change in rates via that route renders it as practical manner uncompetitive for traffic which can move over alternative routes.--Fibreboard or Pulpboard, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (219).

302. Burden of proof.--When carrier proposes commercial closing of route without consent of all parties thereto or authorization of Commission, carrier has burden of proof that closing is in public interest under §15(3) [now §10705].--Fibreboard or Pulpboard, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (219).

304. Public interest.--When carrier proposes commercial closing of route without consent of all parties thereto or authorization of Commission, carrier has burden of proof that closing is in public interest under §15(3) [now §10705].--Fibreboard or Pulpboard, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (219).

Term "public interest" means more than mere general reference to public welfare, or to desire of particular carrier or carriers to gain additional traffic, or to preference of shippers for something more convenient; consideration must be given to interest of general public as manifested by traffic moved over routes proposed to be closed, as well as to carriers participating in those routes.--Id., p. 219.

1976 amendment to §15(3) requires that Commission, in determining whether route closing is in public interest, compare distance and expense involved before and after proposed closing and consider any reduction in energy consumption resulting; thus, where average distance to be traversed following commercial closing of route in question is significantly longer, use of energy greater, expense to railroads operating over longer route larger, shipper's use of route to be closed is not insignificant, and shipper's filing of formal complaint against certain rates applying on traffic at issue is no reason for commercially closing route, proposed closing of route is not shown to be in public interest, particularly since carrier fails to show that routes it intends to retain are (a) shorter, more direct, and efficient than route closed, (b) less costly, involve less switching, fewer yard interchanges, and shorter transit times than route closed, and (c) promote economy and efficiency of operation--three standards which Commission has taken into account in considering whether to allow railroad to restrict routing; commercial closing ordered canceled.--Id., pp. 221-2.

§10706. RATE AGREEMENTS: EXEMPTION FROM ANTITRUST LAWS

2. Construction and interpretation.--Under §5b [now §10706], Commission has jurisdiction to approve agreements among railroads on intrastate rates that affect interstate commerce, and thereby to emempt such agreements from operation of antitrust laws.--Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. United States, 597 F.2d 593 (596)*.

Section 5a, later §5b [now §10706], may not deprive carrier of recourse to usual procedures of Commission.--Southern Ry. Co.--Petition for Declaratory Order, 357 I.C.C. 656 (663)*.

4. Agreements not covered.--Under §5b [now §10706], Commission has jurisdiction to approve agreements among railroads on intrastate rates that affect interstate commerce, and thereby to exempt such agreements from operation of antitrust laws.--Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. United States, 597 F.2d 593 (596)*.

5. Independent action; ratemaking procedure.--In order to preserve carrier's right of independent action under §5b(5)(a) [now §10706], §6(3) [now §10762] would be violated by refusal of tariff publishing agent to comply with carrier's instructions to seek special permission to publish change in proposed increased rates, without concurrence of participating joint-line carriers, after rates were filed but before they became effective.--Southern Ry. Co.--Petition for Declaratory Order, 357 I.C.C. 656 (662-3).*.

§10707. INVESTIGATION AND SUSPENSION OF NEW RAIL CARRIER RATES, CLASSIFICATIONS, RULES, AND PRACTICES

Procedure

35. Burden of proof, in general.--Carrier's burden of proof under §15(8) [now §10707] investigation relates to justness and reasonableness of proposal; respondent carrier does not initially have burden of proof in respect to §3(1) [now §10741] issues, except in regard to transportation conditions.--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 359 I.CC. 592 (600)*.

Reductions: Statutory burden of proof is on respondent to demonstrate that proposed rate reductions are lawful.--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 357 I.C.C. 382 (400)*.

40. Time limits.--Commission's argument, that §15(8)(a) [now §10707] changed normal review procedure by foreclosing all possibility of further agency review after lapse of seven month period, so that period in which to seek judicial review must be measured from date original decision was entered within seven month period, not from date of petitions for reconsideration filed after seven month period, is rejected; while Commission action on suspended tariffs must become final in seven month period in sense that tariffs will go into effect after that period, Commission is not deprived of jurisdiction to consider petition for reconsideration filed after seven month period, so long as consideration does not interfere with effectiveness of tariff; thus, period in which to seek judicial review is measured from denial of petition for reconsideration.--Pennsylvania v. I.C.C., 590 F.2d 1187 (1192-6)*.

Commission's practice of regarding petitions for reconsideration filed after seven month period as separate complaints is not supported by §15(8)(a).--Id., p. 1195.

§10709. DETERMINATION OF MARKET DOMINANCE IN RAIL CARRIER RATE PROCEEDINGS

5. Pending proceedings.--Market dominance issue does not arise in proceeding when rate at issue became effective and proceeding was instituted prior to effective date of market dominance standards and regulations.--General American Transp. Corp. v. Indiana Harbor, 357 I.C.C. 102 (131)*.

Presumptions

30. Percentage of variable costs.--When virtually all traffic moves via rail carriers which have participated in rate bureau discussion, consideration, approval, or publication of rates under consideration, and increased rates resulting from rate cancellation at issue exceed variable cost by 180 to 205 percent and significant diversion to other modes is not viable alternative to protestant, respondent carrier has market dominance over traffic in question.--Fibreboard or Pulpboard, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (216).

32. Rate bureau.--When virtually all traffic moves via rail carriers which have participated in rate bureau discussion, consideration, approval, or publication of rates under consideration, and increased rates resulting from rate cancellation at issue exceed variable cost by 180 to 205 percent and significant diversion to other modes is not viable alternative to protestant, respondent carrier has market dominance over traffic in question.--Fibreboard or Pulpwood, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (216).

§10721. GOVERNMENT TRAFFIC

1. In general.--Recognition of shipments which are for or on behalf of United States under §16(3)(i) [now §11706], dealing with limitations periods, is not to be confused with identification of shipments which qualify for §22 [now §10721] rate quotations given as accomodations to government.--Administrator of General Services v. Burlington, 357 I.C.C. 232 (240).

10. Billing; identification of shipments.--When bills of lading failed to show that charges were to be borne by government, and some bills stated, "The government is not responsible for freight charges on this shipment", notation had effect of notifying carriers that shipper, not government, was obligated to pay carrier directly; such bills did not did not meet requirements of giving proper notice to carriers that shipments were for government, as required pursuant to method of billing necessary for compliance with §22 [now §10721].--Administrator of General Services v. Burlington, 357 I.C.C. 232 (240).

§10726. LONG AND SHORT HAUL TRANSPORTATION

Relief from Long-and-Short-Haul Provisions

160. Aggregate-of-intermediates rules.--When applicable aggregate-of-intermediates rule provides that if lower aggregate can be constructed via any route over which single-factor class rate published in tariff is authorized to apply, such lower aggregate becomes applicable basis via all routes over which class rate is authorized to apply; thus, when lower aggregate is available, so that combination basis of rates is available to complainant, overcharges are awarded for movements at issue.--Administrator of General Services v. Burlington, 357 I.C.C. 232 (242-3).

§10728. SEPARATE RATES FOR DISTINCT RAIL SERVICES

5. Definitions.--Since distinct rail service is defined as those railroad transportation services separate from line-haul service necessary for movement of freight, not every service performed by switching carrier is necessarily distinct rail service; since ordinary repairs of cars are necessary to both line-haul movement of freight and loaded revenue switching movements, switching of empty private cars for repairs is not distinct rail service, as no loaded movement, whether line haul or switching, would be possible if ordinary repairs were not performed.--General American Transp. Corp. v. Indiana Harbor, 357 I.C.C. 102 (129)*.

§10730. RATES AND LIABILITY BASED ON VALUE

Released Rates and Ratings

75. Rates applicable.--Commission's interpretation of released rates provision applicable to drugs, medicines, toiletries, and other products, to effect that "article" means commodity so that carrier's liability is measured by total number of pounds of commodity in shipment, rather than smallest identifiable unit, so that carrier's liability would be measured by number of actual pounds actually lost or damaged, is affirmed, in view of deference accorded Commission's interpretation of own orders.--Natl. Motor Frt. Traffic Assn., Inc. v. I.C.C., 590 F.2d 1180 (1183-5)*.

Despite carriers' traditional preference for liability limitations based on smallest identifiable unit, §20(11) [now §10730] does not prescribe specific methodology by which liability limitation must be calculated; Commission has discretion under §20(11) to authorize any form of released value provision, so long as it finds rates based on provision just and reasonable.--Id., p. 1185.

Commission did not act arbitrarily in choosing to construe terms of released value provision against carriers that advanced it; neither was agency barred from considering position of shippers today to be relevant in interpreting provision.--Id., p. 1186.

Allegation that Commission's holding will foster unjust discrimination among shippers because it permits potential recovery for loss to vary according to volume of goods shipped, is rejected, in view of Commission's conclusion that this is not discrimination of sort condemned by the Act, when Commission possesses broad discretion to determine claims of unjust discrimination.--Id., p. 1186.

§10741(a). PROHIBITIONS AGAINST DISCRIMINATION BY COMMON CARRIERS--PERSONAL DISCRIMINATION

Unjust Discrimination

72. Absorption.--When complainants argue that discrimination exists against industries in zone 1 of Mobile's switching district because carriers refuse to absorb charges which they fully absorb in zones 2 and 3, but there is no showing that there is any difference in absorption practices among shippers of similar commodities, conditions may justify differing treatment for shippers in same switching district, and presence of direct service by other railroads in zones 2 and 3 accounts for differences in absorption practices between zone 1 and zones 2 and 3, there is no showing of dissimilar treatment of zone 1 shippers of similar commodities under substantially same circumstances and conditions and thus no violation of §2 [now §10741].-- Aluminum Co. of America v. St. Louis-S. F. Ry. Co., 357 I.C.C. 96 (99-100).

For pulpwood and woodchips moving to zone 2, when prevailing line-haul rates reflect uniform mileage scale for traffic moving throughout territory, and absorption is prevailing practice of line-haul carriers participating in this traffic, in absence of any indication that traffic of complainants is dissimilar to that of its competitors within territory, defendant's failure to extend comparable absorption practices unlawfully discriminates against complainants.--Id., p.100.

Substantially Similar Circumstances

110. Private cars.--No unjust discrimination in favor of carrier-owned car users would result from allowing carrier which derives no economic benefit from use of private cars to publish separate rates for their empty movement to and from repair facilities, since such carriers cannot receive compensation for these movements of railroad-owned cars; failure to permit similar compensation of these carriers for private car movements might result in undue preference and prejudice in favor of private car users.---General American Transp. Corp. v. Indiana Harbor, 357 I.C.C. 102 (135)*.

117. Volume of traffic.--Commission possesses broad discretion to determine claims of unjust discrimination; therefore, allegation that Commission's interpretation of released rates order will foster unjust discrimination among shippers because it permits potential recovery for loss to vary according to volume of goods shipped, is rejected, in view of Commission's conclusion that this is not discrimination of sort condemned by the Act.--Natl. Motor Frt. Traffic Assn., Inc. v. I.C.C., 590 F.2d 1180 (1186)*.

§10741(b). PROHIBITIONS AGAINST DISCRIMINATION BY COMMON CARRIERS--UNREASONABLE DISCRIMINATION

88. Common control required.--Where one railroad serves one port directly and other port by joint service with second railroad, carrier does not have common control if it offers to establish equivalent service at equivalent rates but connecting carrier declines, but offers of divisions by originating carriers are insufficient by themselves to demonstrate willingness to provide equivalent service at equivalent rates, unless carriers clearly and convincingly show that offers were made in good faith; such showing requires (1) information relevant to offer of divisions in issue case and (2) information relevant to any established basis of divisions on similar or identical commodities over similar or identical routes, while supporting detail, including cost data, proportional rates, or other basis for division, can be submitted.--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 357 I.C.C. 382 (383, 401-2)*.

Common control concept is designed to insure that carrier effectively participates in both prejudicial and preferential rates so that carrier causing violation of §3(1) has alternative to raise or lower rates at issue to restore parity.--Id., p.402.

When circumstances are unchanged, respondent offered divisions on same basis as existing divisions, and tender would have produced no reduction in connecting carriers' percentage share of revenues from through movement and only small reduction in absolute revenues, respondent sustains burden of proving that its offers of divisions were made in good faith, that it did not attempt to induce deliberately nonconcurrence of connecting carriers, and that it does no have common control over rates; thus, proposed reduced rates do not violate §3(1).--Id., pp. 402-3.

To be subject to order under §3(1) to remedy undue preference and prejudice, carrier or group of carriers must be common source of discrimination, effectively participate in both preferential and prejudicial rates, and be in such situation that they have actual alternative to raise one rate, lower other, or alter both; and unless common control exists, no alternative order can be issued, since carriers do not have alternative unless they control rates to both preferred and prejudiced points.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 592 (597)*.

While common control is required to issue alternate order to correct preference and prejudice under §3(1), it is not necessary element when §15(1), now §10704, order prescribes rates in order to eliminate territorial disciminations.--Id., pp. 598-9.

Commission has authority under §10741 to remedy unreasonable discrimination between ports by single carrier or group of carriers acting in concert, but not to equalize rates between two ports if each port is served by only one of two carriers and carriers do not act in concert.--Id., pp. 601-2.

While in 219 ICC 151, 172, Commission found that massive differential rate adjustment covering ports in entire region demonstrated that railroads serving those ports acted in concert, so that as group carriers had control of rates to all ports, in present case Commission must focus on actual control, rather than presume that carrier interaction inevitably leads to common control, in view of congressional policy in favor of ratemaking flexibility (P. L. 94-210, §101(b)(3)).--Id., pp. 602-3.

To demonstrate common control, protestant has initial burden of proving that originating carrier could serve both preferred and prejudiced ports either by itself or by means of connecting carriers; burden then shifts to respondent to go forward and rebut protestant's evidence of control by showing that respondent made good faith effort to arrive at division of revenue agreement but was unsuccessful, thus demonstrating that it has no actual control over rates to ports which it does not serve directly; this burden of producing evidence on divisions issue is placed on respondent carrier since it alone was access to division of revenue information.--Id., pp.603-4.

Since important factor is not compensatory nature of divisions but whether tender of existing divisions is good faith offer, respondent's attempts to obtain concurrences to proposed reduced rates at issue shows good faith and establishes that respondent cannot participate effectively in rates to prejudiced point; thus, no alternative order can be issued.--Id., p. 605.

Fact that respondent carrier makes good faith offer of divisions does not indicate that connecting carriers acted in bad faith by refusing to join in reduced rates; test is not whether agreement is reached but substance of negotiations, and here connecting carriers acted in good faith and within managerial discretion in rejecting offers; even if connecting carriers acted in bad faith, they cannot control rates for shipments originating on respondent's line, and there thus cannot be §10741 alternative order solely against connecting carriers.--Id., pp. 606-7.

96. Burden of proof.-- Statutory burden of proof is on respondent carriers to demonstrate that proposed rate reductions are lawful, and in order to find that reductions do not violate §3(1) [now §10741] evidence must show that there is no disparity in rates, protestants are not actually or potentially competitively injured, respondents are not common source of rates to both preferred and prejudiced ports, or rate disparity, if any, is justified by transportation conditions.--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 357 I.C.C. 382 (400-1)*.

Distinction must be made between preference and prejudice and undue preference and prejudice, since as general rule not all preferences to one locality and prejudice to another are considered undue and thus unlawful; in order to find undue and unlawful preference and prejudice, (1) there must be rate disparity, (2) there must be actual or potential injury, (3) similarity of transportation conditions must exist to both preferred and prejudiced points, and (4) in order to provide remedy with alternative order, carrier must control rate to both preferred and prejudiced points.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 592 (592-3)*.

While carrier's burden of proof under §15(8) [now §10707] investigation relates to justness and reasonableness of proposal, respondent carrier does not initially have burden of proof in respect to §3(1) issues, except in regard to transportation conditions.--Id., p. 600.

To warrant finding of violation of §3(1) [now §10741], shipper must show, inter alia, that rate differences subject it to actual or potential injury, but when shipper argues that commercial closing of route prejudices it and prefers its competitors, and evidence shows that its shipments to destinations at issue have actually increased, no injury is shown; mere expectations of future injury cannot establish injury precedent to finding of undue prejudice.--Fibreboard or Pulpboard, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (215-6).

Mere claim of preference and prejudice is not sufficient to sustain complainant's burden of proof; when there is no evidence that shipments are made or prevented because of difference in absorption treatment, there is no showing of §3(1) [now §10741] violation.--Aluminum Co. of American v. St. Louis-S. F. Ry. Co., 357 I.C.C. 96 (100).

Discrimination in Particular Situations

103a. Private cars.--No unjust discrimination in favor of carrier-owned car users would result from allowing carrier which derives no economic benefit from use of private cars to publish separate rates for their empty movement to and from repair facilities, since such carriers cannot receive compensation for these movements from freight rates, although they are presumably compensated for similar movements of railroad-owned cars; failure to permit similar compensation of these carriers for private car movements might result in undue preference and prejudice in favor of private car users.-- General American Transp. Corp. v. Indiana Harbor, 357 I.C.C. 102 (135)*.

106. Localities; regions; territories.--While 1940 amendment extended prohibition against discrimination to regions, districts, and territories, it did not introduce new standard of discrimination; common control of prejudicing and preferring rates is still required to issue alternate order remedying violation of §3(1) [now §10741].--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 359 I.C.C. 592 (598)*.

106a. Ports.--When evidence shows that due to proposed rate reduction there is rate disparity to detriment of Corpus Christi and in favor of other gulf ports, nature of grain pricing is such that contracts are affected by price considerations in fractions of a cent, and Corpus Christi receives wheat from origins at issue, although since wheat is mingled at terminal elevators protestants can not show specific origins, rate disparity is shown adversely to affect Corpus Christi; however, as respondent carriers show that they lack common control of prejudicial and preferential rates, no §3(1) [now §10741] violation is shown.--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 357 I.C.C. 382 (401, 403)*.

Commission has authority under §10741 to remedy unreasonable discrimination between ports by single carrier or group of carriers acting in concert, but not to equalize rates between two ports if each port is served by only one of two carriers and carriers do not act in concert.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 592 (601-2)*.

108. Groups.--Where total rate or charge is challenged and is shown to embrace unlawful factor, total rate or charge is to be presumed unlawful to extent such factor is demonstrated to be unlawful, but should presumption of unlawfulness arise, defendants may present rebuttal evidence, or Commission may further inquire as to actual impact of unlawful factor in light of pertinent transportation conditions; thus, when complainant attacked through rates maintained by defendants from Sterling, CO, constructed by combinations of local factors from Sterling to Chicago and Chicago to eastern points, alleging that rates violated §3(1) [now §10741] because complainant was grouped with competitors located further from destination, and complainant's evidence was limited to Sterling-Chicago factor, record was adequate to sustain finding that charge for traffic moving beyond Chicago was unlawful.--Sterling Colo. Beef Co. v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 357 I.C.C. 446 (455-6); Sterling Colo. Beef Co. v. United States, 599 F.2d 365 (366-8).

115. Through charges vs. aggregate of intermediates.--Where total rate or charge is challenged and is shown to embrace unlawful factor, total rate or charge is to be presumed unlawful to extent such factor is demonstrated to be unlawful, but should presumption of unlawfulness arise, defendants may present rebuttal evidence, or Commission may further inquire as to actual impact of unlawful factor in light of pertinent transportation conditions.--Sterling Colo. Beef Co. v. Atchison T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 357 I.C.C. 446 (455); Sterling Colo. Beef Co. v. United States, 599 F.2d 365 (366-8).

160. Removal of discrimination.--When §3(1) [now §10741] violation is found, in order to provide remedy with alternative order, carrier or carriers must control rates to both preferred and prejudiced points; alternative order is one which allows carrier or carriers to adjust rates by raising preferred rate or lowering prejudiced rate or altering both to remove unlawfulness.--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 359 I.C.C. 592 (593)*.

To be subject to order under §3(1) to remedy undue preference and prejudice, carrier or group of carriers must be common source of discrimination, effectively participate in both preferential and prejudicial rates, and be in such situation that they have actual alternative to raise one rate, lower other, or alter both; unless common control exists, no alternative order can be issued, since carriers do not have alternative unless they control rates to both preferred and prejudiced points.--Id., p. 597.

While Commission can remedy preference and prejudice by prescription of rates under §15(1) [now §10704] without showing of common control reqired for alternative order and even if rates are within zone of reasonableness, prescription is not warranted when carriers require flexibility to meet unregulated conditions, and when record is not sufficiently comprehensive to permit rate prescription, there being no evidence of effects on grain rate structure.--Id., pp. 599-600.

SUBCHAPTER IV--TARIFFS AND TRAFFIC

Principles Governing Tariff Interpretation

10. In general.--Interpretation of railroad tariff presents questions not unlike those involved in interpretation of any other document or contract in dispute: unnatural or strained construction is to be avoided, all provisions of tariff are to be considered in determining meaning of any one provision, and interpretation should give reasonable meaning to all provisions and not render part absurd or mere surplusage or create conflicts; every symbol, word, clause, and sentence should be given effect so far as possible; if ambiguity exists, it must, under rule contra proferentem, be construed against drafter; and when either of two tariffs may be applied, one providing lower rate is applied.--Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. United States, 596 F.2d 461 (464-5).

11. Intent of framers not controlling.--While strict construction of tariff is not warranted where it would ignore permissible and reasonable construction which conforms to intentions of framers, it is fundamental principle of contract interpretation that one party's unexpressed, subjective intentions do not bind other party.-- Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. United States, 596 F.2d 461 (465-6).

12. Ambiguities construed against maker.--While if ambiguity exists it must, under rule contra proferentem, be construed against drafter, application of rule presupposes ambiguity which is substantial and reasonable after tariffs are considered as whole; strict construction against carrier is not warranted where it ignores permissible and reasonable construction which conforms to intent of framers, avoids possible violations of law, and accords with practical application given by shippers and carriers.--Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. United States, 596 F.2d 461 (464).

Where tariff provides that rate, including unloading and wharfage services, applies to export freight delivered shipside, and further provides that rate applies to government export freight even if not delivered shipside, but §22 quotation states that government is entitled to lowest available rate, but such rate does not include absorption of wharfage or dockage, ambiguity exists and §22 quotation applies; railroad's action against government to recover charges, dismissed.--Id., pp.465-7.

Tariff items containing ambiguous language must be resolved in favor of shipper.--Roman Meal Co. v. Burlington Northern, Inc., 356 I.C.C. 562 (565).

§10762. GENERAL TARIFF REQUIREMENTS

Types of Rates, Charges, Services Published

27. Joint rates.--All parties to effective joint rate must agree to change, railroad may not unilaterally change joint-line rate once it has gone into effect, and where carrier has not concurred in proposed change in its joint rates, and makes its nonconcurrence known, such joint rates cannot lawfully be changed; moreover, §6(3) [now §10762] would be violated by refusal of tariff publishing agent to comply with carrier's instructions to seek special permission to publish change in proposed increased rates, without concurrence of participating joint-line carriers, after rates were filed but before they became effective.--Southern Ry. Co.--Petition for Declaratory Order, 357 I.C.C. 656 (661-3)*.

Changes in Tariffs

170. Statutory notice required.--Section 6(3) [now §10762] provides that, absent special permission, rate presently in effect may only be changed upon 30 days' notice, and tariff circular rule 54(a) provides that, absent special permission, proposed rate cannot be changed, withdrawn, or canceled for at least 30 days after date when rates have become effective, but rule 54(b) permits Commission, for good cause shown, to allow filed rates to be withdrawn before effectiveness; thus, §6(3) would be violated by refusal of tariff publishing agent to comply with carrier's instructions to seek special permission to publish change in proposed increased rates, without concurrence of participating joint-line carriers, after rates were filed but before they became effective.--Southern Ry. Co.--Petition for Declaratory Order, 357 I.C.C. 656 (661-3)*.

172. Modification of notice period; special permission.--Section 6(3) [now §10762], as implemented by tariff circular rule 54(b), permits Commission "for good cause shown" to allow filed rates to be withdrawn before effectiveness, and it is Commission which is empowered to determine what constitutes "good cause", so that any action of publishing agent which interferes with Commission's obligation to receive and act on application is unjustified intrusion into rights and duties of Commission; thus, §6(3) would be violated by refusal of tariff publishing agent to comply with carrier's instructions to seek special permission to publish change in proposed increased rates, without concurrence of participating joint-line carriers, after rates were filed but before they became effective.---Southern Ry. Co.--Petition for Declaratory Order, 357 I.C.C. 656 (662-3)*.

CHAPTER 109---LICENSING

Abandonment

56. Physical abandonment vs. discontinuance of use.--Commission has jurisdiction over abandonment of line of railroad, and over discontinuance of operation of line; Commission can not only authorize abandonment of service over line, but also regulate abandonment of line itself, i.e., rail properties, including track and other materials.--In re Boston & Maine Corp., 596 F.2d 2 (6); thus, State agency was without jurisdiction, by virtue of federal preemption, to issue order preventing railroad from dismantling lines for which Commission had granted certificates to abandon.--Id., p. 5.

Conditions Imposed

80. In general.--In view of Commission's power not only to authorize abandonment of service over line, but also to regulate abandonment of line itself (i.e., rail properties), and its power to condition abandonment certificates, Commission has power to regulate and authorize dismantling of rail, track, and ties on branch lines it has authorized to be abandoned; thus, State agency was without jurisdiction, by virtue of federal preemption, to issue order preventing railroad from dismantling lines in question.--In re Boston & Maine Corp., 596 F.2d 2 (5-7).

SUBCHAPTER II---OTHER CARRIERS AND MOTOR CARRIER BROKERS

§10922. CERTIFICATE OF MOTOR AND WATER COMMON CARRIERS

22. Evidence.--

Novak criteria: Novak criteria are guideline not rigid rules to be mechanically applied; important matter is that applicant provide reasonably clear picture of required transportation service.--Barrieau Exp., Inc.--Pur.--Trans World Van Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 460 (467).

Novak criteria amount primarily to procedural rule which merely requires Commission to consider applicants' evidence in light favorable to them in order to determine if their initial burden of proof has been met.--Central Transport, Inc.--Pur.--Piedmont Petroleum, 127 M.C.C. 1 (19)*.

Representative points.--Under inferred evidence rule, applicant need not demonstrate public convenience and necessity for each and every point, since showing of need at numerous representative points raises rebuttable presumption of requirement for extended service at those points for which testimony is not available; but where only testimony of need in record dealt with point several hundred miles from point at issue, there was no basis upon which Commission could infer that this evidence gave rise to presumption, even if it had existed, would have been rebutted by protestants' evidence that point was adequately served by existing carriers.--Packer Transp. Co. v. United States, 596 F.2d 891 (894-5)*.

Neither is this case where shippers demonstrate need for flexibility in transportation such as would justify grant to serve all points within state.--Id., p. 895.

Practice of permitting area-wide authority on basis of only representative showing of need for new service throughout area is amply supported by precedent, since representative showing of need gives rise to inference that all points in given area will benefit from new service; thus, while traditional practice of Commission in area of petroleum transportation is to grant radial operating authority from designated point to all points within specified radius, Commission's conclusion that applicant showed need for service at sufficiently representative number of points to justify grant of all points authority is sustained, particularly in view of uncertainty of future petroleum needs.--Miller Transporters, Inc. v. United States, 594 F.2d 463 (466-7)*.

106. Restriction of operation.-- Where protestant objected to grant of authority from certain point, applicant attempted to amend application to exclude that point but law judge rejected amendment, and applicant presented no evidence as to need for service at that point, Commission's general policy against atomization of operating authorities could not justify grant of authority to serve that point. Vacated.--Packer Transp. Co. v. United States, 596 F.2d 891 (896)*.

When Commission granted certificate but restricted it against service to points at which protestants would be significantly harmed, compromise effected by restriction was rational accommodation of competing interests of applicant and protestants; affirmed.--Miller Transporters, Inc. v. United States, 594 F.2d 463 (468)*.

Restrictions on motor operations frequently create undesirable complications and should not be imposed except where it is shown conclusively that they are necessary in public interest and consistent with practicable and effective transportation regulation.--Walker Frt. Lines, Inc., Transferee, 127 M.C.C. 472 (478-9).

Failure of certificate to include restriction which might have been appropriate is not inadvertence which properly can be corrected by Commission.--D & L Transport, Inc.--Pur.--Sprout & Davis, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 62 (67-8).

Commission is not bound by restrictions agreed to by parties which achieve results inconsistent with public interest and are inimical to practicable and effective reguation.--Id., p. 68.

Restrictions, whether positively or negatively phrased, are acceptable if imposed for legitimate purpose; however, Commisson is not bound by restrictions agreed to by parties where they achieve results inconsistent with public interest and inimical to practicable and effective regulation.--Estes Express Lines--Pur. (Portion)--Pollard, 127 M.C.C. 27 (32).

Interchange: There is strong policy against incumbering grants of authority with restrictions against interchange; such restrictions contravene express proviso in §216(c) [now §10703] that carriers have privilege of establishing through routes with other common carriers in order to fulfill their public obligations.--Takin Bros. Frt. Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Chi-Fli, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 408 (419).

Shippers: When contract carrier permit is converted into common carrier certificate, and permit is presently restricted to service for named shipper, certificate is not similarly restricted, since such restriction is inconsistent with common carrier obligation to serve general public.--Ruan Transport Corp.--Pur.--Harold Waggoner & Co., 127 M.C.C. 52 (57)*.

Tacking: Arbitrary imposition of no-tacking restriction would greatly reduce service which can be performed, undesirable result when §5(2) transaction is found in public interest.--Matlack, Inc.--Control--CF Tank Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 153 (163).

107. Competition.--

Existing carriers: Motor carriers enjoy no vested immunity from competition; thus, when evidence supported granted of area-wide authority to transport petroleum products, it was reasonable for Commission to impose restriction protecting only protestant's most significant traffic.--Miller Transporters, Inc. v. United States, 594 F.2d 463 (469)*.

125. Convenience and necessity; demand for service in general.--Because Act does not define term "public convenience and necessity", Commission possesses wide range of discretionary authority in determining whether public interest warrants certification of any particular proposed service.--Packer Transp. Co. v. United States, 596 F.2d 891 (893)*.

In evaluating evidence supporting application, central issue is whether advantages to those members of public that would use proposed service outweigh disadvantages, real or potential, to existing carriers and those who depend upon their services.--Barrieau Exp., Inc.--Pur.---Trans World Van Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 460 (467).

Conversions of authority: In conversion proceeding, where carrier seeks common carrier certificate in lieu of contract carrier permit, directly related to §5 transaction, in determining whether public convenience and necessity require conversion of permit whose transfer is approved, Commission must consider, inter alia, nature and extent of past operations, whether proposed operations would be those of common carrier, and whether public support is sufficient to sustain applicant's burden of proof; moreover, when proposed conversion is directy related to §5 transaction, conversion is permitted without full proof ordinarily required, such as evidence of substantial past operations, willingness to surrender unused contract carrier rights, and adequate public support.--Ruan Transport Corp.--Pur.--Harold Waggoner & Co., 127 M.C.C. 52 (55)*.

When applicants show purchased contract carrier authority is active, they must demonstrate public need for common in lieu of contract carrier authority, but liberal approach is used when proposed conversion is directly related to §5 transaction, because applicants have certain equities in their favor, particularly where commodities or territory are limited and effects of conversion are likewise limited; thus, when vendor's operations have been continuous and substantial, are specialized, and are adaptable to common carriage, while public support is sufficient under liberal approach to support applicants' burden of proof, and conversion will have little effect on protestants but will eliminate all question of dual operations, conversion is granted.--Id., pp. 56-7.

Conversion from contract to common authority necessarily results in expanded service; thus, restriction in permit limiting service to named shipper is not imposed on certificate.--Id., p.57.

Economy and efficiency: While Commission's general policy statement concerning operational feasibility (38 FR 32856) declares policy in favor of two-way operations as being more economical, such policy does not justify grant to point in question, where record supports only inbound service to points other than to that at issue and shows that service at that point might defeat economical operation of existing carrier, so that record does not contain substantial evidence from which Commission could draw inferences that there is in fact need for inbound service to point and that operating economies are such that this inbound service should be accompanied by outbound service.--Packer Transp. Co. v. United States, 596 F.2d 891 (895-6)*.

Existing carriers; service: Where existing carrier provides adequate service at point in question, there is no showing of need for service at representative points such as would raise inference of need for service at that point, Commission's policy favoring two-way grants of authority cannot support grant of service at point at question which would defeat economical operation of existing carier when no evidence exists to support that grant, and Commission's policy against atomization of authorities is likewise inapplicable, application should have been denied; vacated.--Packer Transp. Co. v. United States, 596 F.2d 891 (894-6)*.

Future need: Commission must consider future needs and changes in commerce even when they are uncertain; thus, in view of nation's uncertain energy situation, it was not irrational for Commission to choose to meet need for increased flexibility in carriage of oil products by deciding that by finding that applicant's showing of shipper need at representative points was adequate to support grant of area-wide authority.--Miller Transporters, Inc. v. United States, 594 F.2d 463 (466-7)*.

Household goods: When vendee, authorized to purchase another carrier's authority and to eliminate related gateways, applies also for direct authority to serve certain points, eight large companies with national household goods moving requirements support proposed service, have found its existing service outstanding, identify amount and destinations of traffic, and indicate that relatively little traffic should be diverted from protestants, application is granted, since authority will complement operating rights granted on gateway elimination basis and will make full service available to shippers without substantially affecting protestants.--Barrieau Exp., Inc.--Pur.--Trans World Van Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 460 (468).

Single-line service: Joint-line service is presumably less competitive than single-line service.--Walker Frt. Lines, Inc., Transferee, 127 M.C.C. 472 (477-8).

128. Change in route.--

Alternate routes: Alternate route authority is rendered inoperative by sale of part of underlying service route.--Eldridge--Purchase--Point Exp., Inc., 127 M.C.C. 498 (503).

Gateway elimination: The initial decision in this case approved the purchase transaction sought herein. Protestants contend that the Administrative Law Judge should not have granted the requested authority since much of this authority was not directly related to the elimination of gateways resulting from approval of the purchase application. The Commission recently defined its policy regarding gateway elimination requests directly related to a proposed §5 (now §11343) transaction in 127 MCC 309. In a gateway proceeding, as in all proceedings under §10922 (former §207), the sole issue is whether a proposed service is required by public convenience and necessity. Expansion of territorial authorization is proper in a gateway proceeding when proper notice and adequate shipper support have been adduced, and when necessary to effectuate purpose of gateway elimination and the §5 applications. These evidentiary and notice requirements have been met herein. Gateway elimination applications under §10922 should be considered in a manner which helps effectuate the purpose of an approved consolidation. Such applications can also seek new authority.--Santini Bros., Inc.--Pur.--Trans-Universal, 127 M.C.C. 481 (482-83)*.

Under McNicholas criteria (122 MCC 786, 127 MCC 309), which relax Childress criteria (61 MCC 421), §5 [now §11343 et seq.] related gateway elimination proposal should be denied only when record clearly demonstrates that there will be significant adverse impact upon competitive structure along direct route; thus, when elimination would allow vendee to provide direct service, shippers found its interline service excellent and support its continuance, and protestants show no proof of harm from through operations during temporary authority or any additional harm which might accrue from direct service, while large shippers strongly support proposed service and indicate that little traffic will be diverted from protestants, elimination is granted.--Barrieau Exp., Inc.--Pur.--Trans World Van Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 460 (465-6).

While McNicholas (127 MCC 309) holds that elimination of internal gateways can be considered in conjunction with §5 finance proposals, that holding does not include internal gateways which ceased to exist when or before finance related gateway elimination application was filed; thus, when prior gateway elimination proposal was denied, so that internal gateway ceased to exist before present application was filed, sought authority can be granted only on new authority basis, not on gateway elimination basis.--Id., p. 467.

Denial of underlying §5 application renders moot issues presented in related gateway elimination application; dismissed.--Takin Bros. Frt. Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Chi-Fli, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 408 (423).

While gateway elimination rules generally prohibit tacking of separate grants of irregular-route authority, rules were not intended to deprive public of benefits of single-line service resulting from consolidation of carriers; therefore, gateway elimination applications concerning gateways created by joinder of grants of authority held by buyer with those of seller and authorized to be purchased in §5 [now §11343] proceeding, and those concerning gateways created by joinder of separate segments of authority held by either buyer or seller ("interior gateways") are directly related to §5 proceeding, so that, after consummation, buyer will be able to conduct service as extensive in scope as parties could lawfully conduct on interline basis.--J. V. McNicholas Transfer Co.--Control--Tom's Exp., 127 M.C.C. 309 (310, 312)*.

Reduced standard of proof is imposed in directly related gateway elimination proposals, since most applications for unification under §5 are filed for purpose of joining rights to be acquired with those held, and transaction would be rendered valueless if acquiring carrier is unable to integrate acquired rights into its operations system or is prohibited from participating in markets previously served by interlining.--Id., p. 312 therefore, related application should be denied only when record clearly demonstrates that there will be significant adverse impact on competitive structure along direct route.--Id., p. 313.

Since evidence of past operations for two years prior to 1973 (49 CFR 1065.1(d)(2) (iii)) is not pertinent for most gateway elimination proposals filed as related to finance proposals; abstract of shipments covering period six months prior to date of parties' agreement, as required by §5 application form OP-F-44, appendix D-4, is sufficient.--Id., p. 313.

Lack of opposition constitutes indication that existing motor carriers do not expect to suffer any material detriment from grant of authority sought.--Id., p. 314, 315.

Mere allegation by existing carrier is insufficient to demonstrate significant harm.--Id., p. 316.

Under standard adopted regarding gateway applications relate to §5 proposals, circuity of less than 20 percent supports presumption that direct service will have no adverse effect; even when circuity exceeds 20 percent adverse effect must be demonstrated by protestants for application to be denied.--Id., p. 317.

"Pending application exemption" to no-tacking rule permits carriers to continue existing service by tacking while their requests for direct authority under 1974 regulations are pending; as in case of 300-mile exemption, pending application exemption would not permit tacking of same segments of authority to purchased authority after consummation.--Id., p. 312.

Control application filed in May 1973 and amended, not dismissed and refiled, at hearing to include merger, and second hearing was not trial de novo, application was filed prior to Nov. 1974 and was not required to comply with gateway elimination requirements of 119 MCC 530; thus, when applicants complied with earlier procedures requiring letter of intent to eliminate to be filed within 60 days of Dec. 3, 1974, no-tacking restriction is not imposed, particularly in view of fuel economy which will result from elimination.--Matlack, Inc.--Control--CF Tank Lines, Inc., 127 M.C C 153 (162)

Sub-E grants are transferable subject to same standards as transfer under §5, and dormancy test of 127 MCC 1 applies.--Id., p. 164.

In considering gateway elimination applications directly related to §5 transactions, Childress standards (61 MCC 421, 428) are applied, but related application should be denied only when record clearly demonstrates that there will be significant adverse impact upon competitive structure along direct route; thus, when vendee has been effective competitor with carriers providing direct service under its interchange arrangement with vendor, there will be no institution of new service because present joint-line service will be replaced by single-line service with little change in circuity, and protestant fails to present evidence of actual traffic diversion which is likely to occur, elimination application is granted.--Curtis, Inc.--Pur.--Hilt Truck Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 120 (128-9).

Under gateway elimination rules, notion of "partial gateway elimination" (83 MCC 451, 455) is out of date.--Id., pp. 129-30.

230. Regular-irregular-route characteristics.--Where applicant seeks to convert purchase certificate of registration authorizing irregular-route operation into certificate of public convenience and necessity authorizing regular-route operation, showing of past operations which have evolved into regular route is support that public need for such regular route exists, and, which showing that route was operated as regular route under temporary authority is insufficient to support finding of public need for permanent grant, in weighing gains to be achieved by granting regular-route authority against harm to public, past operations with shipper support show that grant will bring gains to shipping public outweighing any adverse effects; regular-route authority granted.--Sturm Freightways, Inc.--Pur.--Barrick Transfer, 127 M.C.C. 134 (140-3); but for that portion of route over which only call and demand type of service was provided, need for grant is not shown.--Id., p. 142.

231. Combination of routes.--General rule in combining operating rights is that where common carrier holds separate and unrestricted authorities which have common point of service to which given shipment may be transported under one authority and from which same shipment may be transported under other, carrier may furnish through service; thus, where carrier's lead certificate authorizes service from Nashville north over named highway serving all intermediate points and its sub-certificte authorizes operations between Nashville and Mitchellville over same highway serving all intermediate points, and lead certificate's restriction to northbound traffic applies only to old city limits of Nashville as they existed when certificate was granted not to expanded metroplitan county, carrier is clearly authorized to serve common points along highway beyond old Nashville city limits, such authority being directly authorized and not derived from implied authority to service commercial zone, and lead and sub certificates may lawfully be joined outside old city limits, creating circuity of only two to three miles.--Curtis Transports---Transferee, 127 M.C.C. 488 (491-2)*.

Passenger Carriers

260. Carriage of property, baggage, mail, etc., with passengers.-- Purpose of limitation in §208(b), now §10922(c)(4), is to assure that express shipments not deflect operator from principal obligaion to provide passenger service, so that §208(d) only limits line-haul operations of bus companies; thus, nothing in Act prohibits pickup and delivery of express within terminal area in vehicle that carries no passengers so long as that service remains incidental to principal responsibility of carrier, viz., transportation of passengers.--Purolator Courier Corp. v. I.C.C., 598 F.2d 225 (227)*.

§10923. PERMITS OF MOTOR AND WATER CONTRACT CARRIERS AND FREIGHT FORWARDERS

25. Necessity, demand for service.--Substantial evidence supports Commisson's decision that grant of authority to operate as armored carrier of precious metals is in public interest under criteria of §209(b) [now §10923(b)]; affirmed.--Internatl. Detective Serv., Inc. v. I.C.C., 595 F.2d 862 (866-8)*.

27. Fitness, in general.--Even if contract carrier applicant did engage in unauthorized operations, such actions would not necessarily mandate reversal of Commission's expert judgment that proposed service was in public interest; grant affirmed.--International Detective Serv., Inc. v. I.C.C. 595 F 2d 862 (868)*.

§10925. EFFECTIVE PERIODS OF CERTIFICATES, PERMITS, AND LICENSES

2. Interpretation of licenses, general principles.--Interpretation of scope of certificates issued by Commission is primarily its responsibility; Commission has great expertise in such interpretations.--Chem-Haulers, Inc. v. I.C.C., 594 F.2d 166 (168)*.

In application to sell part of carrier's routes, law judge's conclusion, that certificate in which routes were granted should have been restricted to prevent sale other than as unit, constituted impermissible attack upon determination made in proceeding where certificate was granted; certificate is plain and unambiguous and must be construed according to its terms, since in interpreting motor carrier authority, record may be considered only if authority itself is patently indefinite or ambiguous.--Jones Truck Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Deaton, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 428 (448).

Certificate which has been issued and allowed to become final and effective without objection by interested parties, is conclusive in absence of fraud, misrepresentation, or inadvertence on part of Commission.--D & L Transport, Inc.--Pur.--Sprout & Davis, Inc., 127 M.C C. 62 (66).

30. Modification of license.--Certificate which has been issued and allowed to become final and effective without objection by interested parties, is conclusive in absence of fraud, misrepresentation, or inadvertence on part of Commission.--D & L. Transport, Inc.--Pur.--Sprout & Davis, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 62 (67).

Actions intended, even though based on misinformation, can hardly be classed as inadvertent; failure of certificate to include restriction which might have been appropriate is not inadvertence which properly can be corrected by Commission; and finding of inadvertent error does not compel modification in all cases, whether or not to revoke or modify certificate being question for Commission to decide.--Id., pp. 67-8.

While petitioner argues that its certificate should be modified because when certificate was purchased restriction imposed had effect of cancelling certain authorities which ought to have been transferred, argument that certificate does not conform to intentions of parties, report and recommended order, and order of Commission is not supported by facts; Commission is not bound by restrictions agreed to by parties which achieve results inconsistent with public interest and are inimical to practicable and effective regulation.--Id., pp. 67-8.

Even if certificate contained inadvertent error, when petitioner has allowed authority to remain dormant for 13 years, and other carriers have acted in reliance of petitioner's acceptance of certificate as issued, reacivation would be detrimental to other carriers and would require demonstration that renewed operations were required by public convenience and necessity.--Id., p. 68.

§10926. TRANSFERS OF CERTIFICATES AND PERMITS

5. In general.--The Commission herein adopted rules that revise and simplify the motor carrier transfer rules applicable to small motor carriers. The adopted rules covered changes in notice procedures, use of an informal letter procedure to process strictly legal changes in motor carrier identification, a statement of the criteria that must be met for approval of transfers, the handling of petitions for reconsideration, the form, filing, and content to be included in applications, and operations by fiduciaries. The Commission also defined several terms including the term "transfer". The Commission also concluded that the transfer rules shall continue to apply to broker transactions. The adopted rules will be codified at 49 CFR 1132.1 through 1132.5--Transfer of Motor Carrier Operating Rights, 127 M.C.C. 508 (509-14).

Since §11343 does not cover transactions where noncarrier is acquiring carrier if purchaser is not affiliated or connected with carrier, such transfers being exempt under §11343(d)(1), they may be processed under §10926; transfer rules (49 CFR 1132) set forth simple, quick method for transfer of certificates and permits without formal hearing.--Curtis Transports--Transferee, 127 M.C.C. 488 (489-90)*.

Transferee establishes that he is financially fit and able to operate purchased rights.--Id., p. 490.

Where transferor holds lead certificate authorizing transportation between Memphis, TN, and Louisville, KY, over specified routes, service at Nashville being restricted to northbound traffic, and sub certificate authorizing transportation between Nashville and Mitchellville, TN, serving all intermediate points, and transferee seeks to acquire that portion of transferor's lead and sub certificates authorizing service between Nashville and specified points over specified routes, transferor to retain right to provide closed-door, overhead service between Memphis and Nashville over same routes, it is not necessary to transfer all or part of route in sub certificate in order to allow transferee to serve intermediate points south from Nashville, since purpose of purchase of sub certificate was solely to eliminate Nashville service restriction in transferor's lead, and certificates must be viewed as if they were one, so that transfer of only restriction in sub certificate is proper.--Id., p. 493.

Transfer of intermediate point service and retention of overhead rights over same route will not create duplicate rights when no duplication of service results, so that split of rights is consistent with 49 CFR 1132.5(a)(4) and is not inconsistent with 1132.1(c).--Id., pp. 493-4.

Split of rights is along clearly defined lines and will not result in minute and multiple division of authority in violation of 49 CFR 1132.5(a)(2), and will not result in any loss of service to public.--Id., pp. 494-5.

While transaction will result in duplication of rights within Nashville commercial zone, when parties will provide different types of service and possibility that they will serve same shippers is remote, transferred authority is not restricted.--Id., p. 495.

Modification of transfer rules (49 CFR 1132.5(b)) prevents more stringent application of dormancy standard from being applied to transfers than to §5 [now §11343 et seq.] matters.--Walker Frt. Lines, Inc., Transferee, 127 M.C.C. 472 (474).

Section 1132.5(b) does not require traffic abstract for six months prior to filing of application, but only for six months prior to date of Commisson's request for abstract.--Id., p. 474.

Since consideration of transferability of possibly dormant rights is similar to that under §5, applicants may submit evidence which they deem pertinent, although transfer rules do not specifically provide for submission of evidence of shipments covering any particular period; thus, while abstracts cover period just prior to signing of agreement between parties, lessening weight to be given evidence, in view of fact that seller has right to build up all or any portion of operation so long as seller does not come under unauthorized control of prospective buyer, showing of 183 shipments during 18 month period shows operation not dormant considering limited scope of authority and sparse population of area.--Id., pp. 475-6.

Even if authority were dormant, its transfer could be approved under section 1132.5(b), which adopts three-part Central test (127 MCC 1, 11) for dormancy: applicants must first show some benefit to public expected from transfer, then protestants must show harm, and if protestants show harm, applicants must show public need for service; transfer rules were thus liberalized in view of congressional intention that there be less restriction regulation of sale of operating rights involving small carriers and noncarriers.--Id., p. 476.

When there is no reason to discourage entry of noncarrier enterprises into interstate commerce, and introduction of small competitive service in area would benefit shipping public, public benefit, of sort which could be claimed in most proposed transfers under §212(b) [now §10926], is shown; and protestant does not show that it will be harmed by possible joint-line service between transferor and transferee, since joint-line service is presumably less competitive than single-line service.--Id., pp. 477-8.

Further modification of section 1132.5(b) eliminates dormancy as issue in transfer proceedings, but this change is to be given prospective effect.--Id., p. 478.

Proposed split of authority, involving split of commercial zone, violates 49 CFR 1132.5(a)(2) in that rights would be divided at point other than clean cut geographical lines, and would permit multiple division of operating rights so that numerous carriers might operate under rights initially granted as unit; denied.--Takin Bros. Frt. Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Chi-Fli, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 408 (416).

§10930. LIMITATIONS ON CERTIFICATES AND PERMITS

Motor Carrier Dual Operations

2. Construction and interpretation.--The Commission's approach to evaluating applications involving dual operations has varied through the years and the Commission took the opportunity herein to briefly trace the construction and interpretation of former §210 (now §10930). However, the Commission issued a general finding in Ex Parte No. 55 (Sub-No. 27) that the holding of both common and contract carrier authority is consistent with the public interest and the national transportation policy. The Commission will no longer consider the dual operations issue in applications for motor carrier authority filed after June 1, 1978, "unless there is a showing in the particular case that rate or service preference is likely to be extended or other discrimination is likely to be practiced." However, once a party has shown that there is a reasonable likelihood of injury, the two step approach to dual operations enuniciated in 128 MCC 721 will be applied.--Southwest Equipment Rental, Inc.--Pur.--Interstate, 127 M.C.C. 223 (224-25)*.

4. Discrimination; criteria to assess.--The Commission herein traced the criteria used by the Commission to evaluate the possibility of discrimination which would arise from approval of an application involving dual operations. The Commission briefly discussed the early "mere possibility" standard, the later "realistic opportunity" of discrimination standard, and the present two step approach to applications involving dual operations which was set forth in 128 MCC 721.--Southwest Equipment Rental, Inc.--Pur.--Interstate, 127 M.C.C. 223 (224-25)*.

§10931. MOTOR COMMON CARRIERS PROVIDING TRANSPORTATION ENTIRELY IN ONE STATE

10. Scope determined by State authority.--Since scope of carrier's operations under certificate of registration is governed by interpretation by issuing State agency, and Commission will not second-guess State, when applicant seeks to convert purchased registration certificate into regular-route certificate of public convenience and necessity, it has burden of obtaining interpretation from State agency of meaning of State grant, particularly since language used by State in issuing authority in question is common to State certificates, does not specify regular routes, and, in absence of showing to contrary, is usually regarded by Commission as being irregular-route in nature.--Sturm Brightways, Inc.--Pur.--Barrick Transfer, 127 M.C.C. 134$(140).

15. Conversion to certificate of PC&N.--Where §5 [now §11343 et seq.] application and directly related conversion application are filed and application seeks authority greater than that in certificate of registration, extension must be shown to be required by public convenience and necessity; thus, when purchased certificate of registration is assumed to authorize irregular-route operations, and applicant purchaser seeks to convert it into regular-route certificate of public convenience and necessity, so that applicant is required to prove public convenience and necessity to support grant of application, applicant's showing that past operations have evolved into regular-route service, that under temporary authority route was operated as regular-route service, and that supporting shipper testimony shows public need, while grant will not seriously harm existing carriers, grant of regular-route certificate for that portion of route is warranted, but for portion of route where applicant provided only infrequent call and demand service, it is denied.--Strum Freightways, Inc.--Barrick Transfer, 127 M.C.C. 134 (140-3).

Carriers to Provide an Furnish Transportation

1. General nature of duty.--Under statutory requirement in §216(b) [now §11101] that motor carriers provide safe and adequate service, carriers cannot adopt tariff restrictions on commodities transported or territories served where inconsistent with scope of operating authority, and carriers are required to serve shippers fully and fairly and to provide fully responsive service.--Unloading Restrictions on Meats & PHP, 357 I.C.C. 174 (180)*.

6. Cancellation of service.--While Conrail has responsibility under §1(4) [now §11101] to provide service upon reasonable request and owes public reasonable efforts to maintain service they seek to terminate, duty to provide service is not absolute; balancing test, weighing interests of shippers against those of carriers, is proper standard by which to assess Conrail's proposed cancellation of TOFC service at certain ramps, and where exact profit and loss figures are difficult to determine, and there is clear congressional emphasis on efficiently reorganizing Conrail's services in question, Commission is justified in deciding that even if stations involved are individually profitable to some extent, Conrail is justified in terminating them.--Pennsylvania v. I.C.C., 590 F.2d 1187 (1196-9)*.

Since danger of becoming locked into detrimental service obligation can deter regulated carriers from ever implementing possible service improvements and innovations, sensitivity to possible excesses of regulation requires that Commission recognize this danger and allow carriers to respond to new service opportunities without undue fear of thereby becoming entrapped in ever broader service obligations; where discontinuance of unsuccessful service is opposed by those using it, Commission must carefully consider actual necessity for service and burdens incurred by carrier consider actual necessity for service and burdens incurred by carrier in providing it, goal being to enforce true common carrier obligations where they exist or have arisen through commercial necessity, without unduly inhibiting carriers from implementing service improvements or innovatons that may contain unforeseen problems.--Unloading Restrictions on Meats & PHP, 357 I.C.C. 174 (193-4)*.

Where commercial necessity does not require carriers to provide unloading service in transportation of loose and carcass meats affected by consignee-unloading provisions of tariffs at issue, carriers are not required to maintain tariff provisions for carrier unloading in addition to provisions applicable for consignee unloading.--Id., p. 194.

Over What Lines Transportation to be Afforded

20. Carrier's own lines.--In distribution of cars, carrier's first duty is to its on-line shippers.--United States Steel Corp.--Declaratory Order, 357 I.C.C. 647 (648, 655)*.

In absence of tariff provisions to contrary, line-haul rates in carrier's tariff to given point include delivery only to such industries as are located upon its own rails.--Aluminum Co. of America v. St. Louis-S. F. Ry. Co., 357 I.C.C. 96 (98).

What Embraced in Transportation to be Furnished

25. Terminal operations, in general.--When defendant railroads fail fully to absorb switching charges of Terminal R. Ala. State Docks at Mobile, but do not refuse to perform switching service, no violation of §1(4) [now §11101] is found.--Aluminum Co. of America v. St. Louis-S. F. Ry. Co., 357 I.C.C. 96 (98).

31. Cars on own wheels.--General rule is that carriers which benefit from loaded revenue movements of private cars may not claim that such cars, when moved empty for repairs on their own wheels, are property subject to separate transportation charge; however, car does not automatically maintain permanent status as instrumentality of transportation throughout its useful life, but may be "property" to one carrier and "instrumentality of transportation" to another, distinguishing factor being that car cannot be "instrumentality of transportation" when moved by carrier unless carrier derives some economic benefit, direct or indirect, from movement or use.--General American Transp. Corp. v. Indiana Harbor, 357 I.C.C. 102 (126)*.

Direct benefit occurs when carrier has derived revenue of any sort from movement or use of particular car at any previous time or will derive revenue immediately following repair movements, while indirect benefit occurs when carrier makes use of private cars to fulfill its common carrier obligations, since existence of national private car fleet benefits all carriers which make use of it and derive any revenue thereby; prior or subsequent use of particular car need not be shown, but only that carrier which seeks to impose separate charge derives more than de minimus amount of revenue of any sort from use of any privately owned cars of type in question.--Id., pp. 126-7.

68. Loading and unloading.--While under statutory requirement that motor carriers must provide safe and adequate service (§216(b) [now §11101]), carriers are required fully to observe territorial and commodity scope of their certificates and to provide service fully responsive to shipper needs, in determining extent of particular service obligations, extent of shipper needs is not unimportant, and practical difficulties in providing service cannot be ignored; thus, Commission does not establish universal duty for motor carriers to provide unloading service in all instances, but nature of duty depends on particular case, requiring consideration of nature of commodities transported and commercial needs and practices of industry or shippers served.--Unloading Restrictions on Meats & PHP, 357 I.C.C. 174 (180-1)*.

When facts strongly support carriers' maintenance of consignee unloading rule for loose and carcass meats, consignees have physical capacity to unload, and carrier unloading is not sufficiently established as trade practice to warrant its mandatory continuation without regard to other factors, carrier-unloading is not commercial necessity, and practicable alternatives are unavailable, carriers may publish tariff rules for consignee unloading of loose and carcass meats.--Id., pp. 181-93.

Carriers cannot include charge for unloading in tariff rate where they maintain only consignee-unloading rule.--Id., p. 187.

Exceptions to Duty to Furnish Transportation

90. Embargoes, generally.--While it has been suggested that carriers whose unloading services are abused can apply to Commission for permission to refuse service to specific consignees, there appears to be little basis on which Commissoin can legally authorize refusal of service; when Commission adopted regulations to allow carriers to embargo c.o.d. service to consignees that created unnecessary delays (343 ICC 692), regulations required showing that embargo was necessary in order to preserve carrier's ability to serve others, and such showing would be very difficult to make on basis of unloading practices at consignee's premises.--Unloading Restrictions on Meats & PHP, 357 I.C.C. 174 (192)*.

§11102. CLASSIFICATION OF CARRIERS

7. Classification of carriers; commoditiy basis.--

Chemicals and related products: Certificate authorizing carriage of seven named chemicals and "related products" does not constitute unrestricted chemical authority; "related products" includes only those products principally formed from particular material and which have not taken on new character and use separate and distinct from original material used in formulation.--Lemmon Transport Co., Inc.--Control and Merger, 127 M.C.C. 575 (582-3)*.

Carrier, operating authority in question under temporary authority, did not exhibit bad faith in interpreting authority broadly despite awareness of Commission's restrictive interpretation, when it acted on advice of counsel, "related products" language was imprecise, and there was possibility that broad interpretation would be adopted by Commission when transfer application was acted upon.--Id., p. 584.

Ores: When carrier's certificate authorizes it to carry "products of ores" and carrier, relying on literal definition, argues that it is authorized to carry any article which has its origin in one of five commodities named in its certificate, Commission's holding, that authorization is limited to those products resulting from first stage of manufacture or processing (e.g., iron or aluminum metal in form of ingots, billets, pigs, blooms or slabs) is rational and supported by precedent; affirmed.--Chem-Haulers, Inc. v. I.C.C., 594 F.2d 165 (167-8)*.

Thus, because glass and glassware assume whole new identity separate from their components, they cannot be considered "products of sand"; and "products of ores" excludes steel in any form.--Id., pp. 167-8.

Petroleum and related products: Motor carrier engaged in transportation of petroleum products, in bulk, in tank vehicles, should not, except in certain circumstances, be restricted to transportation of only certain petroleum products; grant of authority to carry "all petroleum products", affirmed.--Miller Transporters, Inc. v. United States, 594 F.2d 463 (468)*.

While traditional practice of Commission in area of petroleum transportation is to grant radial operating authority from designated point to all points within specified radius, Commission's conclusion that applicant showed need for service at sufficiently representative number of points to justify grant of all points authority is sustained, particularly in view of uncertainty of future petroleum needs.--Id., pp. 466-7.

§11107. LEASED MOTOR VEHICLES

10. Leasing regulations, practices.--On its own volition and without prior Commisson approval, carrier can terminate any and all leases with local equipment lessors and owner-operators and opt to lease from non local concerns; such actions are always management option.--Capitol Corp.--Control--Prunty Motor Exp., 127 M.C.C. 518 (528).

When vendor and vendee operated under interchange agreement, indemnification agreement involved does not violate interchange regulations, and formula was used for division of revenues, although subject to guaranteed minimum revenue level for vendee, neither control nor domination of vendor by vendee can be inferred from lease arrangement.--Curtis, Inc.--Pur.--Hilt Truck Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 120 (125).

General Nature of Duty to Supply Cars

1. Duty to furnish safe and adequate car service.--Carrier's first duty is to its on-line shippers, and in times of shortage it is incumbent on carrier to distribute all its cars to its on-line shippers before distributing them to others; thus, when mine is served by and dependent upon railroad for car supply, obligation to meet all car requirements for movements of coal from mine is on that railroad.--United States Steel Corp.--Declaratory Order, 357 I.C.C. 647 (648, 655)*.

Formula for determining car supply obligations on basis of divisions of revenue rejected as impractical.--Id., pp. 648, 655.

Common carrier must furnish cars in good order, reasonably safe for purpose intended; railroads' use of private cars does not diminish their duty to furnish cars, and they must be prepared to accept any and all traffic tendered.--General American Transp. Corp. v. Indiana Harbor, 357 I.C.C. 102 (123-4)*.

6. Delegation by carriers.--Railroads' use of private cars does not diminish their duty to furnish cars, and they must be prepared to accept any and all traffic tendered.--General American Transp. Corp. v. Indiana Harbor, 357 I.C.C. 102 (123)*.

Types of Equipment

11. Tank cars.--While railroads historically have never been primary supplier of tank cars, their use of private cars does not diminish their duty to furnish cars, and they must be prepared to accept any and all traffic tendered.--General American Transp. Corp. v. Indiana Harbor, 357 I.C.C. 102 (123)*.

Distribution During Shortage

50. In general.--Carrier's first duty is to its on-line shippers, and in times of shortage it is incumbent on carrier to distribute all its cars to its on-line shippers before distributing them to others; thus, when mine is served by and dependent upon railroad for car supply, obligation to meet all car requirements for movements of coal from mine is on that railroad.--United States Steel Corp.--Declaratory Order, 357 I.C.C. 647 (648, 655)*.

Formula for determining car supply obligations on basis of divisions of revenue rejected as impractical.--Id., pp. 648, 655.

SUBCHAPTER I---CARRIER SECURITIES, EQUIPMENT TRUSTS, AND SECURITY INTERESTS

§11301. AUTHORITY OF CERTAIN CARRIERS TO ISSUE SECURITIES AND ASSUME OBLIGATIONS AND LIABILITIES

Carriers Subject to Section

1. Construction and interpretation.--Interstate ommerce Commission, under §§20a and 214 [now both §11301], as similar responsibilities as Securities and Exchange ommission with respect to disclosures in public interest; CC's responsibilities are also broader since approval for ecurity requires consideration whether security will impair arrier's ability properly to perform its service to ublic.--Compensating Balances and Short-term Borrowing, 357 .C.C. 466 (470-1).

Construction

12. "Security".--Proposed evidence of indebtedness s of type and form found by Commission not to be security ithin meaning of Act (87 MCC 436).--Akers Motor Lines, nc.--Control--General Motor, 127 M.C.C. 203 (205)*.

SUBCHAPTER III---COMBINATIONS

11343. CONSOLIDATION, MERGER, AND ACQUISITION OF CONTROL

2. Construction and interpretation.--

Transactions subject to section, generally: Section 11343(d)(1) exempts from the provisions of §11343 transactions in which the only parties are motor carriers and the aggregate gross operating revenues of those carriers were not more than $300,000 during a period of 12 consecutive months ending not more than six months before the date of the agreement of the parties covering the transaction. In 1975, the Commission submtted a legislative recommendation to increase the $300,000 revenue ceiling which draws the line between proceedings coming under the the provision of §11343 (formerly §5) and those coming under §10926 (formerly §212(b)), but Congress has not acted on this recommendation.--Transfer of Motor Carrier Operating Rights, 127 M.C.C. 508 (509).

Section 11343 does not cover transactions where noncarrier is acquiring carrier if purchaser is not affiliated or connected with carrier; such transfers are exempt under §11343(d)(1) and may be processed under §10926.--Curtis Transports--Transferee, 127 M.C.C. 488 (489-90)*.

7. Competition.--Commission does not administer §5 [now §11343 et seq.] with eye merely to preserving existing arrangements or competitive practices; overriding criterion is public interest in having best possible service available.--Central Transport, Inc.--Pur.--Piedmont Petroleum, 127, M.C.C. 1 (13)*.

Diversion; traffic studies.--Only traffic study required is on traffic moving six months prior to filing of application, and applicants are not required continually to retry their case; it is not necessary for applicants to update their shipping abstracts after first hearing.--Matlack, Inc.--Control--CF Tank Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 153 (160, 164).

8. Price to be paid.--Where vendee has already paid vendor entire amount of purchase price, manner of payment has aspects of premature consummation, and denial requires vendor to service debt incurred as though vendee has loaned it purchase price and taken security interest in operating rights as collateral. Denied.--M & M Transp. Co.--Pur.--Nelson Freightways, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 98 (101-2)*.

8b. Credit and financial structure considered.--When vendee has voluntarily instituted proceedings under Chapter XI of Bankruptcy Act and statutory criterion for Chapter XI is that debtor be insolvent or unable to pay his debts as they mature (11 USC $723), financial aspects of transaction are not in public interest; moreover, vendee does not intend to conduct operations under purchased rights but rather to sell them to other carriers, and operating authority is granted by Commission to persons seeking to render service to public, not in order that they may derive profit from sale of rights to others; denied.--M & M Transp. Co.--Pur.--Nelson Freightways, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 98 (102)*.

15. Routes, rights, transferred, retained, combined.--

Alternate routes: Alternate route authority is rendered inoperative by sale of part of underlying service route; but where applicant seeks to purchase alternate route, but underlying service route has been sold to other carriers so that alternate route is inoperative, applicant's application, supported by showing of shipper need and opposed by protestants who do not operate between points in question, for regular-route authority is granted so as to reestablish complete underlying service route in order to support purchase of alternate route at issue; purchase of alternate route approved.--Eldridge--Purchase--Point Exp., Inc., 127 M.C.C. 498 (503-5).

Combination of routes: In determining whether new or improved service will arise, Commission looks to see if applicants have participated in interline service with each other or with other carriers on traffic moving to or from respective territories; where there is sufficient interline service, single-line service proposed is considered improved not new service.--Jones Truck Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Deaton, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 428 (437).

While gateway elimination rules generally prohibit tacking of separate grants of irregular-route authority, rules were not intended to deprive public of benefits of single-line service resulting from consolidation of carriers; therefore, gateway elimination applications concerning gateways created by joinder of grants of authority held by buyer with those of seller and authorized to be purchased in $5 [now $11343 et seq.] proceeding, and those concerning gateways created by joinder of separate segments of authority held by either buyer or seller ("interior gateways") are directly related to $5 proceeding, so that, after consummation, buyer will be able to conduct service as extensive in scope as parties could lawfully conduct on interline basis.--J. V. McNicholas Transfer Co.--Control--Tom's Exp., 127 M.C.C. 309 (310, 312)*.

In gateway elimination application directly related to §5 [now §11343 et seq.] proceeding, Commission usually considers only those gateways created in connection with §5 authorization.--Central Transport, Inc.--Pur.--Piedmont Petroleum, 127 M.C.C. 1 (20)*.

When applicant seeks to eliminate internal gateways (i.e., those wholly within its present authority), but abstract of interline shipments shows that shipments supporting application were made in violation of tacking restriction in 49 CFR 1065.1(b), such shipments are not probative evidence of existing transferor-transferee joint-line service which would be terminated by failure to grant internal gateway eliminations.--Id., p. 21.

While applicant seeks to eliminate gateways in connection with authority it seeks in pending operating rights proceedings, Commission cannot eliminate gateway until gateway exists, so consideration of such gateways is improper at this time; moreover applicants do not indicate that any pending certificate has common joinder point with purchased authority, so that elimination of such gateways would not be directly related to §5 transaction, since where carrier seeks to eliminate gateways within its existing authority or in conjunction with pending applications, such filings should be made separately.--Id., pp. 21-2.

In gateway elimination proceeding directly related to §5 transaction, principal concern is that gateway elimination will not result in institution of new service clearly detrimental to competitive balance; thus, when protestants fail to show that they will be substantially harmed by elimination and applicant's traffic through gateways, although sparse, is supplemented by showing of shipper support, elimination application is granted.--Id., pp. 22-3.

Twenty-percent rule does not apply to gateway elimination proposals related to finance proceedings filed after Nov. 23, 1973, although use of E letter-notices in conjunction with finance applications filed prior to that date was permitted in limited circumstances up until Feb. 1974; thus, in acquisition proceeding, applicants are required fully to justify grant of direct authority sought in related gateway elimination application, regardless of circuity.--Id., p. 23.

Childress standards (61 MCC 421) were designed for use in independent §207 [now §10922] applications and do not have complete transferability to gateway applications related to §5 proposal; in latter cases, liberalized approach is employed, since grant of §5 application indicates that proceeding is found to be in public interest, so that to deny gateway application would destroy value of rights to vendee, preventing consummation and wasting administrative efforts; thus, related application should be denied only when record clearly demonstrates that there will be significant adverse impact upon competitive structure along direct route.--Id., 127 M.C.C. 284 (290-1)*.

Dormant operating rights: Operations under temporary authority may be considered with other evidence to determine if public interest would be served by transfer of reactivated dormant authority.--Lemmon Transport Co., Inc.--Control and Merger, 127 M.C.C. 575 (581)*.

Traffic abstracts covering period just prior to signing of agreement between parties and filing of appication ,are to be given less weight; but seller has right to build up all or any portion of its operation, whether in anticipation of sale or otherwise, so long as seller is not under unauthorized control, influence, or domination of prospective buyer, and Commission has permitted transfers even where service was instituted primarily for purpose of selling operating authority and service was carried on under transferee's control and influence, when fact of control did not affect bona fide nature of operations.-Walker Frt. Lines, Inc., Transferee, 127 M.C.C. 472 (475-6).

Approval of transactions involving disposition of oth regular-and irregular-route rights is denied and such ights considered dormant only when evidence clearly shows hat service to and from particular points or areas has been bandoned or discontinued for substantial periods and other vidence to overcome conclusion of dormancy is not resented.--Id., p. 476.

Central test (127 MCC 1, 11) for transfer of dor-ant rights applies to transfers under §212(b) [now §10926] 49 CFR 1132.5(b)).--Id., p. 476; subsequent modification of ransfer rules, for prospective application, eliminates ormancy as issue in transfer proceedings.--Id., p. 478.

Under criteria governing transfer of dormant ights established in 127 MCC 1 and 127 MCC 428, applicants ust initially show that transfer of dormant rights would esult in public benefit; this initial evidentiary burden oes not require testimony of shipper need, but can be met y showing that authority meshes well with vendee's existing operations, eliminates empty backhauls, makes better use of equipment, or in some other manner improves transportation service to public.--Barrieau Exp., Inc.--Pur.--Trans World Van Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 460 (463).

When law judge concluded that public to be benefited must be same public meant to be served by initial grant to vendor and assumed that this public were shippers expecting local service, but no evidence indicated that vendor's certificate was issued solely to provide local service, law judge's conclusion that vendee's acquisition of vendor's rights to extend former's operations would not benefit public originally intended to be served, is rejected.--Id., p. 463.

When purchased authority will mesh well with vendee's existing authority, allowing substitution of straight-line service for previously interline arrangements, and expansion of vendee's territorial authority will enable it to compete with larger household goods carriers, increasing competition which will improve public service, while empty backhauls created is inherent problem in household goods operation, vendee shows that transfer of vendor's dormant rights will create public benefit.--Id., p. 464.

Once applicants show that public will receive benefit from reactivation of dormant authority, protestants must show probability that they will be significantly harmed, and if protestants cannot show likely substantial harm, transfer of rights is appropriate despite dormancy and new competitive service issues.--Id., p. 464.

When protestants have not produced evidence of losses related to transaction since temporary authority was given vendee, and protestant large household goods carriers fail to show how relatively small vendee's operations could reasonably impair any specific portions of their operations, protestants fail to meet their burden; thus, transfer of vendor's rights is consistent with public interest.--Id., pp. 464-5.

In determining whether rights are dormant, Commission applies test of substantiality, which provides that where regular-route carrier has conducted comparatively substantial operation over entire system, it is not required to show service to and from each and every point it is authorized to serve or under every conceivable combination of routes, in order to establish that it has beenconducting continuous and substantial service under its rights; test is flexible and takes into consideration character, population, and industry of area served, nature of commodities transported, type of service authorized, and financial and material capabilities of carrier.--Jones Truck Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Deaton, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 428 (430-1).

Shipments interlined instead of being handled direct should not be considered in deciding whether rights are active.--Id., p. 431.

Higher degree of utilization must be shown to negate appearance of dormancy in case of regular-route general-commodity carrier; however, when average of 68 shipments per week moved over routes in question, substantial variety of commodities were transported, and representative number of points were served, rights are found active.--Id., p. 431.

When entire route is 400 miles long and only 80 mile segment is said to be inactive, that 20 percent segment is not large enough to require separate consideration, particularly when area served by it is agricultural and contains only small towns; when carrier serves 80 percent of route actively, comparatively substantial operation is conducted over entire system.--Id., pp. 432-3.

Shipments made after applicants struck their agreement of sale, insofar as they show continuation of service performed prior to date of contract, are entitled to weight.--Id., p. 432.

Under tripartite test governing transfer of dormant operating rights, Commission looks initially to whether applicants have made showing that there is some reason why transaction in general and sale of dormant authority in particular will be consistent with public interest; thus, when purchased rights would mesh well with vendee's own rights, enable it to make better use of equipment, and achieve economies in operation which will benefit public, as well as eliminating circuitous routes, demonstrated benefits make prima facie case for approval of application.--Id., pp. 433-4.

Applicant's initial burden of proof is not to be equated with sort of testimony of shipper need required under public convenience and necessity standard of §207; purely business purpose, such as increased efficiency and profit, may be enough to meet burden, since public will indirectly benefit by receiving improved transportation service.--Id., p. 434.

Under tripartite test, Commission considers, second, whether protestants show probability that they will be significantly harmed; mere apprehension of harm presents no basis for denial, and when applicants show transaction will benefit public and protestants fail to show harm, transfer of dormant authority is found to be in public interest, without need to consider third part of tripartite test.--Id., pp. 434-5.

Protestant has burden of showing harm from transaction, and in order to prove that protestant will probably suffer significant harm, it must present reasonable substantiated projection of amount of traffic that would be lost, effect loss will have on protestant's operations, and effect on protestant's ability to perform service to public in involved communities; protestant must do more than submit abstract of shipments, which is unsubstantiated assertion constituting mere apprehension of harm affording no basis for denial of application, but must rather substantiate projection of traffic diversion.--Id., pp. 435-7.

In applying test of substantiality (75 MCC 659), number of shipments carried is one factor to be considered with whether rights involve general or specified commodities, character of area served in terms of industry and population, number of carriers involved in similar service, whether rights are radial or non-radial, and whether financial and material capabilities of carrier have been utilized as far as practicable; thus, when operation involves specialized transportation of bulk commodities, requiring special storage facilities and equipment and limited need on part of special group of shippers, operations should be examined as whole in light of specialized nature of service, and uneven traffic flow in service area of western States lacking high industrial concentrations, when shipment abstracts of protestants show only limited traffic available, shows carrier to be substantial competitor in area involved.--Matlack, Inc.--Control--CF Tank Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 153 (156-8).

Law judge incorrectly emphasized operations under each certificate or portion of certificate and not overall substantiality of carrier's operations, thus resulting in atomization of needed service; recommended cancellation of certain authority would limit carrier's ability to provide complete service and would decrease competition in areas where there are few competitors.--Id., pp. 158-9.

Irregular-route carriers of limited class of commodities are not required to show service to and from all points within their territory to support conclusion that operations have been continuous and their rights actively utilized.--Id., p.158-9.

For transfer of dormant rights, under which no authorized shipments have moved, Central Transport test (127 MCC 1) shows that: (1) since vendor's and vendee's authorities do not run parallel, and vendee will take place of vendor as competitor, there will be no reduction in competition, but rather improved service benefiting public; and (2) protestants fail to specify harm resulting from transaction; application granted.--Id., pp. 159-60.

Where vendor admitted that it had never hauled particular commodity, and vendee stated that it had never hauled commodity and lacked equipment to do so, and applicants presented no public testimony or other evidence to show that rights should be transferred, transfer of those rights is denied.--Id., p. 160.

Rights obtained by spin-off of vendor from its parent, issued after first hearing and prior to second, found to have supported substantial operations, as well as meeting Central criteria even if there is no evidence of movements under them; only traffic study required is on traffic moving six months prior to filing of application, and applicants are not required continually to retry their case.--Id., p. 160.

Since Sub-E gateway elimination grants are transferable subject to same standards as §5 Central dormancy test applies.--Id., p. 164.

Under substantiality test to determine whether authority is dormant, carrier is not compelled to submit evidence of service to and from all authorized points in its area of service, since proof of active and continuous operation throughout service area is enough; thus, transportation of only one shipment into area during study period shows that authority was dormant in that area.--Sturm Freightways, Inc.--Pur.--Barrick Transfer, 127 M.C.C. 134 (136-7).

Transfer of dormant authority is normally allowed when applicants show that transfer will benefit public, and protestants fail to prove probable, significant harm; thus, when applicant shows that acquired authority will mesh well with its present authority, allowing efficient single-line in lieu of joint-line service, transfer will benefit public, and when evidence of applicant's operation under temporary authority indicates that protestants will lose only small amount of traffic, protestants fail to show harm; approved.--Id., pp. 137-9.

Inactivity alone will not defeat §5 application, and vendor has right to build up all or any portion of its operation, whether in anticipation of sale or otherwise so long as it does not come under unauthorized control, influence, or domination of prospective purchasers.--Curtis, Inc.--Pur.--Hilt Truck Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 120 (125).

While burden is on applicants to show that interstate operations of vendor were free from domination of vendee, they need only present evidence from which it may be reasonably concluded that such operations were in fact carried on in independent although coordinated manner; thus, when vendor and vendee operated under lawful interchange agreement from which vendor and vendee operated under lawful interchange agreement from which neither control nor domination can be inferred, shipments transported under that agreement are considered in determining dormancy issue, and, in light of specific commodity involved, show substantial operations.--Id., pp. 125-7.

Under test of substantiality to determine dormancy, when only three shipments moved over route during 2 1/2 year period prior to application, call-and-demand type of service in question is dormant; but under tripartite test for transfer of dormant operations (127 MCC 1), applicant shows that acquisition of authority will eliminate empty backhauls in public interest, so that, since there is no opposition to proposal, application is approved.--Eagle Motor Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Jenkins Truck Line, 127 M.C.C 116 (117-8).

When vendor is contract carrier transporting limited class of commodities for limited number of shippers, its abstract need not show service to every State within its authority during test period, but only that evidence reflects representative showing of authorized service.--Ruan Transport Corp.--Pur.--Harold Waggoner & Co., 127 M.C.C. 52 (56)*.

Commission refuses to consider evidence of prior interline operations between transferor and transferee instituted in contemplation of sale of authority in making its required findings that there is need for proposed service and that grant would further public interest; thus, when transferor and transferee entered into enforceable option allowing transferee to purchase transferor at any time and then initiated interline traffic, thereby activating transferor's long-dormant authority, but waited more than a year before filing purchase application in order to build up history of traffic to cure dormancy, application is denied, particularly since shippers show no need for unified service.--Motor Cargo, Inc.--Pur.--Wholesale Services, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 36 (48)*.

Even if authority proposed to be sold were dormant, sufficient need is demonstrated for revival, since 23 shippers appeared at hearing in support of single-line operation, while there is no evidence of actual harm to protestants.--Estes Express Lines.--Pur. (Portion)--Pollard, 127 M.C C. 27 (33-4).

Policy consideration behind dormancy is that purchase of dormant authority will result in expanded service to public in area where it was once found that need existed, which would be good thing unless institution of additional service would cause real injury to someone else, and if existing carriers will in fact be injured, question becomes one of deciding whether transfer will result in benefit to public outweighing injury to existing carriers, "public" normally being shippers, whose needs may be better served by carrier seeking to acquire dormant certificate than by existing carriers.--Central Transport, Inc.--Pur.--Piedmont Petroleum, 127 M.C.C. 1 (10-1)*.

Resolution of dormancy issue is best handled through use of tripartite test incorporating shifting burden of going forward with evidence: (1) applicants have burden of showing that there is some reason why transaction in general and sale of dormant authority in particular will be consistent with public interest, which need not be shown by shipper need but rather by showing some public benefit from reactivation; (2) once applicant meets initial burden and establishes prima facie case for approval, burden shifts to protestants to show probability that they will be significantly harmed by proposed transfer, which cannot be shown merely by trffic abstract which constitutes mere apprehension of harm, but rather by substantiated projection of amount of traffic they will lose, effect of loss on overall operations, and effect on ability to service public in involved communities; and (3) if protestant meets burden, burden of going forward with evidence shifts back to applicants to bring forth evidence that transfer should be allowed despite harm to protestants, ordinarily involving showing of shipper need for service, although relatively recent shipments which by themselves might not rebut dormancy could also be used to buttress shipper testimony; thus, transfer of dormant authority is allowed whenever applicants show benefit to public and protestants fail to prove probability of significant harm.--Id., pp. 11-13, Id., 127 M.C.C. 284 (285-9)*.

Applicant presents its evidence in two parts, first evidence that transaction is in public interest, then evidence of public benefit or need, usually in form of shipper testimony, if protestant shows harm, it is not necessary for applicant to submit entire evidence at one time in order to allow protestant to respond to it, and if applicant presents evidence that transaction is consistent with public interest, thus establishing prima facie case, and if there are not protestants, or protestants fail to carry their burden of showing harm, it is unnecessary for applicant to present other evidence of public benefit or need.--Id., p. 289; stages of test merely refer to burden of going forward with evidence and in oral hearing opposing parties each have opportunity to present case on every stage of tripartite test, while under modified procedure, if shipper testimony is presented by applicant in rebuttal verified statement, protestants are permitted to file limited rebuttal statement addressing only shipper testimony.--Id., p. 289.

There are no mechanical rules for determining when rights have become dormant and complete cessation of activity is not necessary before carrier's authority will be found dormant, since lack of substantial service is enough; test of substantiality provides that where regular-or irregular-route carrier conducts comparatively substantial operation over entire system, it is not required to show service to and from every point or under every conceivable combination of routes in order to establish that it conducts continuous and substantial service, but merely to make representative showing of authorized service, this test being flexible standard which takes into consideration character, population, and industry of area served, financial and material capabilities, of carrier, and nature of commodities transported and type of service authorized.--Id., pp. 9-10.

Carrier has right to build up all or any portion of its operation, whether in anticipation of sale or otherwise, so long as it does not come under unauthorized control, influence, or domination of prospective purchaser, but operations can be disregarded when they are performed under control and domination of transferee; thus, evidence does not show that transferorwas under control, influence, or domination of transferee when fact that transferor interlines with transferee is not determinative with respect to control or domination, interline arrangement between parties was proper, and there is no indication that trnsferee was interested in purchasing transferor's authority prior to time transferor began liquidating its operation.--Id., pp. 14-15, 289-90.

Unauthorized operations are of no evidentiary value in determining dormancy issue.--Id., p. 16.

In determining whether use of rights has been substantial, consideration must be given not only to number of shipments carried but also to such factors as whether rights involve general or specified commodities, character of area served in terms of industry and population, number of carriers involved in similar service, whether rights are radial or nonradial, and whether financial and material capabilities of carrier have been utilized as far as practicable; thus, considering transferee's limited resources, small amount of equipment, specific nature of authority, and nature of competition, authority is not dormant.--Id., pp. 16-7.

Lack of use of certificates is plainly dormancy; but dormancy is not prima facie bar to approval, and when applicants meet their initial burden by showing that increased efficiency resulting from transfer, protestants fail to show possible harm with specificity, and applicants show shipper need, transfer is approved.--Id., pp. 18-20, 290.

Commission may properly accept as proof of public need statements of shippers in support of application; but in §5 [now §11343 et seq.] proceeding Commission is not limited solely to shipper statements in determining if shipper need exists, and where temporary authority is authorized, operations thereunder are of some weight in indicating shipper need, particularly where other evidence is introduced.--Id., pp. 19, 290.

Purchase of rights is allowed in contested cases without shipper support when there is no evidence to show that protestants have expanded their facilities to transport traffic as result of dormancy in question, or that they will be adversely affected as result of transaction.--Id., p. 290.

Duplicate operating rights: Approval of transfer of operating rights conditioned upon restriction of rights retained by vendor's affiliate to eliminate all duplicating rights.--Barrieau Exp., Inc.--Pur.--Trans. World Van Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 460 (465).

Since carrier has but one right to operate between two sets of points, regardless of how many times authority is mentioned, Commission's policy is to deny §5 applications whose terms would result in vendor retaining right to operate between same points which are sold to another; this is particularly true when carriers propose to resell their authority several times over, and proposed transaction would result in split of commercial zone.--Takin Bros. Frt. Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Chi-Fli, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 408 (418).

In present case vendee's retaining of Sub-E authority while selling off part of authority which originally served as basis for Sub-E grant will not result in unlawful split of authority, but to prevent any retention of duplicating operating rights to extent they overlap vendor's authority is modified to exclude authorization of certain service to be performed by vendee.--Curtis, Inc.--Pur.--Hilt Truck Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 120 (127-8).

Plan submitted for elimination of duplicating operating rights under common control, accepted with modification.--Internatl. Util.--Control--Pacific Intermountain, 127 M.C.C. 70 (88)*.

Restrictions, whether positively or negatively phrased, are acceptable if imposed for legitimate purpose, and where practicable restriction may be proposed to prevent duplication of service, such restriction is both necessary and desirable.--Estes Express Lines--Pur. (Portion)--Pollard, 127 M.C.C. 27 (32).

Intrastate operating rights: Since it is in public interest to transfer vendor's certificate of registration to vendee, and improved service will arise if transaction is approved, it follows that public convenience and necessity requires continuance by vendee of vendor's operations; thus, vendor's certificate of registration should be converted into certificate of public convenience and necessity.--Sturm Freightways, Inc.-Pur.--Barrick Transfer, 127 M.C.C. 134 (140).

Since scope of carrier's operations under certificate of registration is governed by interpretation of issuing State agency, and applicant fails to show that registration certificate purchased is other than irregular-route, when applicant seeks to convert authority into certificate of public convenience and necessity granting regular-route authority, it must show that public convenience and necessity require regular-route operation.--Id., pp. 140-1.

Where §5 [now §11343 et seq.] application and directly related conversion application are filed and application seeks authority greater than that in certificate of registration, extension must be shown to be required by public convenience and necessity.--Id., p. 141.

New service resulting: In determining whether new or improved service will arise, Commission looks to see if applicants have participated in interline service with each other or with other carriers on traffic moving to or from respective territories; where there is sufficient interline service, single-line service proposed is considered improved not new service.--Jones Truck Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Deaton, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 428 (437).

In determining whether transaction will result in new competitive service, benefit balancing test should be applied, in order to allow weighing of benefits of additional competition against adverse consequences of new competitive service, and since additional competition would ordinarily be good and should be given weight unless protestants show harm; test requiring applicants to show public need is rejected, since it implicitly presumes protestants will be harmed where applicants fail to show public need.--Id., pp. 440-1.

Under tripartite benefit balancing test adopted, applicants initially have burden of showing some reason why transaction in general and institution of new competitive service in particular will be consistent with public interest; this initial burden is not equated with shipper need testimony required under public convenience and necessity standard of §207, since applicant is not required to show shipper need for new competitive service, but merely that public would receive benefit from institution of new competitive service.--Id., p. 442; at this stage, applicants may, but are not required specifically to address public benefits attributable to each potential new service; where applicants show public benefits from institution of single-line service to sample of points, it would be inequitable to require showing of public benefit as to all points.--Id., p. 442.

Once applicant meets initial burden of establishing prima facie case for approval, burden of going forward with evidence shifts to protestants to show that there is probability that they will be significantly harmed by new competitive service, by identifying each new competitive service which it is concerned with and showing how those services either separately or taken together will cause significant harm.--Id., pp. 442-3.

If protestant meets this burden, burden of going forward with evidence shifts back to applicants to prove that transfer should be allowed despite harm that new competitive service will probably cause protestant, by showing that public will receive benefit from each new competitive route over which protestants have shown harm, ordinarily by showing shipper need for service; but if applicants fail to meet their burden, they may show in alternative that it is in public interest to approve transaction with restrictions against providing injurious new competitive service.--Id., p. 443.

When applicants show that resulting new single-line service will benefit public, since acquired routes will mesh well with vendee's present routes, allow vendee to use its equipment more efficiently, and reduce mileage traversed, while protestants fail to substantiate resulting harm, new service is found in public interest; moreover, even if protestants show harm, applicants offer shipper support for new services.--Id., pp. 443-5.

Regular-and irregular-route operations: Proposed carving up of irregular-route radial authority by sale of rights to operate between one specified point in base area comprised of number of closely grouped points on one hand, and defined territory on other, is not division along clear-out geographical lines, and is not in public interest.--Takin Bros.Frt. Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Chi-Fli, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 408 (416).

Section 5 applications seeking authority to multiply number of carriers operating over particular irregular route, as opposed to substituting one carrier for another, are looked upon with disfavor.--Id., p. 421.

Single-line service: Where single-line service of type proposed is in public interest, purchaser interchanged traffic for 15 years with seller before seller went bankrupt, and purchaser has operated over route in question under temporary authority, application to purchase route is granted.--Eldridge--Purchase--Point Exp., Inc., 127 M.C.C. 498 (502-3).

When applicants in §5 [now §11343 et seq.] proceeding have participated in interline operations with each other or other carriers on traffic moving to and from their respective territories, single-line service resulting from combination of such rights is considered improved not new service, so public convenience and necessity need not be shown.--Sturm Freightways, Inc.--Pur.--Barrick Transfer, 127 M.C.C. 134 (139).

Approval of gateway eliminations directly related to purchase proceeding, generally conforming to pattern of past interline operations conducted by transferor and transferee and supported by shipper statements, constitutes conversion of joint-into single-line service and should not materially affect protestants.--Central transport, Inc.---Pur.--Piedmont Petroleum, 127 M.C.C. 1 (23)*.

Split routes: Transfer of intermediate point service and retention of overhead rights over same route would not create duplicate rights when no duplication of service results.--Curtis Transports--Transferee, 127 M.C.C. 488 (493-4)*.

When right to operate over regular route is to be divided to permit operations over separate portions of route by different carriers, point of division should be at place authorized to be served, since otherwise rights could not be fully utilized by either carrier, and result would be equivalent to abandonment of portion of rights involved; thus, split of rights along clearly defined lines would not result in minute and multiple division of transferor's authority.--Id., pp. 494-5.

While Commission's general policy is to deny §5 [now §11343 et seq.] applications which would result in vendor retaining right to operate between same points which are sold to another, it will impose conditions designed to elimination duplications where such restrictions will not unduly complicate operating rights; thus, given demonstrated benefits from proposed transaction, it is in public interest to impose restrictions proposed by applicants to eliminate objectionable splits of authority.--Jones Truck Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Deaton, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 428 (445-6).

There is nothing wrong per se with carrier's selling pieces of its authority; such divisions of authority are approved provided clear cut geographical lines are used when dividing it.--Id., p. 448.

Commission's general policy is to prohibit proposed split of operating rights where after sale vendor may continue to operate between same points it has sold, particularly where vendor not only continues to operate, but also proposes to resell its authority several times over; policy is to prevent split resulting in introduction of new competing carrier into markets which will continue to be served by vendor, without showing public need for additional service; but where split of authority will not upset competitive balance, public support is shown for transaction, and transaction is otherwise in public interest, adequate grounds exist for making exception to general rule prohibiting split.--Takin Bros. Frt. Lines, Inc.--Pur.---Chi-Fli, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 408 (413-4).

While proposed split of authority will not upset competitive balance, it involves split of Commerce zone against Commission requirement that splits of operating authority must be along clear cut geographical lines, results in creation of duplicating authorities, restrictions proposed to prevent vendor and vendee from competing are unworkable, constitutes sale of naked rights allowing vendee to capitalize upon its operating rights by sale without relinquishing any significant portion of business it presently conducts under them, enforcement of split authorities would be administratively impractical, would result in uneconomic waste of carrier facilities and in shipper confusion, and would circumvent §207 [now §10922] by requiring purchasers to obtain new operating rights from vendor instead of applying to Commission for them; thus, in this case financial distress of vendor is outweighed by problems created by proposed split of authority, which would violate national transportation policy; denied.--Id., pp. 415-22.

Commercial zone must be treated as single unit, so that any further subdivision of zone is fragmentation at odds with concept of commercial zone, and against public interest.--Id., p. 415.

Proposed splits of authority must be decided on case-by-case basis.--Id., p. 417.

Purpose in refusing to allow split in authority is to avoid creation of two operating rights where only one had previously existed without new showing of public need; proposed restriction is consistent with this policy objective, and result will be same whether vendee restricts rights it acquires or vendor cancels rights it retains.---Eagle Motor Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Jenkins Truck Line, 127 M.C.C. 116 (118).

Transaction would result in objectionable split of operating authority inconsistent with public interest when it would result in division of commercial zone, whereby vendor would retain belt-like area around base while selling right to serve base, thereby fragmenting authority at odds with concept of commercial zone; moreover, type of service provided under regular routes sought to be transferred, overhead in nature and utilizing extensively intermediate and off-route points defined by geographical area, would differ in no material respect from service vendor would continue to provide through combinations of retained regular- and irregular-route authority; denied.--M & M Transp. Co.--Pur.--Nelson Freightways, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 98 (103, 105)*.

Despite number of separate authorities carrier holds authorizing operations between two specified points, it is deemed to hold only one right to operate between those two points, and when carrier seeks to transfer authorities to another carrier, it is improper for it both to transfer and to retain essentially duplicating authorities, since such transaction would constitute windfall in which operating rights are sold without diminishing scope of vendor's present service while vendee at same time is authorized to perform almost identical, duplicative service; however, Commission has authorized sale and retention of operating rights between same points where rights authorize service over different routes or with different intermediate points, such that different service is provided.--Id., pp. 103-5.

Since adequate restriction eliminates duplication of service, there is no unlawful split of authority; similarly, there is no merger of operating rights held by vendor, and if there had been, restriction severs portion to be sold in appropriate manner.--Estes Express Lines--Pur. (Portion)--Pollard, 127 M.C.C. 27 (33).

Trafficking in authorities: Trafficking arises when holder of operating rights is primarily treating that right as if it were appreciable security, so that holder does not intend to provide transportation service, but rather seeks to speculate on resale value of certificate; such dealing in certificates is inconsistent with public interest.--Jones Truck Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Deaton, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 428 (450).

When protestants allege that vendor is trafficking in certificates, but fail to show nexus between conversion of irregular-route authorities to regular-route authorities and sale of some of those authorities six years later, no trafficking is shown.--Id., p. 450.

When vendee does not intend to conduct operations under rights it seeks to purchase but rather to sell them to other carriers, transaction is not in public interest; operating authority is granted by Commission to persons seeking to serve public, not in order that they may derive profit from sale of rights to others; denied.--M & M Transp. Co.--Pur.--Nelson Freightways, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 98 (102)*.

46.--By noncarrier.--Section 11343 does not cover transactions where noncarrier is acquiring carrier if purchaser is not affiliated or connected with carrier; such transfers are exempt under §11343(d)(1) and may be processed under §10926.--Curtis Transports--Transferee, 127 M.C.C. 488 (489-90)*.

48. Purchase.--

Single-line service: While gateway elimination rules generally prohibit tacking of separate grants of irregular-route authority, rules were not intended to deprive public of benefits of single-line service resulting from consolidation of carriers; therefore, gateway elimination applications concerning gateways created by joinder of grants of authority held by buyer with those of seller and authorized to be purchased in §5 [now §11343] proceeding, and those concerning gateways created by joinder of separate segments of authority held by either buyer or seller ("interior gateways") are directly related to §5 proceeding, so that, after consummation, buyer will be able to conduct service as extensive in scope as parties could lawfully conduct on interline basis.--J. V. McNicholas Transfer Co.--Control--Tom's Exp., 127 M.C.C. 309 (310, 312)*.

50. Leases.--Inactivity alone will not defeat §5 application, and vendor has right to build up all or any portion of its operation, whether in anticipation of sale or otherwise so long as it does not come under unauthorized control, influence or domination of prospective purchasers; thus, when vendor and vendee operated under interchange arrangement, by which traffic was originated by vendee and carried to destination in vendee's vehicles leased to vendor, neither control nor domination can be inferred from lease arrangement, and indemnification agreement involved does not violate interchange regulations.--Curtis, Inc.--Pur.--Hilt Truck Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 120 (125).

110. Scope of issues.--

Contracts: Where application involves sale of essentially same authority to several different carriers, and is thus not in public interest, Commission could approve transaction in the alternative, allowing vendor to sell all its authority to any one purchaser; however, this could give rise to controversy over which purchaser's contract should be honored, and it would not be in public interest to open door to unnecessary litigation; denied.--Takin Bros. Frt. Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Chi-Fli, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 408 (422-3).

Fitness of applicants: When in previous operating rights application case vendee was found fit subject to three-year term limitation on authority granted, vendee's fitness is relevant to present purchase proceeding, and vendee has not shown in the proceeding that three-year term limitation is not necessary, limitation is imposed on authority purchased in present proceeding.--Curtis, Inc.--Pur.--Hilt Truck Lines, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 120 (130).

Restrictions imposed: Restrictions imposed upon vendee's certificate only limit authority vendee currently has, and nothing in certificate prevents vendee from purchasing authority it does not have from other carriers; thus, approval of purchase of unrestricted authority does not authorize vendee to circumvent its restricted certificate, since when operating under that certificate it must observe restriction, but that restriction does not carry over to unrestricted authority it might later obtain.--Jones Truck Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Deaton, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 428 (449).

Restriction on vendor's authority runs with certificate, and vendor may not sell what it does not hold; thus, vendee is bound by restriction in vendor's certificate.--Id., p. 449.

Restrictions, whether positively or negatively phrased, are acceptable if imposed for legitimate purpose, and where practicable restriction may be proposed to prevent duplication of service, such restriction is both necessary and desirable; however, Commission is not bound by restrictions agreed to by parties where they achieve results inconsistent with public interest and inimical to practicable and effective regulation.--Estes Express Lines--Pur. (Portion)--Pollard, 127 M.C.C. 27 (32).

126. Burden of proof.--In a prior case, 127 MCC 1, the Commission held that in the transfer of authority not actively used, the applicants must prove that the sale of the dormant authority will be consistent with the public interest. The burden then shifts to the protestants to show that they will be significantly harmed by the transfer. Finally, the burden shifts back to the applicants to show that that the transfer should be allowed despite the harm to protestants. In the instant case, applicants met the first test but protestants failed to show that a significant detriment to their operations will occur inasmuch as they did not present substantiated projections of the amount of traffic they will lose if the dormant authority is acquired by vendee. Mere allegations of probable harm are not sufficient. In light of protestants' failure, all the authority sought to be acquired can be transferred.--Santini Bros., Inc--Pur., Trans-Universal, 127 M.C.C. 481 (481-82)*.

§11344. CONSOLIDATION, MERGER, AND ACQUISITION OF CONTROL: GENERAL PROCEDURE AND CONDITIONS OF APPROVAL

5. Public interest, generally.--"Consistent with the public interest" standard under §5 [now §11343 et seq.] is less stringent than public convenience and necessity, and admits to public interest factors other than those related to adequacy or inadequacy of existing services.--Jones Truck Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Deaton, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 428 (440).

"Public interest" has direct relation to adequacy of transportation service, to its essential conditions of economy and efficiency, and to best use of transportation facilities.--Central Transport, Inc.--Pur.--Piedmont Petroleum, 127 M.C.C. 1 (9)*.

Commission does not administer §5 [now §11343 et seq.] with eye merely to preserving existing arrangements or competitive practices; overriding criterion is public interest in having best possible service available.--Id., p. 13.

25. Employee interests.--Commission can condition its approval of sale or control transaction upon imposition of certain labor protective conditions, and Act taken as whole makes manifest congressional intent that public policy demands fair and equitable treatment of employees of motor carriers involved in §5 proceedings; however, for Commission to act under §11344(b)(4), individuals affected must be employees of carrier or at very least of noncarrier affiliate of carrier, and carrier or noncarrier affiliate must otherwise be subject to Commission jurisdiction in first instance.--Capitol Corp.--Control--Prunty Motor Exp., 127 M.C.C. 518 (525-6).

Employees of noncarrier affiliate of carrier under Commission's jurisdiction are entitled to labor protective provisions on basis that by being party to proceeding before Commission and seeking approval of control of two carriers, noncarrier affiliate had subjected itself to Commission jurisdiction.--Id., p. 526.

Owner-operators are not "employees" of carriers but rather are equipment lessors, when their compensation derives from business relationships with vendor rather than through salaried employment, and they are compensated on percentage of gross revenues earned, amounting to commission; more importantly, they can cancel their leases at any time and hire out services elsewhere.--Id., p. 526.

Nonowner drivers are not "employees" of vendor when their status is interchangeable with owner-operators and their relationship to others is often informal, and when vendor contracted for drivers' services on percentage of gross revenues basis.--Id, pp. 527-8.

Even if Commission were to extend its jurisdiction under broader "public interest" considerations of §11344(c) to embrace affected individuals other than employees, record does not show that individuals in this case were "affected" as result of Commission's approval of transaction.--Id., p. 528.

When acquisition of motor carrier by noncarrier organized to acquire control of carrier was approved, interests of carrier employees were adequately protected by imposition, as condition precedent to approval, of conditions similar to those imposed in 122 MCC at 236-8.---Akers Motor Lines, Inc.--Control--Central Motor, 127 M.C.C. 203 (205)*.

40. Parties.--When merger of transferee into another carrier is presently pending in another proceeding, petition to substitute that other carrier in present proceeding is denied, since if merger is ultimately denied Commission will have approved that carrier's acquisition in present proceeding, without any evidence in record to support that decision.--Takin Bros. Frt. Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Chi-Fli,Inc., 127 M.C.C. 408 (413).

111. Procedure generally.-- When in another proceeding Commission approved acquisition application subject to restriction, and transferee put Commission on notice that it regarded restricted authority as useless and would not consummate transaction subject to restriction, its request to continue to operate transferor's unrestricted authority and its subsequent submission of another application, wherein Commission approved transfer of restricted authority, were not in bad faith; successive applications do not connote bad faith by applicant because Commission has not discouraged such filings in past, and, having transported commodities under temporary operation of unrestricted authority, transferee had legitimate interest in filing sucessive applications under existing Commisson precedent to eliminate prior restriction.--Lemmon Transport Co., Inc.--Control and Merger, 127 M.C.C. 575 (580-1)*.

§11349. TEMPORARY OPERATING APPROVAL FOR TRANSACTIONS INVOLVING MOTOR AND WATER CARRIERS

1. In general.--Operations under temporary authority may be considered with other evidence to determine if the public interest would be served by transfer of reactivated dormant authority.--Lemmon Transport Co., Inc.-- Control and Merger, 127 M.C.C. 575 (581)*.

Where applicant, operating under temporary authority granted under §210a(b) [now §11349], seeks to purchase alternate route, but alternate route is rendered inoperative by sale of underlying service route to another carrier, applicant's temporary authority is not terminated, and after applicant is granted authority to establish underlying route of its own, application to purchase alternate route is granted.--Eldridge--Purchase--Point Exp., Inc., 127 M.C.C. 498 (504).

Applicant's operation under temporary authority provides evidence of shippers' need for proposed single-line service and indicates that protestants will not be harmed, supporting purchase of alternate route sought.--Id., pp. 502-3.

When considering applications filed pursuant to §11349 (former §210a(b)), the Commission must consider whether the failure to grant temporary approval may result in destruction of, or injury to, such motor carrier properties sought to be acquired, or to interfere substantially with their future usefulness in performance of adequate and continuous service to the public. The record herein contains sufficient evidence to make this determination and, therefore, the Commission should vacate its dismissal of the §11349 application and decide the purchase transaction on its merits.--Alltrans Express U.S.A., Inc.--Purchase--Sullivan Lines, Inc. 127 M.C.C. 425 (427)*.

In §5 [now §11343 et seq.] proceeding Commission is not limited solely to shipper statements in determining if shipper need exists, and where temporary authority is authorized, operations thereunder are of some weight in indicating shipping need, particularly where other evidence is introduced.--Central Transport, Inc.--Pur.--Piedmont Petroleum, 127 M.C.C. 1 (19)*.

§11503. TAX DISCRIMINATION AGAINST RAIL TRANSPORTATION PROPERTY

3. Effective date.--Effective date of §11503, formerly §28, is Feb. 5, 1979; thus, as of that date States were prohibited from assessing rail transportation property at higher ratio than other commercial and industrial property, so that when State assesses property after March 1, §11503 applies, even though tax returns are based on property owned on October 1 of previous year.--Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Eagerton, 472 F. Supp. 60 (63-4).

CHAPTER 117---ENFORCEMENT: INVESTIGATIONS, RIGHTS AND REMEDIES

General Nature of Proceedings

10. Moot questions.-- While filing equal rates to Corpus Christi could be considered to moot case by removing alleged prejudice to that port, Commission refuses to grant petition to dismiss case because legal questions presented are continuing and capable of repetition yet evading review, and because Commission does not wish to thwart judicial review on grounds of mootness.--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 359 I.C.C. 592 (594-5)*.

Complaints

51. Form, subscription, verification.--When respondent moves to strike statement of cost witness for protestant on grounds that it is incomplete and unverified, and same statement was introduced by protestant in related formal complaint to which respondent is party, but when statement was refiled in present proceeding final page and verification were inadvertently omitted, and in reply to motion protestant has supplied missing page, to strike testimony based on technical interpretation of Commission's rules would serve no useful purpose; denied.--Fibreboard or Pulpboard, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (213-4).

When protestant asks that sentence in respondent's reply argument be stricken as unverified, but matter is drawn from verified statements of record motion is denied.--Id., p. 215.

53. Consolidation of proceedings.--Decision whether to consolidate, especially when virtually identical issues and facts are presented, is firmly within administrative discretion of Commission; thus, when purchase proceedings involve common issue of law as to divisability of single operating authority of vendor, initial decisions of law judge and motor carrier board reach conflicting results so that consolidation is desirable to guarantee consistency in each case, parties in each case are substantially identical since many protestants appeared in each, additional issues in each proceeding are not so complex and broadening as to require separate decisions, and, although one case was ripe for review several months before others, that case will not be delayed since others will be expedited, motion to consolidate proceedings is granted.---Takin Bros. Frt. Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Chi-Fli, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 408 (411-2).

The Hearing

120. Right to full hearing.--When matter has been fully explored in verified statements of both parties in both present proceeding and in related formal complaint, cross-examination on topic would not further fair and efficient disposition of proceeding.--Fibreboard or Pulpboard, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (215).

Evidence

131. Commission not bound by strict rules of evidence.--Commission is not bound by same strictures as court of law with respect to evidence, and rule 73 states that rules of evidence are to be applied only to end that justice is served while protecting substantial rights, so that Commission has traditionally interpreted evidentiary rules liberally; thus, letter not strictly within business records exception but within its spirit, and informal opinion of Commission are accepted into evidence.--Alladin Lampshade Corp. v. Georgia Hwy. Exp., 357 I.C.C. 625 (626-7).*

136. Admissibility, in general.--Because Commission interprets evidentiary rules liberally, letter introduced by intervenor, not strictly within business records exception but within its spirit, in that it is probative of matters at hand, and its reliability is strengthened by fact that it was obtained in normal course of business and was for ten years part of intervenor's official records, is admitted into evidence; similarly, informal opinions of Commission, allegedly hearsay, are admissible into evidence.--Alladin Lampshade Corp. v. Georgia Hwy. Exp., 357 I.C.C. 625 (626-7)*.

140. Official notice.--Only when rates are contested and investigation undertaken do rules of evidence limit information Commission may consider; even then, Commission may elect to take official notice of carrier's annual reports to provide additional information upon which to base decision.--Compensating Balances and Short-term Borrowing, 357 I.C.C. 466 (471).

148. Competency.--Protestant's motion to strike testimony of respondent carrier's traffic officers regarding lack of participation by other lines in respondent's rate reduction and their opinion that failure of those lines to participate was due to managerial discretion, is denied; witnesses, as fully qualified rate officers, were competent to testify as to fact that other railroads did not take reduction, and their reference to managerial discretion of other railroads was mere characterization going only to weight given testimony.--Fibreboard or Pulpboard, Montana to California, 357 I.C.C. 211 (214).

Protestant's motion to strike testimony of rate officer concerning comparative levels of rates throughout territory and effect of intermodal competition on those rates, is denied; duly qualified rate officer of railroad is competent to express his observations concerning general rate pattern and effect of competition on it.--Id., p. 214.

149. Hearsay.--Informal opinion of Commission, while alleged to be hearsay, is admissible into evidence.--Alladin Lampshade Corp. v. Georgia Hwy. Exp., 357 I.C.C. 626 (626-7)*.

161. Informal opinions of Commisson.--Informal opinions expressed by any of Commission's bureaus within their sphere of competence and responsibility are admissible into evidence.--Alladin Lampshade Corp. v. Georgia Hwy., 357 I.C.C. 625 (627)*.

To Whom Right of Action Accrues

17. Persons injured.--Commission has jurisdiction to entertain, and car line company parties to proceedings have standing to raise, question whether carriers may impose separate charges for empty movement of private cars to and from repair facilities; insofar as carlines have been asked to pay charges they contend are unlawful, they have right under §§8 and 9 [now §11705] to bring complaint before Commission to determine question, although they may be able to readjust their leases to pass on increased costs at some future date.--General American Transp. Corp. v. Indiana Harbor, 357 I.C.C. 102 (122)*.

43. Person bearing charges.--Commission will go beyond transportation contract to determine party who actually bore excessive amount of transportation charges and was damaged thereby; thus, when bills of lading did not indicate that government was to bear transportation charges, but government was obligated to reimburse shipper for charges and did so, government was real party in interest, because otherwise there would be no party that could seek restoration of alleged overcharges, since shipper, having been fully reimbursed, suffered no damages and had no cause of action, while only government, party which bore charges, could have incurred damages.--Administrator of General Services v. Burlington, 357 I.C.C. 232 (239-40).

Terms of affreightment as evidenced by bill of lading are not only evidence by which to determine contractual and substantive rights of complainant, since bill of lading issued by carrier is receipt for traffic and evidence of contract, but not contract itself.--Id., p. 241.

§11706. LIMITATION ON ACTIONS BY AND AGAINST COMMON CARRIERS

Actions by Carriers to Recover Charges

76. In general.--Plain words of §204a [now §11706] shows congressional intent in enacting statute to be desire to create shorter period of limitations (three years) in which disputes over transportation charges on shipments would be settled, and section does not apply to disputes as to lost or damaged cargo; thus, when carrier seeks to recover from government shipper excessive set-off for loss of freight, and neither party places propriety of transportation charges in issue, §204a does not apply, and regular six-year statute of limitations, which normally governs claims against United States under 28 USC §2501, is applied.--Bowman Transp., Inc. v. United States 597 F.2d 254 (256-7).

Action for Overcharges

94. In general.--For shipments for United States, §16(3)(i) [now §11706] provides for three-year period of limitations, calculated from date of payment of charges for transportation involved; and for overcharge claims, three-year period is calculated under §16(3)(c) [now §11705], since §16(3)(i) provides that §16(3)(c) applies to transportation for United States.--Administrator of General Services v. Burlington, 357 I.C.C. 232 (238).

Section 16(3)(c) provides except that, if complainant presents claim for overcharges in writing to carrier within three-year period of limitation, period is extended to include additional six months calculated from date notice of disallowance of claim was given by carrier.--Id., p. 238.

Extension of Limitation Period

102. United States government transportation.--When bills of lading did not indicate that United States government was to bear transportation charges, but government was real party in interest, since under contract it was obligated to reimburse shipper for charges and did so, shipments were for or on behalf of government and §16(3)(i) [now §11706] applies; Commission will go beyond transportation contract to determine party who actually bore excessive amount of transportation charges and was damaged thereby.--Administrator of General Services v. Burlington, 357 I.CC. 232 (239-40).

While shipper assigned whatever rights to damages it had on shipments to government, such assignments could not increase those rights so as to permit application of longer period of limitation.--Id., p. 240.

For shipments for United States, §16(3)(i) provides for three-year period of limitations, calculated from date of payment of charges for transportation involved; and for overcharge claims, three-year period is calculated under §16(3)(c) [now §11705], since §16(3)(i) provides that §16(3)(c) applies to transportation for United States.--Id., p. 238.

Recognition of shipments for or on behalf of government are not to be confused with identification of shipments which qualify for §22 [now §10721] rate quotations; when bills of lading failed to show that charges were to be borne by government and stated, "The government is not responsible for freight charges on this shipment", notation had effect of notifying carriers that shipper not government was obligated to pay carrier directly, and such bills did not meet requirements of giving proper notice to carriers that shipments were for government, as required under §22.--Id., p. 240.

SUPPLEMENTAL ACTS

5 USC

Burden of proof.--Under §556, proponent of order has burden of proof unless otherwise provided by statute.--Wheat, Oklahoma and Kansas to Texas Gulf Ports, 359 I.C.C. 592 (600)*.

Freedom of Information Act.--Under Privacy Act, individual is entitled upon request to gain access to his record or to any information pertaining to him which is contained in agency's system of records, but that record does not grant access to any information compiled in reasonable anticipation of civil action or proceeding; thus, information was properly withheld from plaintiff under Privacy Act as having been compiled in reasonable anticipation of either original injunction action against plaintiff for unauthorized operation as broker or of further enforcement proceedings against him after consent injunction was granted.--Zeller v. United States, 467 F.Supp. 487 (500).

Generally speaking FOIA requires agency to disclose on request information in its files which is not specificlly exempt from disclosure by statute; to qualify for exemption, burden is on government to show that withheld information falls within one of nine FOIA categories.--Id., p. 500.

Section 552(b)(5) exempts from disclosure inter- or intra-agency memoranda or letters which would not be available by law to party in litigation with agency; thus, intra-agency memoranda prepared in connection with injunction proceeding against plaintiff which culminated in pretrial consent judgment, disclosing trial strategy, evidence analysis, and witnesses, are exempted from disclosure--Id., p. 501.

Section 552(b)(7)(A) exempts from disclosure investigatory records compiled for law enforcement purposes, but only to extent that production of such records would interfere with law enforcement proceedings; thus, investigatory records concerning plaintiff's continuing compliance with injunction records need not be disclosed, even though no enforcement proceedings are imminent.--Id., p. 501.

While defendant Commission seeks to withhold other investigatory records on grounds that their disclosure would constitute invasion of privacy, plaintiff is willing to accept those documents with appropriate deletions to protect privacy rights of individuals and firms named in them; with redaction to that extent, there would be no invasion of privacy.--Id., p. 501.

Press release, dealing with consent injunction against plaintiff for unauthorized operation as broker, was initially issued as means of providing information to public, a legitimate function for Commisson, and summarized large body of information, much of which was matter of record in injunction proceeding, thus, it cannot be said that press release was used by agency in making decisions adverse to plaintiff, and plaintiff's motion for injunction to amend release under §552a(g)(2)(A) of Privacy Act is denied.--Id., pp. 502-3.

As long as official proceedings have any relevance to agency activity, press release about them, if accurate when made, need not be altered at later date.--Id., pp. 502-3; however, voluntary re-release, four years later, of stale information cannot be justified on theory that its disclosure is "required" by FOIA, since nothing in FOIA appears to require such information to be released in absence of request therefor; but for plaintiff to prevail on his claim for actual damages caused by re-release he must show that agency acted in intentional or willful manner under §552a(g)(4) of Privacy Act.--Id., p. 503.

While Office of Management and Budget guidelines (40 FR 28948) implementing Privacy Act distinguish between personal and entrepreneurial information, Commission regulations (49 CFR 1007.3(a)) do not.--Id., pp. 497-8.

Since proposed rules for disclosure of compensating balances and short-term borrowing do not require disclosure of names of parties involved but only aggregate amounts, confidentiality of arrangements will be protected, and disclosures would not be exempted from FOIA.--Compensating Balances and Short-term Borrowing, 357 I.C.C. 466 (473).

Judicial review.--In general, arbitrary and capricious standard requires reviewing court to defer to agency's judgment so long as it has rational basis; but particular deference is accorded when subject of review is agency's interpretation or clarification of own order.--

Natl. Motor Frt. Traffic Assn., Inc. v. I.C.C. 590 F.2d 1180 (1184)*.

Notice.--Section 553(d)(1) permits immediate effective date for rule changes which relieve restriction; thus, modification of Commission's transfer rules, making test of transferability for inactive rights less restrictive, was made effective immediately upon publication in Federal Register.--Walker Frt. Lines, Inc., Transferee, 127 M.C.C. 472 (473).

Where authority granted differs from notice originally published in Federal Register, supplemental notice is required to be published, to allow any persons having interest in grant to file pleadings.--Central Transport, Inc.--Pur.--Piedmont Petroleum, 127 M.C.C. 1 (23-4)*.

Procedure.--Where deletion of rules represents easing of reporting requirements, rulemaking under §553 of APA is not necessary.--Filing of Special Reports by Railroad & Mot. Car., 357 I.C.C. 171 (171).

When since last consideration of transfer application transfer rules have been modified, and modification reflects change in policy, so that any present decision ought to be based on and reflect present policy not policy in existence when Commission last considered merits of application, on further consideration application is considered under new policy; parties will not be prejudiced, since they have argued issues to be considered under modified rules.--Walker Frt. Lines, Inc., Transferee, 127 M.C.C. 472 (475).

Commission is not bound to rulemaking proceedings in issuing statements which may articulate new policy, and choice between proceeding by general rule or by individual, ad hoc litigation lies primarily in informed discretion of administrative agency; when agency makes law as legislature it must follow rulemaking procedure, and when it makes law as court, it must follow adjudicative procedure.--Central Transport, Inc.--Pur.--Piedmont Petroleum, 127 M.C.C. 284 (288)*.

BANKRUPTCY ACT
11 USC

Historical Note

The Milwaukee Railroad Restructuring Act of Nov. 4, 1979, P.L. 96-101, 93 Stat. 736, sets forth emergency measures to provide for the orderly restructuring of the Chicago, M., St. P. & P. R. Co. and for the protection of its employees.

§205. REORGANIZATION OF RAILROADS ENGAGED IN INTERSTATE COMMERCE

6. Jurisdiction.--In view of fact that Commission has jurisdiction to approve not only discontinuance of service over line but also abandonment of line itself (i.e., rail properties), and that reorganization court has exclusive jurisdiction over railroad and its property wherever located, when trustees, with court approval, obtained Commission approval for abandonment of line, and court than authorized trustees to abandon line and dismantle rail, track, and ties on line, State agency was without jurisdicion, by virtue of federal preemption, to issue order preventing railroad from dismantling line, reorganization court had power to enjoin State action, and reorganization court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to refer question of rail properties on line to State courts.--In re Boston & Maine Corp., 596 F.2d 2 (5-10).

Where proposal to make tender offer for first mortgage bonds and for reduction of first mortage debt is integral part of trustees' plan of reorganization and significantly affects prospects for ultimate reorganization of railroad, and is not merely settlement of claims of bondholders which court would be authorized to approve in advance of structuring of final plan of reorganization, primary jurisdiction to consider and act on tender offer proposal is in Commission.-In re Boston & Maine Corp., 468 F. Supp. 1010 (1014)*.

13. Parties.--Shareholders of shareholder of debtor lack interests sufficiently direct and unrepresented that they can be considered shareholders of debtor within meaning of §77(c)(13), and §77(e) does not independently provide such parties with standing; thus, such parties lack standing to appeal from order of reorganization court.--In re Penn Central Transp. Co., 596 F.2d 1155 (1159-61).

20. Priority.--Allocation of value of debtor's estate to creditors in railroad reorgnization is regulated by absolute priority rule, under which plan is not "fair and equitable" unless it provides participation for claims and interests in recognition of strict priority and value of debtor's assets supports extent of participation afforded each class of claims included in plan; function of rule is (1) to assure that investment securities distributed as compensation under plan have value at least roughly equivalent to value of claim surrendered, and (2) until senior creditors receive full compensatory treatment, participation in estate by junior creditors is barred; moreover, rule protects both principal and interest of senior creditor and shields secured creditor's priority up to lesser of full value of security or full value of claim.--In re Penn Central Transp. Co., 596 F.2d 1102 (1110-1).

Rule must be flexibly not strictly applied, and this finds statutory expression in requirement that reorganization plans must be "feasible" as well as "fair and equitable", particularly in case of Penn Central estate, where valuation must depend upon extended litigation before Special Court.--Id., pp. 1111-2.

While compromises of disputes as part of plan of reorganization are proper, that particular compromise may be necessary or desirable does not eliminate statutory requirement that plan be "fair and equitable"; thus, when senior creditor's claim is settled, compromise must satisfy rule of absolute priority as well, and reviewing court must determine that value of proposed compromise distribution is fairly equivalent to value of potential claim surrendered.--Id., pp. 1113-4.

There should be no difference in treatment between creditors holding security in property and those holding security in income stream produced by property.--Id., p. 1124.

22. Six-months rule.--To qualify under six months rule creditor must establish (1) that claim represents current operating expense of railroad necessarily incurred, (2) that it was incurred within six months prior to filing of reorganization petition, and (3) that goods or services were delivered on credit with expectation that debt would be paid out of current operating revenues of railroad, not in reliance on railroad's general credit; it must also be proved, before right to priority under rule can be established, that current debt fund exists, or should be equitably re-created, out of which priority payments can be made.--In re Boston & Maine Corp., 468 F. Supp. 996 (1002).

Rights of qualified six months creditors are superior to those of mortgagees in current operating revenues of railroad; six month creditors have no rights in corpus of debtor's estate except to extent that current revenues are improperly diverted for benefit of mortgagees; priority of six month creditors is superior to claims of pre-bankruptcy secured creditors, but not to claims of administration expenses incurred during reorganization period; and trustee is responsible only for funds coming into his hands, and cannot be required to recover payments made by railroad before bankruptcy of non-operating current debts.-Id., p. 1002.

Existence of current debt fund is to be determined as of date of distribution of debtor's estate, with relevant period beginning six months before reorganization petition was filed and including reorganization period; however, six months rule does not operate to impress equitable lien upon operating revenues or net income, received during six months period or at later time before date of distribution, as earmarking current debt fund.--Id., p. 1002.

Such fund may arise out of one or more of: (a) current earnings in sense of surplus earnings during six months period and reorganization, (b) unmortgaged assets of debtor, and (c) income diverted during six months period or during reorganization for benefit or mortgagees.--Id., p. 1002.

Where trustees do not possess surplus earnings to satisfy six months creditor's claims, court may look to corpus of estate for any income diverted during relevant period for benefit of mortgagees, but invasion of corpus for this purpose is permissible only to extent current rund is diverted to benefit of mortgagees.--Id., p. 1004.

Depreciation does not result in enhancement of mortgaged assets and is not to be regarded as diversion.--Id., p. 1007.

When six month creditors have not asserted claim against unmortgaged assets as source of current debt fund, and inclusion of unmortgaged assets in such fund would not represent restoration of funds kept from those to whom in equity they belong, court will not look to unmortgaged assets of debtor as source of current debt fund.--Id., p. 1008.

Where no current debt fund exists or should in equity be recreated, no separate priority classification for six months creditors should be designated.--Id., p. 1008.

Necessity of payment rule is not rule of priority, but rather of payment; it is not based on equity but is device for handling threat to continued operation of railroad during reorganization.--Id., p. 1008.

30. Plan of reorganization.--For reorganization plan to be fair and equitable within meaning of §77(e), all parties must receive equitable equivalent of their claims; but in determining equitable equivalence, it is not necessary to assign specific dollar values to every claim given up and every new security received in exchange.--In re Penn Central Transp. Co, 596 F.2d 1155 (1164).

Reorganization court's orders of approval, confirmation, and consummation of plan of reorganization, affirmed.--In re Penn Central Transp. Co., 596 F.2d 1127 (1153).

When proposed amended plan assigns retained assets their actual appraised value, on assumption that these assets will produce that amount in cash, but assigns to assets conveyed to Conrail only values estimated by U. S. Ry. Assn. in Final System Plan, only fraction of what conveyed assets will probably generate through valuation case before Special Court, with total of these asset values to determine percentage of claim which is treated as secured, further comment of interested parties as to propriety of amended plan is requested.--In re Lehigh Valley R. Co., 468 F. Supp. 1331 (1338).

35. Classification of claims and interests, creditors.--Consideration of extensive powers of reorganization court under §77 to control and adjust claims of creditors must take account of traditional bankruptcy goals of that section: rehabilitation of debtor and equitable distribution of debtor's property to creditors.--In re Boston & Maine Corp., 468 F. Supp. 996 (1000).

Under §77(c)(7), function of establishing priorities among creditors is exclusively that of reorganization court, not Commission; thus, contention that court's power to determine priority of distribution of property of debtor in reorganization to class of interline creditors in relation to claims of other creditors has been circumscribed by superseding authority of Commission, carries very heavy burden of persuasion.--Id., pp. 1000-1.

Court fixes priority of creditors and stockholders under §77(c)(7).--Id., p. 1009.

40. Carriers' claims.--Pre-reorganization per diem charges are part of operating expenses of railroad, are unsecured debts within meaning of Bankruptcy Act, and are entitled to no designated preferred priority among debts of railroad in reorganization; thus, with respect to pre-reorganization per diem charges interline railroad claimants are entitled to no higher priority than other unpaid suppliers of goods and services delivered prior to filing of petition in reorganization.--. In re Boston & Maine Corp., 468 F. Supp. 996 (999-1000).

In view of fact that reorganization court, not Commission, has exclusive function of establishing priorities among creditors, contention that court's power to determine priority of distribution of property of debtor to class of interline creditors is circumscribed by superseding authority of Commission carries very heavy burden of persuasion; that burden is not met by interline claimants.--Id., pp. 1000-1.

46. Damage claims.--Trustee's title to property of debtor is exclusive, and debtor railroad is not liable for personal injuries caused by negligent operation of railroad by trustee.--In re Penn Central Transp. Co., 596 F.2d 1102 (1126).

65. Contracts; leases.--In view of fact that trustee has power to reject leases, it is plausible to assume that trustee has power to supervise operation of line for which lease is rejected and to effect any chargeback which arises.--In re Penn Central Transp. Co., 596 F.2d 1102 (1126).

66. Consolidation; acquisition; operation; construction; sale.--

Sale: Section 77(o) does not preclude proposed sale by trustees to another railroad of certain lines and other property of debtor, apart from reorganization plan, since same essential scheme for protection of both public and private interests in plan is invoked for sale of line; court must determine that transaction appears worthy of consideration by Commission, Commission must approve sale, and court has ultimate power of deciding whether sale is in best interests of debtor's estate and will enhance its ultimate reorganization.--In re Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 469 F. Supp. 769 (771-2).

Court need not not make specific findings required under §77(o) relating to debtor's best interest, public interest, and ultimate reorganization before trustee is authorized to submit application to Commission; such matters will be considered by Commission under §5(2) [now 49 USC §11343 et seq.] and court will best be able to make ultimat findings required under §77(o) after receiving Commission report.--Id., p. 772.

67. Abandonment of lines.--In view of facts that Commission has jurisdiction to approve not only discontinuance of service over line but also abandonment of line itself (i.e., rail properties), and that reorganization court has exclusive jurisdiction over railroad and its property wherever located, when trustees, with court approval, obtained Commission approval for abandonment of line, and court then authorized trustees to abandon line and dismantle rail, track, and ties on line, State agency was without jurisdiction, by virtue of federal preemption, to issue order preventing railroad from dismantling line, reorganization court had power to enjoin State action, and reorganization court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to refer question of rail properties on line to State courts.--In re Boston & Maine Corp., 596 F.2d 2 (5-10).

85. Bonds and bondholders.--Tender offer by railroad in reorganization to accomplish reduction of secured debt is not usual step in ongoing process of seeking to rehabilitate debtor under plan of reorganization by readjustment of its debt structure in interest of creditors and stockholders and public interest; however, nothing in §77 prohibits interim certification by Commission to court of such step, and role of court after Commisson approval and certification is independently to examine tender offer proposal and to approve it if it is satisfied that it meets requirements of §77(e).--In re Boston & Maine Corp., 468 F. Supp. 1010 (1013-4).

Where Commission has approved trustees' petition for authority to make tender offer for six percent per annum first mortgage bonds and for reduction of first mortgage debt, and proposal would result in favorable increase in debtors' net worth and improve chances of receiving federal loan, proposal is approved.--Id., p. 1014.

Since tender offer proposal is integral part of trustees' plan of reorganization and significantly affects prospects for ultimate reorganization of railroad, and is not merely settlement of claims of bondholders which court would be authorized to approve in advance of structuring of final plan of reorganization, primary jurisdiction to consider and act on tender offer proposal is in Commission.--Id., p. 1014.

Court, in exercise of sound discretion, may authorize payment of matured interest or its equivalent to mortgage bondholders out of available funds earned by property constituting security for their bonds.--Id., p. 1015.

110. Appointment of trustees; ratification; duties.--When trustee is given legal title to railroad's property for special purpose of rehabilitating company, that title is exclusive, and trustee has power, inter alia, to reject leases; thus, he also has power to supervise operation of line for which lease is rejected and effect any chargeback which arises.--In re Penn Central Transp. Co., 596 F.2d 1102 (1126).

116. Compensation of mortgage trustees; special counsel.--Where reorganization court approves proposal, previously approved by Commission, to make tender offer for first mortgage bonds and for reduction of first mortgage debt, first mortgage trustees are authorized to set aside reserve of $450,000 in restricted funds account to preserve status quo of available funds for interim compensation of mortgage trustees should they establish their right to compensation in accordance with petition to Commission under §77(c)(12).--In re Boston & Maine Corp., 468 F. Supp. 1010 (1015)*.

§2321. JUDICIAL REVIEW

8. Scope of review of Commission orders.--Ninth Circuit recognizes that review of Commission action is conducted with highly deferential standard of review.--Packer Transp. Co. v. United Sttes, 596 F.2d 891 (893)*.

§2344. REVIEW OF ORDERS; TIME, NOTICE, ETC.

10. Time limits.--Commission's argument, that §15(8)(a) [now §10707] changed normal review procedure by foreclosing all possibility of further agency review after lapse of seven month period, so that period in which to seek judicial review under 28 USC §2344 must be measured from date of original decision was entered within seven month period, is rejected; while Commission action on suspended tariffs must become final in seven month period in sense that tariffs will go into effect after that period, Commission is not deprived of jurisdiction to consider petition for reconsideration filed after seven month period, so that period in which to seek judicial review is mesured from denial of petition for reconsideration.--Pennsylvania v. I.C.C., 590 F.2d 1187 (1192-6)*.

While administrative order is not final for purposes of judicial review until outstanding petitions for reconsideration have been disposed of, Commission order is effective despite pendency of petitions for reconsideration, so that it is reviewable in court without first filing such petitions.--Id., pp. 1193-1195.

NATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY

§4332. COOPERATION OF AGENCIES; REPORTS; AVAILABILITY OF INFORMATION; RECOMMENDATIONS; INTERNATIONAL AND NATIONAL COORDINATION OF EFFORTS

5. Environmental impact statement, when required.--Commission's conclusion, that granting contract carrier's application for operating authority is not major Federal action significantly affecting quality of human environment within meaning of §4332, is affirmed, in light of protestant's failure to present any particular facts supporting position that grant would have significant adverse impact and pre-existing authorization of applicant to operate similar service between same cities.--Internatl. Detective Serv., Inc. v. I.C.C. 595 F. 2d 862 (865)*.

REGIONAL RAIL REORGANIZATION ACT

§741. FORMATION AND STRUCTURE

2. Construction and interpretation.--Since under §301(b) Conrail is deemed common carrier by railroad under §1(3) [now §10102] of Interstate Commerce Act, Congress did not intend that once created Conrail would be treated any differently from other railroads, and nothing suggests that Conrail is to be immune from regulation which is not financially favorable to it; thus, Conrail is bound by final order prescribing divisions entered against its predecessor-in-interest bankrupt railroads.--Conrail v. I.C.C., 590 F.2d 937 (941)*.

RULES OF PRACTICE

Rule 2. Liberal construction.--Under rule 2 rules of practice are to be construed to secure just determination of issues; thus, intervenor had standing to file exceptions to initial decision, and fact that intervenor might not have standing to challenge decision before Federal courts does not mean that Commission by its rules is precluded from affording intervenor opportunity to be heard.--Takin Bros. Frt. Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Chi-Fli, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 408 (412).

Rule 19. Time; (a) Computation.--When charges on shipments at issue were paid Nov. 1, 1972, statutory 3-year limitations period ended Saturday, Nov. 1, 1975, and under rule 19(a) calculation is made from Monday, Nov. 3, 1975.--Administrator of General Services v. Burlington, 357 I.C.C. 232 (239).

Rule 21. Replies and motions.--Applicants' motion to strike portions of replies to exceptions filed by protestants is denied when those replies were properly filed under rule 21 and applicants' motion was filed primarily as effort to controvert certain arguments raised by protestants in reply and thus constituted reply to reply prohibited by rule 21; however, material contained in protestants' reply is only argument and is not evidence.--Jones Truck Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Deaton, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 428 (429).

Rule 47. Modified procedure; content of pleadings.--When in their opening statement defendants raised new issue, complainant could present information as to that issue in its reply statement; however, as rule 47 provides that complainant's reply statement shall be confined to rebuttal of defendants' statement, evidence in complainant's reply statement is considered only insofar as it is relevant to rebut defendants' opening statement.---Administrator of General Services v. Burlington, 357 I.C.C. 232 (237).

Rule 66. Authority of officers.--When former rule 70(a) denied law judge authority to decide motion to dismiss, such motion was treated in initial decision as request for summary judgment.--Akers Motor Lines, Inc.--Control--Central Motor, 127 M.C.C. 203 (205)*.

Rule 70. Intervention; petitions.--Intervenor had standing to file exceptions to initial decision because its position and interest were adequately disclosed as required by rule 72 [now 70] when petition to intervene was granted; under rule 72(e) intervenor became party to proceeding when petition to intervene was granted, and, being party, it had right to except to initial decision, since under rule 2 rules of practice are to be construed to secure just determination of issues, and fact that intervenor might not have standing to challenge decision before Federal courts does not mean that Commission by its rules is precluded from affording intervenor opportunity to be heard.--Takin Bros. Frt. Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Chi-Fli, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 408 (412-3).

Rule 73. Evidence, admissibility generally.--Since Commission is not bound by same strictures as court of law with respect to evidence, and rule 73 states that rules of evidence are to be applied only to end that justice is served while protecting substantial rights, Commission has traditionally interpreted evidentiary rules liberally; thus, letter not strictly within business records exception but within its spirit and informal opinion of Commission alleged to be hearsay, are accepted into evidence.--Alladin Lampshade Corp. v. Georgia Hwy. Frt., 357 I.C.C. 625 (626-7)*.

Rule 97. Administrative appeals--nonrail proceedings.--Ten-page limit in rule 97(d) applies to petitions for reconsideration in which Appellate Division has already reversed, modified, or changed employee board decision; where applicants seek initial appellate review of decision of review board, 30-page rather than 10-page limit applies.--Eldridge--Purchase--Point Exp., Inc., 127 M.C.C. 498 (500).

Rule 225. Rules of practice governing the procedures of the Motor Carrier Board, the Finance Board, the Operations Boards, the Special Permission Board, the Released Rates Board, and the Tariff Rules Board.--Petition for reconsideration filed 10 days late under rule 225(g) is accepted when no party will be prejudiced and petition raises issues similar to those raised in exceptions filed in consolidated proceedings.--Takin Bros. Frt. Lines, Inc.--Pur.--Chi-Fli, Inc., 127 M.C.C. 408 (412).

Rule 247. Special rules governing notice of filing of applicants by motor carriers of property or passengers and brokers under sections 206 (except section 206(a)(6) relating to Certificates of Registration), 209 and 211, by water carriers under sections 302(e), 303, and 309, and by freight forwarders under section 410 of the Interstate Commerce Act, and certain other procedural matters with respect thereto.--Where applicant seeks to purchase inoperative alternate route and applies for regular-route authority only to provide underlying service route, and protestants do not have authority to serve between points covered by regular-route application, that application is granted despite fact that applicant did not file verified statements from shippers supporting application; application is adequately supported by shipper certificates submitted by applicant with application.--Eldridge--Purchase--Point Exp., Inc., 127 M.C.C. 498 (503-4).

FOREWORD

Public Law 95-473, an Act to "revise, codify and enact without substantive change the Interstate Commerce Act," was signed by President Carter on October 17, 1978. (92 Stat. 1337). The new law constitutes a substantial revision and reorganization of the laws administered by the Interstate Commerce Commission, It repeals the Interstate Commerce Act (49 U.S,C. §1 _et seq._, §301 _et seq._, §901 _et seq._, and §1001 _et seq._) and certain related statutes. These laws have now been replaced by a new subititle IV of title 49 of the United States Code, 49 U.S.C. §10101 through §11916.

This issue of the Advance Bulletin reflects Commission cases annotated under the new codification Cross reference tables from the old Interstate Commerce Act to the new codification will be found in Volume II of the Advance Bulletin beginning on page 1323.

The Advance Bulletin supplements the Commission's bound volumes of _Interstate Commerce Acts Annotated_. This issue is Number 7 of Volume III. All of the annotations in Volume II will appear in the bound volume 23 of the _Interstate Commerce Acts Annotated_. Volume 23 is now closed with annotations under the old Interstate Commerce Act now repealed by P. L. 95-473. Volume 24 will reflect annotations under the new revision (Subtitle IV of Title 49 United States Code).

A number of Bulletins will constitute a volume; and the pages will be numbered consecutively within each volume rather than within individual Bulletins. To facilitate the location of subject headings, the Table of Contents of each Bulletin may ultimately be removed to form a cumulative table for the volume. The Bulletin is published quarterly.

Members of the public, attorneys and practitioners, the I.C.C. staff may consult the consolidated file from which the Bulletin is compiled in Room 3378 of the I.C.C. Building. For cases which appear in the Bulletin only as reconsidered or appealed, prior citations and annotations may be obtained by consulting the consolidated file or by calling Mr. John F. McMorrow or Mr. Robert A. Emery, (202-275-7143).

Where a Bulletin case is marked with an asterisk (*), its history may be found in the Table of Cases at the back of the Bulletin.

The Advance Bulletin is prepared in the Annotations Unit under the direction of Mr. Jack R. Long, Chief, Reference Services Branch, Section of Applications Evaluation and Authorities, Office of Proceedings, Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C. 20423. Comments and suggestions regarding improvement of the format of the Bulletin will be welcomed, and may be made in writing or by calling (202-275-7221).

TITLE 49

§10101. TRANSPORTATION POLICY

1. Recodification of the Act.--No inference should be drawn from change of language in recodification, since revisions in Act were not intended to work any substantive change in law.--American Trucking Assn., Inc. v. United States, 602 F.2d 444 (446)*.

Prohibition in §3(a) of P.L. 95-473 against construction of substantive change in recodified Act requires court to examine closely language of Act prior to recodification in order to determine intent of Congress with regard to jurisdictional question at issue, even though most statutory sections containing this language have been officially repealed by recodification.--Trailer Marine Transport Corp. v. F.M.C., 602 F.2d 379 (383).

It cannot be argued that meaning of language of recodified Act is different from that of original Act; if that were true, recodifiers would have exceeded their lawful authority, since Congress explicitly provided that language of recodified Act may not be construed as making substantive change in laws replaced, and court would have to rest its construction on meaning of language in original Act.--Id., p. 389.

2. The Commerce clause.--State's law barring use of trucks longer than specified length on interstate highways found to have violated Commerce Clause because they place substantial burden on interestate commerce and make no more than speculative contribution to highway safety.--Raymont Motor Transp., Inc. v. Rice, 434 U.S. 429 (439-48); Consolidated Freightways Corp. of Del. v. Kassell, 612 F.2d 1064 (1067-71).

5. National transportation policy, in general.--

Economy and efficiency: Among regulatory responsibilities of Commission is duty zealously to adhere to principles set forth by Congress in national transportation policy [now §10101], including, inter alia, promotion of "safe, adequate, economical, and efficient service"; thus, grant of authority to carry containerized freight from shipper's plant to ocean carrier's loading dock within same commercial zone, and empty containers on return, has pragmatic effect of fostering efficient and economical coordination of transnational intermodal service; granted.--Triangle Trucking Co., Inc., Contr. Car. Applic., 128 M.C.C. 386 (397).

Regulations covering claims for damages: Provision of NTP [now §10101] that Commission is to "regulate" carriers so as to encourage charges "without unjust discrimination, undue preferences or advantages" supports Commission's promulgation of procedural rule for use of net weights in voluntary settlement of loss and damage claims on scrap shipments.--Assn. of Am. Railroads v. I.C.C., 600 F.2d 989 (995)*.

§10102(4). DEFINITIONS--COMMON CARRIER

2b. Conrail.--Complaint proceeding originally against Penn Central is now given new title and new docket number to reflect that it is now against Conrail, in order to recognize change in corporate entity of carrier.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Conrail, 362 I.C.C. 170 (186)*.

7. Carline companies.--Carlines do not appear as common carriers under §1(3)(a) [now §10102].--Contracts for Protective Services, 358 I.C.C. 638 (646-7)*.

§10102(9). HIGHWAY

1. In general.--Under §203(a)(12) [now §10102], term highway means way open to all people without distinction for passage or repassage at their pleasure, or, more succinctly, public way or road; since highway in ordinary sense is way open to all people without distinction for passage or repassage at their pleasure, it is necessarily public in character, and term public highway has been said to be tautology.--Glengarry Transport Ltd.--Declaratory Order, 128 M.C.C. 342 (348-9).

Bridge connecting public highways is itself public highway, and public has same right to use of bridge as part of public highway as it has of main highway itself; toll bridge is part of public highway same as bridge built by general taxation.--Id., p. 349.

Since erection of public bridges is governmental function, which may be delegated to private individuals or companies, fact that Seaway International bridge between U.S. and Canada is owned and operated by public, governmentally owned corporation and not by State of New York does not make bridge other than public highway; thus, Canadian carrier must hold Commission authority to operate between international boundary line located on bridge and U.S. customs compound located on approach road to bridge.--Id., p. 349-50.

§10102(12). DEFINITIONS--MOTOR CONTRACT CARRIER

2. Construction and interpretation.--Under §10102(12) (formerly §203(a)(15)) the threshold question in a proceeding under this section is whether the proposed service qualifies as contract carriage. To answer this question an applicant is required to demonstrate either that it will commit equipment for a continuing period of time to the exclusive use of the shipper or that its operation is calculated to meet the distinct needs of each shipper served. Further, a successful applicant must show that a grant will only authorize it to provide service to "a limited number of persons". In 91 MCC 691 696, the Commission interpreted this language to mean that, generally speaking, any contract carrier offering service to more than six or eight separate shippers (persons) might be found to be serving more than "a limited number of persons". In the instant case, applicant's proposed use of special equipment is designed to meet shippers' distinct and largely unique transportation requirements. Since applicant now serves five shippers and proposes to add two or three new shippers, it will not serve more than a limited number of persons. Proposed service found to be contract carriage.--McKelvey Common Carrier Applic., 128 M.C.C. 23 (29-30).

Ocean carrier regulated by Federal Maritime Commission cannot be deemed shipper qualified to support contract carrier application to transport commodities other than containers or trailers which it supplies for through movement; definition of contract shipper pursuant to §203(a)(15) [now §10102] applies only when shipper has interest in involved traffic other than being part of, providing, or assisting in through movement.--Triangle Trucking Co., Inc., Contr. Car. Applic., 128 M.C.C. 386 (394).

§10102(23). DEFINITIONS--TRANSPORTATION

84. Cars.--Fact that car has once made commercial domestic movement does not mean that car automatically maintains permanent status as instrumentality of transportation entitled to free repair movements; thus, when privately owned empty tank cars were leased for use in Mexico, and had no commercial movements within U.S. during period of lease, their transportation to repair facilities was for benefit of car owner not U.S. railroads, and they were not entitled to transportation to repair facilities without charge unless having first made commercial line-haul movement within U.S., since on return to U.S. from service under lease in Mexico, they were "newly acquired" by owner into national car fleet.--Union Tank Car Co.--Declaratory Order, 358 I.C.C. 688 (692-3)*.

§10102(24). UNITED STATES

1. In general.--Act defines "United States" as "the States of the United States and the District of Columbia".--Trailer Marine Transport Corp. v. F.M.C., 602 F.2d 379 (387)*.

Construction of jurisdictional limitation "to the extent . . . transportation is in the United States", see Id., at §10501(a)(2), n.53, infra.

SUBCHAPTER II---ADMINISTRATIVE

§10321. POWERS

2. Construction and interpretation.--Provision of §12(1) [now §10321] that Commission is to enforce part I of the Act includes national transportation policy [now §10101].--Assn. of Am. Railroads v. I.C.C., 600 F.2d 989 (995)*.

Powers and Duties

15. In general.--Commission's authority and duty to interpret operating rights of all motor carriers, including passenger carriers, is indisputable, citing §204(a)(6) [now §10321].--Terminal Areas for Express Shipments by Bus, 128 M.C.C. 204 (223).

17. Rulemaking.--Although §12(1) [now §10321] does not contain express grant of rulemaking authority, general principle is that when agency is entrusted with supervision of an industry its power to issue rule necessary to do so should be broadly construed; thus, Commission regulation for use of net weights in voluntary settlement of loss and damage claims on scrap shipments, which is procedural not substantive, was justifiably promulgated by Commission to discharge its statutory obligation to enforce railroads' obligation to compensate shippers for full actual loss under §20(11) [now §11707].--Assn. of Am. Railroads v. I.C.C., 600 F.2d 989 (993-7)*.

19. Carrier management in general.--1940 amendments to Act, including §§12(1) and 204(a)(7) [now both §10321], indicate that Commission has authority and obligation to concern itself with activities of persons controlling, controlled by, and sharing control with carriers, and evidence design to confer on Commission authority to gather information on those parties which is practically same as authority with respect to carriers; Commission's broad authority to inquire into management of business of these persons related to carriers in same manner as carriers is limited solely by requirement that inquiry be related to management of business of carrier (§§12(1) and 204(a)(7)) and that documents inspected be such as Commission deems relevant to such person's relation to or transactions with carrier (§§20(5) and 220(d) [now both §11144].--Corporate Disclosure Regulations, 354 I.C.C. 27 (34-8); 356 I.C.C. 103 (104).

Production of Documents

54. Powers of Commission.--Commission's power to require reporting of information under §12(1) [now §10321] is limited to requirement that disclosure not be unreasonable; inquiry must be within authority of agency, demand not too indefinite, and information sought reasonably relevant.--Corporate Disclosure Regulations, 354 I.C.C. 27 (39)*.

§10327. COMMISSION ACTION AND APPELLATE PROCEDURE IN RAIL CARRIER PROCEEDINGS

Reopening; Rehearing; Reargument; or Reconsideration

48. Grounds generally.--Review provisions of rule 98(e)(1) refer only to rehearing, reargument, or reconsideration of division decisions pursuant to §10327(g)(2), but in petitioning for review of entire Commission decisions filing must allege material error, new evidence or substantially changed circumstances pursuant to §10327(g)(1).--Missouri Pac. R. Co.--Merger--T&P and CE&I, 360 I.C.C. 563 (566)*.

There must be finality to litigation; thus, when proceeding has been before Commission for four years, and has been subject of initial decision, two division decisions, and one entire Commission decision, all of which considered question at issue, petitions for reopening are denied.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 358 I.C.C. 473 (480)*.

50. Substantially changed circumstances.--When rule 98(e) and §10327(g) provide for reconsideration of decision upon showing of materially changed circumstances, and evidence suggests substantial changes not only in operating statistics of movement at issue but also of operating characteristics, it is wise to deal with possibility of substantially changed circumstances while reexamining certain issues pursuant to court's remand.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Conrail, 362 I.C.C. 170 (186)*.

52. Material error.--Proceeding reopened when prior decisions approving merger contained material error regarding appropriate level of employee protection which Commission is required to impose.--Missouri Pac. R. Co.--Merger--T&P and CE&I, 360 I.C.C. 565 (566-7)*.

When defendants raise serious questions of material error regarding setting of new rate, it is proper for Commission to consider issues raised in order to determine whether to reopen proceeding on grounds of material error pursuant to §17(9)(g) [now §10327]; no material error is found, and proceeding is discontinued.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 849 (850-1)*.

CHAPTER 105---JURISDICTION

§10501(a)(1). GENERAL JURISDICTION--FORMS OF TRANSPORTATION

111. Water carriers.--Under §10501(a)(1)(b) and (2)(c), formerly §1(1), Interstate Commerce Commission, not Federal Maritime Commission, has jurisdiction over filing and substantive regulation of rail-water joint through routes between ports of Puerto Rico and inland points of States of United States, whereby goods are carried by water to or from Puerto Rico and by rail within State of United States.--Trailer Marine Transport Corp. v. F.M.C., 602 F.2d 379 (383-5)*.

ICC has not asserted that its power under former part I of Act to prescribe rates for rail-water joint through routes includes power to require that through rail-water routes be established.--Id., p. 400.

§10501(a)(2). GENERAL JURISDICTION--WHERE TRANSPORTATION TAKES PLACE

Interstate Commerce

8. Rail-water movements partly between points in United States.--Under §10501(a)(1)(B) and (2)(C), formerly §1(1), Interstate Commerce Commission, not Federal Maritime Commission, has jurisdiction over filing and substantive regulation of rail-water joint through routes between ports of Puerto Rico and inland points of States of United States, whereby goods are carried by water to or from Puerto Rico and by rail within State of United States.--Trailer Marine Transport Corp. v. F.M.C., 602 F.2d 379 (383-5)*.

Foreign Commerce

53. To extent transportation is in United States.--Argument that phrase "to the extent . . . [such] transportation is in the United States" limits Interstate Commerce Commission's jurisdiction over rail-water joint rates between interior U.S. points and Puerto Rico to that part of transportation performed by ICC-regulated rail carriers within States of United States and District of Columbia, is rejected; original language of §1(1), as opposed to recodified language of §10501(a)(2), as well as reason and precedent, support construction that "in the United States" limitation sets no geographic limitations on ICC's jurisdiction except to bar unbridled over-reaching of such jurisdiction to foreign carriers within foreign countries; thus, ICC's jurisdiction may extend to high sea routes without entering foreign country, since only purpose of limitation clause was to avoid jurisdictional conflicts between U.S. and foreign countries, rather than to separate jurisdictional functions of ICC and Federal Maritime Commission.--Trailer Marine Transport Corp. v. F.M.C., 602 F.2d 379 (386-93)*.

Extra-Continental United States

58. Alaska.--Interstate Commerce Commission has jurisdiction over both onshore and ocean segments of joint through motor-ocean and domestic water-ocean trade between mainland and Alaska; Federal Maritime Commission has jurisdiction over transportation by single rates from port to port.--Trailer Marine Transport Corp. v. F.M.C., 602 F.2d 379 (399)*.

59. Puerto Rico.--Under §10501(a)(1)(B) and (2)(C), formerly §1(1), Interstate Commerce Commission, not Federal Maritime Commission, has jurisdiction over filing and substantive regulation of rail-water joint through routes between ports of Puerto Rico and inland ports of States of United States, whereby goods are carried by water to or from Puerto Rico and by rail within State of United States.--Trailer Marine Transport Corp. v. F.M.C., 602 F.2d 379 (383-5)*.

Puerto Rico is type of geographic entity to which Congress intended term "territory" in §1(1) to apply.--Id., p. 385.

Provision of 48 USC §751 that Interstate Commerce Act shall not apply to Puerto Rico refers only to local and intra-island affairs and rates of Puerto Rico.--Id., p. 385.

Section 1(1) gives ICC no jurisdiction over transportation on routes only by water between various destinations specified in that subsection; FMC has jurisdiction over single rate all-water transportation from one port to another of States of United States or its territories or possessions, as well as over transportation between ports of United States and foreign countries and over all-water joint through routes that lie in their entirety between or among such ports.--Id., pp. 385-6.

Former part I of Act pertains directly to trade at issue and was not repealed by former part III.--Id., p. 386.

Distinction between "FMC-regulated" carriers and "ICC-regulated" carriers is unproductive and misleading; factor relevant to determination of appropriate agency to exercise jurisdiction over particular carrier is trade activity rather than "indentity" of carrier.--Id., p. 386.

62. Hawaii.--Interstate Commerce Commission has jurisdiction over both onshore and ocean segments of joint through motor-ocean and domestic water-ocean trade between mainland and Hawaii; Federal Maritime Commission has jurisdiction over transportation by single rates from port to port.--Trailer Marine Transport Corp. v. F.M.C., 602 F.2d 379 (399)*.

§10523. EXEMPT MOTOR VEHICLE TRANSPORTATION IN TERMINAL AREAS

5. In general.--Section 202(c)(2) [now §10523] expresses terminal zone exemption in geographic terms, although limits of exemption are not specified in Act but are left to Commission to determine.--Terminal Areas for Express Shipments by Bus, 128 M.C.C. 204 (222).

Motor carriers of passengers are motor carriers within meaning of §202(c) and are subject to having their terminal areas defined by Commission.--Id., p. 222.

Carriers subject to regulation: Local pickup and delivery motor carrier services performed for or on behalf of carriers expressly subject to Act are exempt from regulation under terminal area exemption of §202(c)(2) [now §10523], but such services performed in connection with carriers not subject to Act, including ocean carriers regulated by Federal Maritime Commission, are not exempt from regulation even though they are performed wholly within single commercial zone or terminal area.--Triangle Trucking Co., Inc., Contr. Car. Applic., 128 M.C.C. 386 (393-4).

Foreign commerce: Authority held by line-haul carrier to serve particular point as terminal or intermediate point in connection with its authorized regular route operations does not enable it lawfully to perform nonexempt local operations as part of continuous through movement in foreign commerce, in no way connected with its line-haul services.--Triangle Trucking Co., Inc., Contr. Car. Applic., 128 M.C.C. 386 (393).

Passenger carriers: Pickup and delivery terminal areas of motor carriers of passengers are made coextensive with terminal areas of motor carriers of property and freight forwarders, with respect to carriage of express, in order to improve passenger carriers' revenue position by increasing express service and to improve carriage of small shipments.--Terminal Areas for Express Shipments by Bus, 128 M.C.C. 204 (228).

There is no requirement that pickup and delivery within terminal area, whether provided by line-haul carrier or local carter, be performed in same vehicle or same type of vehicle as over-the-road services; thus, when passenger carriers are not excluded from benefits of §202(c) [now §10523], pickup and delivery services offered by them or on their behalf may be performed in other than passenger carrying vehicles, although separate nonpassenger carrying vehicle may not be used by passenger carrier to transport express.--Id., pp. 206, 227.

§10526. MISCELLANEOUS MOTOR CARRIER TRANSPORTATION EXEMPTIONS

45. Operations by or for agricultural cooperatives.--Revised agricultural cooperative exemption, under §10526(a)(5), as amended by §24 of Motor Carrier Act of 1980 (Ex Parte No. MC-75 (Sub-No. 2)), see 45 FR 45524.

60. Commercial zones.--For motor carrier to avail itself of §203(b)(8) [now §10526] commercial zone exemption, two conditions must be met: (1) transportation must take place wholly within municipality or between contiguous municipalities or within zone adjacent to and commercially part of such municipality and municipalities, and (2) transportation must not be performed under common control, management, or arrangement for continuous carriage to or from point without municipality, municipalities, or zones; common control, management, or arrangement contemplated by §203(b)(8) is one between carriers participating in through transportation, so that separate arrangements made by shipper with carriers performing through movement from or to point located outside involved zone does not void exemption.--Triangle Trucking Co.., Inc., Contr. Car. Applic., 128 M.C.C. 386 (389-90).

When motor carrier performs local cartage service between shipper's facilities and port facilities within same commercial zone, for subsequent movement by ocean carrier to foreign destinations, to extent ocean carrier controls cartage operation, transportation is under common control, management, or arrangement between ocean carrier and motor carrier performing cartage to points located outside commercial zone and is not exempted from regulations, even though joint rates and through bills of lading do not apply to operation; however, to extent cartage is performed pursuant to routing arrangements made by shipper for continuous carriage to or from points outside zone, operation is exempt, when service is rendered under separate agreement, independent rate, and direct instructions from shipper (such service being "intraterminal", as distinguished from "intercity" or "intercommunity" operations).--Id., pp. 391-3.

Section 10526 (former §203(b)(8)) exempts from economic regulation local transportation within a municipality and its surrounding commercial zone. While Congress did not define by specific terms the physical dimensions of the commercial zone exemption, it did indicate that the zone is an area "adjacent to" and "commercially a part of" the base municipality. Thus when the Commission considers an area for inclusion within a municipality's commercial zone, it is necessary to examine the area's geographic and economic relationship with the base municipality. The Commission herein lists eight factors which may be relevant to this inquiry. Upon application of these standards to the evidence adduced herein, it was found that the proposed area should be included in the Spokane commercial zone.--Spokane, Wash., Commercial Zone, 128 M.C.C. 376 (379-80)*.

Shipper or consignee can arrange for pickup and delivery of its freight, and such service is exempt under §203(b)(8) [now §10526] if performed entirely within commercial zone.--Terminal Areas for Express Shipments by Bus, 128 M.C.C. 204 (225).

Spokane, WA: The Commission herein stated eight factors which are to be considered in determining whether a proposed area is within a municipality's commercial zone. Upon application of these standards to the evidence herein the Commission concludes that the area in question should be included within the Spokane commercial zone. These areas share the same county government as Spokane, are served by the same electric, gas, and telephone utilities, and are served by the same transit system as Spokane. Industrial and commercial firms located in the proposed areas look to Spokane for their business needs and there appears to be a large, two-way traffic in employees, services, and goods between these areas and Spokane. Finally, it is significant that there has been no public interest appearing in opposition to proposed redefinition nor have petitioners' assertions been challenged. Redefinition approved.--Spokane, Wash., Commercial Zone, 128 M.C.C. 376 (379-80)*.

Carriers to Provide and Furnish Transportation

3. Shipper's right to reasonable rates.--Carriers are not entitled to revenue from unjust, unreasonable, and unlawful rates.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 849 (857)*.

13. Maximum rates.--Existence of many rates within zone of reasonableness can support no inference of what maximum reasonable rate should be, and reliance on rate comparisons must be measured against statutory policy to give railroads increased ratemaking flexibility; thus, when comparisons show broad zone of reasonableness, it would be inappropriate to force respondents toward lower end of that zone.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (557)*.

Tests of Reasonableness

23. In general.--While Commission is required to limit rates to levels that are just and reasonable, there is no simple formula for doing so, and Commission, in determining reasonableness of individual rate, considers, inter alia, cost, comparative rates, and circumstances relating to demand and competition; effect of §15a(4) [now §10704] is to require that revenue adequacy be given explict consideration as important factor to be given maximum effect possible, although it is only one factor and does not supersede other aspects of reasonableness determination.--Establishment of Adequate Railroad Revenue Levels, 358 I.C.C. 844 (854); 359 I.C.C.270 (274).

Mere circumstance that assailed rates fit within established rate pattern does not render them just and reasonable and does not make them immutable; Commission does not hesitate to prescribe rates notwithstanding that rates found in violation of Act are integral part of distinct rate pattern.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 222 (231)*.

Conflicting considerations in prescribing reasonable rate cannot be reduced to dry, exact, mathematical formula; rather, situation calls for Commission's judgment in balancing all opposing elements involved.--Id., p. 238.

32. Rates decreasing with distance.--For comparable services, revenue per ton-mile is usually higher for shorter than for longer haul, because cost per ton-mile is generally higher for shorter than for longer haul, since terminal costs must be allocated over fewer miles of haul; revenue per ton-mile may be higher for shorter haul in order to recoup terminal costs over fewer miles than would occur with longer haul, but ratio of revenue to total variable cost need not necessarily be different for either haul.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 358 I.C.C. 222 (225)*.

33. Volume of traffic as factor.--When coal moves to utility in substantial and growing volumes, consideration must be given to gross annual contribution to railroad revenues made by movement; hence, Commission is reluctant to prescribe maximum reasonable rate for movement in what might be characterized as low end of maximum reasonable zone.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 222 (240)*.

35. Monopolistic character of service.--Commission prescribed trainload coal rate returning 117 percent of fully allocated costs because return to carrier of still greater amount for moving captive traffic would be excessive and clearly transgress public interest in keeping transportation costs for vital fuel commensurate with reasonable return on carriers' investment.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 849 (853); 359 I.C.C. 222 (227).

44. Intent of both carriers and shippers considered.--Commission must accomodate both shipper and carrier, recognizing initiative of each in effecting efficiencies of volume service.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 222 (238); that is, shipper should obtain lower rate while carrier receives greater profit.--Id., 362 I.C.C. 169 (179).

Profit to Carrier

52. Right of carrier to fair profit, generally.--Under concept of differential pricing in railroad ratemaking, revenue contributions may be different for different commodities so that overall railroads may be profitable enterprises; for same reason, revenue contributions may vary for different types of service rendered same commodity.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Conrail, 362 I.C.C. 170 (175)*.

While Commission recognizes necessity of differential pricing on volume coal movements to enable carriers to achieve adequate revenue levels, and as interim standard it has provided for recovery of fully allocated costs, including cost of capital, plus 7-percent add-on for differential pricing, Commission will not place substantial burden on individual shippers through differential pricing absent showing of more than system revenue need.--Id., p. 189.

58. Earnings.--When reasonableness of individual rate is considered, effect of §15a(4) [now §10704] is to require that revenue adequacy be given explicit consideration as important factor to be given maximum effect possible, although it is only one factor and does not supersede other aspects of reasonableness determination.--Establishment of Adequate Railroad Revenue Levels, 358 I.C.C. 844 (854); 359 I.C.C. 270 (274).

Cost of Service

Generally

71. Applied generally.--While for many years Commission decided questions of rate reasonableness largely on basis of rate comparisons, today it judges reasonableness largely upon relationship to cost of service.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Conrail, 362 I.C.C. 169 (181)*.

Revenue from every commodity should cover costs incurred to transport it.--Establishment of Adequate Railroad Revenue Levels, 358 I.C.C. 844 (851)*.

Correct determination of cost of individual service is fundamental to attainment of revenue adequacy.--Id., p. 856.

Providing service which does not cover its costs cannot be justified, except in limited circumstances such as providing promotions.--Id., p. 866.

81. Interest, wages, taxes.--Costing is not to be confused with ratemaking, and net investment (original costs less depreciation) determines cost base, with allowance for cost of capital on net investment to utilize embedded debt rates; however, current cost of equity capital should be considered in ratemaking in light of policy expressed in §15a(4) [now §10704] of aiding railroads to attain adequate revenue levels.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (558-60, 588, 591-2)*.

84. Maintenance of way; fixed plant investment.--In costing unit-train coal movement, inclusion of incremental costs of fixed plant investment is accepted.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (558,592)*.

What Constitutes Cost of Service

85. Variable cost; compensatory rates.--When Commission prescribed rate reflecting 190 percent of variable cost, it did not act irrationally, since Commission did not merely choose particular rate/cost ratio but also considered comparable movements, benefits due carriers from trainload service, eastern coal rate structure, nature of captive coal traffic, increasing volumes of coal movement, and assistance provided by shipper-supplied facilities.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 849 (851-3)*.

Commission will not set rate simply by doubling variable cost, in view of fact that conflicting considerations involved cannot be reduced to exact, mathematical formula.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 222 (238)*.

Variable costs are those costs for rail transportation which vary with service involved.--Id., 362 I.C.C. 170 (171)*.

86. Fully allocated costs.--Commission prescribed trainload coal rate returning 117 percent of fully allocated costs because return to carrier of still greater amount for moving captive traffic would be excessive and clearly transgress public interest in keeping transportation costs for vital fuel commensurate with reasonable return on carriers' investment; carrier cannot defend charging almost two and one-half times variable cost for transporting this necessary commodity, and prescribed rate in conjunction with high volume of traffic carried, will be sufficient to prompt expansion of trainload service.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 849 (853)*.

It is not fatal flaw that unit-train coal rates return amounts above fully allocated cost, since Congress ordered Commission to promote railroad revenue adequacy.--Id., 362 I.C.C. 170 (183)*.

87. Constant costs.--Since railroad incurs fixed costs from general operations in addition to specific costs of particular service, rates cannot be set simply to cover specific costs but must be set at higher level where possible to contribute to coverage of fixed costs; moreover, fixed costs cannot be recovered in equal proportion from each service because demand and competitive factors place varying limits on rates that can be maintained on different types of traffic.--Establishment of Adequate Railroad Revenue Levels, 358 I.C.C. 844 (853-4)*.

Ascertainment of Costs

90. Principles involved, generally.--Where accurate costs are developed and operating conditions remain unchanged, costs of record may be updated to account for inflation; but where not only operating statistics but also operating characteristics have changed, simple cost updating procedures will not reveal present costs, and additional evidence must be received to determine reasonableness of rates under present circumstances.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Conrail, 362 I.C.C. 170 (188)*.

Various cost formulae are not given prima facie validity.--Establishment of Adequate Railroad Revenue Levels, 358 I.C.C. 844 (897)*.

95. System, regional average costs.--Adjustment for actual operating characteristics is highly desirable refinement that should be made whenever possible in developing costs for point-to-point movements; thus, average costs suffer from deficiency that no adjustments were made to reflect actual operating characteristics, and costs based on operating costs of carrier handling traffic and reflecting operating characteristics of subject traffic are used.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 222 (232-3)*.

Although comparison of specific ratio to territorial average figures contained in 1972 Burden Study is entitled to some evidentiary weight, it is insufficient of itself to demonstrate that particular rates are unreasonable; Commission has never adopted that average as standard of reasonableness.--Id., 362 I.C.C. 170 (173)*.

105. Distance.--For comparable services, revenue per ton-mile is usually higher for shorter than for longer haul, because cost per ton-mile is generally higher for shorter than for longer haul since terminal costs must be allocated over fewer miles of haul.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 358 I.C.C. 222 (225)*.

There is no justification for assuming that rates per ton-miles are linearly related to miles; usual concept of rates implies nonlinear relationship.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 222 (254)*.

Cost of Particular Services

120. Special equipment.--In costing unit-train coal movement, return based on average interest for equipment trust certificates is used to state locomotive diesel unit and caboose capital costs.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (558, 591-2)*.

123. Terminal services.--For comparable services, revenue per ton-mile is usually higher for shorter than for longer haul, because cost per ton-mile is generally higher for shorter than for longer haul, since terminal costs must be allocated over fewer miles of haul; revenue per ton-mile may be higher for shorter haul in order to recoup terminal costs over fewer miles than would occur with longer haul, but ratio of revenue to total variable cost need not necessarily be different for either haul.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 358 I.C.C. 222 (225)*.

Trainload service substantially reduces terminal costs.--Id., p. 226; 359 I.C.C. 222 (226-7)*.

Terminal cost savings resulting from railroads' initiative in effecting unit-train service should be recognized by allowing carriers more profit for shorter hauls.--362 I.C.C. 170 (177)*.

Value of Service

Financial Interests of Shipper

147. What the traffic will bear.--"Value of Service" and "that rate required to move the traffic" are quite similar since value of service is nothing more than what shipper will pay to move his commodity by rail; when in light of growing demand for coal, rate captive traffic will bear becomes amount shipper is compelled to pay under necessity, Commission prescribes maximum trainload rate when rate-to-variable cost ratio of rate at issue, when compared to ratios to shipper's other generating stations, is excessive.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 849 (861)*.

154. Shipper's profit.--Circumstance that industry is profitable does not justify maintenance of exorbitant rates on commodities necessary to its functioning.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 849 (862)*.

Comparison of Rates

Earnings Compared

210. In general.--Existence of many rates within zone of reasonableness can support no inference of what maximum reasonable rate should be, and reliance on rate comparisons must be measured against statutory policy to give railroads increased ratemaking flexibility; thus, when comparisons show broad zone of reasonableness, it would be inappropriate of force respondents toward lower end of that zone.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (557)*.

Similarity of Services and Circumstances

222. Value of comparison dependent upon similarity of circumstances.--Penn Central's financial condition found not to affect comparison of its rates with assailed rates of defendant carrier.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 222 (227-9)*.

In determining lawfulness of rates, Commission will consider comparisons with established rates on same commodity transported in same or similar territories under like circumstances; but, in considering reasonableness of proposed capital incentive unit-train rates, when rates tendered for comparison are either depressed or outdated or both, in view of inflation, increased value of coal as energy source and increased demand for its transportation, they do not provide valid basis for comparison.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (555-6)*.

Rate prescribed in proceeding which has been reopened does not constitute certain basis for comparison.--Id., p. 556.

Rates increased under escalation clauses, but negotiated under completely different competitive circumstances, are not valid basis for comparison.--Id., p. 556.

224. Comparisons based on distance.--Trainload coal rate involving 340-mile haul found comparable with one involving 180-mile haul.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 849 (860-1)*.

For comparable services, revenue per ton-mile is usually higher for shorter than for longer haul, because cost per ton-mile is generally higher for shorter than for longer haul since terminal costs must be allocated over fewer miles of haul; revenue per ton-mile may be higher for shorter haul in order to recoup terminal costs over fewer miles than would occur with longer haul, but ratio of revenue to total variable cost need not necessarily be different for either haul.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 222 (225)*.

When compared rates involve distance of 117 miles while assailed rate applies to 1,607-mile movement, rates do not form valid basis for comparison.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (556-7)*.

229. Compelled or competitive rates.--While rates reduced to meet competition are ordinarily not proper yardstick with which to measure reasonableness of other rates, even competitively reduced rates may form appropriate basis for comparison with other rates for same commodity in same interrelated network of rates; thus, when rates were reduced to meet competition over decade ago, they had become integral part of eastern trainload rate fabric and could properly be compared with other portions of same rate pattern.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 849 (859); 359 I.C.C. 222 (229-30).

When rates, when negotiated, were depressed by competition from closer coal sources, and respondents are seeking to renegotiate them, they do not form valid basis of comparison.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (556)*.

237. Costs of transportation.--Average costs are proper measurement from which determination of representativeness of comparable rate-to-cost ratios can be made, in that average costs provide benchmark with which to determine reasonableness of rates, since benchmark should be based on average of all costs rather than on particular costs for individual movements.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 849 (858)*.

It is not improper for Commission to compare ratios of revenue-to-variable cost to determine whether rate is reasonable.--Id., pp. 862-3.

While it was erroneous to compare base district rate to average variable cost that included movements from both base district and more distant, higher cost differential district, this rate-cost comparison was used only to determine reasonableness of base district rate, and does not affect prescription of trainload rate at issue.--Id., 358 I.C.C. 473 (475)*.

Kinds of Rates Compared

279. Trainload, unit-train rates.--While Commission will consider comparisons of rate in question with established rates for same commodity transported under like circumstances, in view of fact that trainload service and unit-train service are completely different, their circumstances are most unlike, and rates for those services are not comparable.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 849 (854-5)*.

Certain trainload rates found to be proper standard of comparison with assailed trainload rates when operations were comparable in direction and length of haul, area traversed, commodity and tonnage carried, and type of service performed, and when finding that these rates were representative in terms of cost underlay use as basis for comparison.--Id., p. 859.

While assailed trainload rate applies to distance of 180 miles and compared trainload rates to distance of 340 miles, rates are comparable since, allowing for disparity in distance, ratio of revenue to total variable cost need not be different for either haul.--Id., 359 I.C.C 222 (225-7)*.

Because uit-train service and trainload service are quite different, rate-to-cost ratios of these two types of service are not comparable, just as rates for these services are not comparable.--Id., 362 I.C.C. 170 (174-5)*.

When assailed unit-train rate applies to movements of 1,607 miles and requires annual volume of 5,200,000 tons, neither rate involving distance of 117 miles nor rates with annual volumes of only 375,000 and 600,000 tons form valid basis of comparison; but rate involving distance somewhat lower than assailed rate and 1,600,000 tons is valid basis of comparison.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (556-7)*.

Presumptions

319. Subsequent increase or reduction of voluntarily established rates.--Commission will not prescribe rate upon ratio resulting from fictitious restoration of reduction taken long ago.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 222 (230)*.

Rates Based on Quantity of Traffic

518. Trainload, unit-train rates.--Commission prescribed trainload coal rate returning 190 percent of variable and 117 percent of fully allocated costs because return to carrier of still greater amount for moving captive traffic would be excessive and clearly transgress public interest in keeping transportation costs for vital fuel commensurate with reasonable return on carrier's investment; carrier cannot defend charging almost two and one-half times variable cost for transporting this necessary commodity, and prescribed rate in conjunction with high volume of traffic carried will be sufficient to prompt expansion of trainload service.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 849 (853)*.

Trainload and unit-train service are different: trainload shipments involve use of ordinary equipment in single moves at random times without reference to any scheduled operation, while unit-trains function as shuttle service with train operation upon predetermined schedule with dedicated equipment and power continuously devoted to and where possible permanently coupled with that equipment.--Id., pp. 853-4; 362 I.C..C 170 (174-5)*.

Circumstances of trainload and unit train services are most unlike, and rates for these services are not comparable.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 849 (854-5, 860)*.

Unit-train service achieves higher cost savings than trainload service.--Id., p. 855.

Railroad must be allowed to benefit from economies, including substantial reduction in terminal costs, achieved through introduction of trainload service.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 222 (226-7)*; and in recognition of this, railroads should be accorded greater return on shorter haul.--Id., p. 235.

Rate set at 190 percent of variable cost recognizes carriers' initiative in effecting terminal cost savings through initiative of trainload operations while at same time not adopting revenue-variable cost ratio unreasonably in excess of comparable rates, short-haul nature of movement considered.--Id., p. 240.

Because unit-train service and trainload service are quite different, rate-to-cost ratios of these two types of service are not comparable, just as rates for these services are not comparable.--Id., 362 I.C.C. 170 (174-5)*.

Terminal cost savings resulting from railroad's initiative in effecting unit-train service should be recognized by allowing carriers more profit for shorter hauls.--Id., p. 177.

Unit-train service is most efficient way to move coal, and Commission wishes to encourage such efficiency by recognizing investments made by both shippers and carriers, but railroad need not pass on to shipper all cost savings resulting since railroad would then receive no reward for efficiency; thus, unit-train rates lower than trainload rates allow shipper to share cost savings involved, and when there is no showing that shipper pays higher net rate per ton for unit-train service, including its car ownership costs, than for trainload deliveries where cars are owned by carrier, there is no basis for finding unit-train rates unreasonable based on car ownership.--Id., pp. 179-81.

Capital incentive unit-train coal rate of $15.54 per ton found to be within zone of reasonableness in light of cost of service, comparable rates, indicia of rail revenue need, and high value of transportation service of coal; but $16.54 is unreasonably high.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (561)*.

While unit-train coal rates subject to private agreement based on escalation formulae do not violate Act, escalation formula may not be imposed on shipper by publishing it in tariff; such formulae are not mandatory.--Id., pp. 561-2.

Percentage Increases

540. In general.--While role of general increases in promotion of revenue adequacy should be deemphasized, in some circumstances, particularly in times of inflation, broad rate increases are necessary, and revenue adequacy will be regarded as important, but not only, factor in general increase proceedings; Commission must avoid undue disruption of competitive relationships, give effect to other legal requirements, and disapprove increases leading to self-defeating traffic losses.--Establishment of Adequate Railroad Revenue Levels, 358 I.C.C. 844 (850-1)*.

While revenue from every commodity should cover costs incurred to transport it, and in some circumstances it is appropriate to limit contribution obtainable from profitable commodity, in emergency or cost based general increase where revenue adequacy is lacking, it would be inappropriate to place undue emphasis on cost-rate ratios, although equality of contribution is desirable as ideal.--Id., pp. 851-2.

It is well recognized that competitive restraints limit carriers' resort to general increases to meet revenue requirements.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 270 (271)*.

Rates for Special Class of Service

665. Empty movements.--As general proposition, railroads are responsible for maintaining car fleet necessary to provide service, and line-haul revenue is supposed to cover all costs, including costs of moving empty cars to cleaning and repair stations; but when privately owned empty tank cars were previously used under lease in Mexico, Mexican use would not compensate U.S. railroads for expenses incurred in transportating such cars for repair, so that those cars which did not have commercial movements within U.S. during lease periods were transported for benefit of car owners not railroads, and were thus "newly acquired" by car owner into national car fleet and not entitled to transportation without charge to repair facilities without first making commercial line-haul movement within U.S.--Union Tank Car Co.--Declaratory Order, 358 I.C.C. 688 (691-3)*.

While line-haul movements other than last movement might be sufficient to meet requirements of tariff for free repair movements, since tariff did not link specific line-haul movements to specific empty movements, fact that car has once made commercial domestic movement does not mean that car automatically maintains permanent status as instrumentality of transportation entitled to free repair movements.--Id., p. 692.

Movement of empty cars as property to facilities for modification or from facilities for transfer between shippers for sale or scrap is solely for benefit of car owner and not for revenue purposes.--Id., p. 692.

Under tariff governing repair movements, "newly acquired" means "came into possession", "obtained", or "gotten as one's own".--Id., p. 695.

Transportation of Property

16. Cancellation of rates.--Respondent's cancellation of rates and routes on interstate TOFC and COFC traffic at local ramps, found not to constitute unreasonable practice under §1(6) [now §10702] or to be discriminatory under §§2 and 3(1) [now both §10741].--Abandonment of TOFC Services by Louisville & N. R. Co., 357 I.C.C. 169 (169-70).

Bills of Lading

65. Nature, function generally.--Section 7 of Uniform Straight Bill of Lading cannot be interpreted to allow imposition of security deposit requirement for payment of demurrage without tariff publication, since provisions of that section allowing carrier to require prepayment or guarantee of charges cannot be read independently of preceding paragraph concerning payment of tariff charges prior to relinquishment of possession of freight; thus, guarantee provision does not apply to demurrage charges, but is concerned only with charges accruing prior to delivery of cars.--Illinois Central Gulf R. Co.--Security Deposits, 358 I.C.C. 312 (317).

While §7 allows for guarantee of unanticipated freight charges which are due to actions subsequent to release of cars, they affect only those charges which accrued prior to release of freight.--Id., p. 317.

Weighing Practices

67. In general.--Commission regulation, applying to voluntary settlement of loss and damage claims on shipments of scrap iron and steel, and providing that where weight is used as measure of loss in rail transit and actual tare and gross weights are determined at origin and destination, settlement of claims shall be based on comparision of net weights at origin and destination, is procedural rather than substantive, in effect prescribing evidentiary rules, and thus was justifiably promulgated by Commission in discharge of its statutory obligation to enforce railroads' obligation to compensate shippers for full actual loss under §§12(1) [now §10321] and 20(11) [now §11707].--Assn. of Am. Railroads v. I.C.C., 600 F.2d 989 (993-7)*.

73. Tolerances.--Use of scale weight tolerances is not unreasonable.--Assn. of Am. Railroads v. I.C.C., 600 F.2d 989 (992)*.

Protection of Shipments

632. Packing.--Since railroad has right to refuse transportation to badly packed goods, railroad is liable despite shipper's fault when it negligently fails to reject goods that may suffer damage because of deficiencies in packing; railroad is not obliged to inspect all freight containers for internal defects, but it is liable for damages caused by defects in packing reasonably known or discoverable by railroad.--Masonite Corp. v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 601 F.2d 724 (728).

Terminal Services and Facilities

678. Switching limits or districts.--Railroad, by changing switching limits of destination station by revision of industrial guide, but not publishing any change in tariffs, extended to one consignee advantage not enjoyed by shipping public in general, constituting unjust and unreasonable practice in violation of §1(6) [now §10702].--Maxey-Bosshardt Lbr. Co. v. Southern Ry. Co., 358 I.C.C. 522 (525)*.

679. Terminal railroads.--When tariffs at issue contain line-haul but not switching rates, contain omnibus rate and route clauses to effect that all rates also apply via the Terminal R. Assn., and contain provisions respecting non-absorption of switching charges of "connecting" carriers, and delivering line-haul carrier contends that Terminal is connecting line, switching charges of which are not absorbed, while shipper contends that Terminal simply acts as terminal company agent for line-haul carrier, not as connecting line, held: in view of fact that line-haul tariff rates ordinarily include delivery unless otherwise provided, and in view of explicit omnibus clause, while Terminal actually performed terminal service and could not perform line-haul operations, Terminal was terminal company whose charges were absorbed, not connecting line-haul carrier, judgement for shipper.--Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Continental Grain Co., 473 F. Supp. 1093 (1095-7).

§10704. AUTHORITY AND CRITERIA; RATES, CLASSIFICATIONS, RULES AND PRACTICES PRESCRIBED BY INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

2. Construction and Interpretation.--While pre-recodification language of §15(1), now §10704, made special reference to Interstate Commerce Commission jurisdiction over joint through routes and rates, and thus made clearer than recodified language that such routes and rates could fall, as separate and special class, within ICC's jurisdiction, omission cannot alter Commission's jurisdiction over joint through rates and routes under Act.--Trailer Marine Transport Corp. v. F.M.C., 602 F.2d 379 (384)*.

Basis for Determination by Commission

68. Criteria for prescription.--Commission properly considered effect prescription of maximum trainload coal rate would have on eastern trainload coal rate pattern; since Commission has found this rate structure reasonable overall, prescription should not set in motion whlesale adjustments, and Commission may modify prescription if facts show modification beneficial.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 849 (855-7); 359 I.C.C. 222 (231-2).

While complainant is usually under no obligation to indicate effect of rate reduction upon rate relationships, where complainant attacks rate prescribed only after thoroughly considering effect upon eastern coal rates pattern, complainant must present some evidence as to effect of lower rate prescription upon existing rate relationship. --Id., 359 I.C.C. 473 (478)*.

Revenue Levels

102. Railroads, generally.--After-tax cost of capital of 10.6 percent found in Ex Parte No. 353 reasonably to accord with revenue need does not establish profit level, but merely represents income needed to enable railroads to attract capital as advocated by 4R Act (P.L. 94-210).--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Conrail, 362 I.C.C. 170 (189)*.

It is preferable for determination of adequate revenue levels under §15a(4) [now §10704] to be made in separate periodic proceedings conducted specifically for that purpose, rather than in general increase proceedings--Establishment of Adequate Railroad Revenue Levels, 358 I.C.C. 844 (847)*.

In view of fact that §15a(4) requires Commission to devise standards and procedures for "establishment" of adequate revenue levels, more than mere determination is contemplated, since this word conveys element of bringing about condition of revenue adequacy as well as defining condition; but while congressional view is that achievement of adequate revenue levels by railroads is in public interest of both carriers and shippers and public, Congress did not intend Commission's mandate to be simply promotion of railroad revenues, since consideration of shipper and public interests requires that revenue adequacy be taken not only as goal but also as limitation, so that to extent possible Commission is to assist railroads in attaining revenue adequacy and to protect public from having to provide revenues exceeding adequate level.--Id., pp. 847-8.

While role of general increases in promotion of revenue adequacy should be deemphasized, in some circumstances, particularly in time of inflation, broad rate increases are necessary, and revenue adequacy will be regarded as important factor in general increase proceedings; nevertheless, revenue adequacy cannot be only consideration.--Id., pp. 850-2.

Since §15a(4) places no limitation on regulatory contexts in which revenue adequacy is to be considered, and emphasis in 4R Act (P.L. 94-210) on giving carriers greater ratemaking freedom suggests larger emphasis on meeting revenue need through individual rate adjustments, revenue adequacy should be considered in individual rate proceedings; while revenue adequacy is important factor and shall be given maximum effect possible, it is only one factor to be considered and does not supersede other aspects of reasonableness determination.--Id., p. 854.

In summary, in independent revenue adequacy proceeding, Commission shall make finding as to cost of embedded debt, cost of new debt, cost of equity capital according to comparable earnings studies, and upon consideration of these findings, Commission shall make determination as to overall cost of capital for revenue adequacy purposes; rate of return equal to this cost of capital shall be point of reference in determining adequate revenue level of nation's railroads, but other indicators will also be considered.--Id., p. 896.

Use of independent periodic proceedings to determine revenue adequacy, affirmed; there is no reason to believe these proceedings will increase reliance on general increases.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 270 (271-2)*.

Title 49 CFR 1109.25(4)(F), which requires railoads to make available underlying data, requires that shipper participants in proceeding be given access to such data.--Id., p. 272.

Railroads' argument that rate of return on net investment equal to cost of capital should be primary standard of revneue adequacy, is rejected; it is one factor to be considered, but Act specifies other considerations in determintion.--Id., p. 273.

While carriers compete in national money market and may properly be attributed uniform cost of equity capital for revenue adequacy purposes, their embedded interest rates vary among individual carriers; therefore, fair rate of return analysis should contain conclusions for each railroad and district as well as national composite.--Id., p. 273.

Purpose of revenue adequacy proceedings is to evaluate financial condition of railroads in most timely manner possible; it would tend to be defeated by introduction of other issues, particularly issues as difficult as determining compensatoriness of traffic categories.--Id., p. 277.

Although §15a(4) [now §10704] does not technically require application of adequate revenue considerations prior to Feb. 5, 1978, intent of Congress is clear that Commission should affirmatively assist that policy to extent possible pending outcome of proceeding to promulgate standards and procedures for establishment of adequate revenue levels.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (560)*.

125. Return on investment: debt, equity capital.--In determining composite revenue need of railroad industry under §15a(4) [now §10704], return on net investment equal to carriers' cost of captial is one, but not sole, quantity to be considered; this should be supplemented by railroads' ability to raise needed capital.--Establishment of Adequate Railroad Revenue Levels, 358 I.C.C. 844 (858-63)*.

Adequate revenue determination for railroads should not be based simply on rate of return at cost of capital rate, similar to that used for public utilities, in view of existence of competition and other factors.--Id., pp. 870-2.

Original cost net investment rate base, rather than replacement cost, should be used; while historic cost may differ from replacement cost during inflationary period, problem of inflation should be dealt with in rate of return and other measures of revenue adequacy rather than by restatement of rate base.--Id., pp. 873, 876-8; modification of base, summarized.--Id., p. 885.

For purpose of determining adequacy of carriers' overall revenue, cost of debt capital should be based on embedded interest rates, while cost of equity capital will be based on consideration of all evidence of record.--Id., pp. 895-6.

In summary, in independent revenue adequacy proceeding, Commission shall make findings as to cost of embedded debt, cost of new debt, cost of equity capital according to comparable earnings studies, and upon consideration of these findings, Commission shall make determination as to overall cost of capital for revenue adequacy purposes; rate of return equal to this cost of capital shall be point of reference in determining adequate revenue level for nation's railroads, but other indicators will also be considered.--Id., p. 896.

127. Honest, economical, and efficient management.--While revenue adequacy contemplated by §15a(4) [now §10704] is that which exists under conditions of honest, economical, and efficient management, and management efficiency is important means for improving revenue adequacy, specific requirements or procedures are not feasible; it might be possible to consider existence of inefficient management as basis for finding of constructive revenue adequacy, and should circumstances warrant it, investigation of particular carrier's operations might extend so far as to include fiscal and management audits.--Establishment of Adequate Railroad Revenue Levels, 358 I.C.C. 844 (863-5)*.

Suggestion that approval of general rate increases be conditioned upon efficiency improvements by railroads in general, rejected; problem of inefficiency must be attacked on broad front, including both adequate revenues for needed services and elimination unneeded, unprofitable, and duplicative services.--Id., p. 852.

Bad-order ratio proposed as measure of efficiency (concurring opinion).--Id., pp. 897-8; 359 I.C.C. 270 (281)*.

Revenue adequacy shall be determined in accordance with criteria of §15a(4), which include honest, economical, and efficient management; as interim measure, railroads are required to present evidence of present productivity levels in comparison with past, accompanied by discussion of factors believed responsible for changes.--Id., p. 276.

130. Depreciation.--In determining allowance for depreciation for measurement of income in rate of return standard, since accelerated depreciation is not proper approach to covering effects of inflation, but does have some appeal from standpoint of reflecting rapid decline in service value resulting from technological change or shifting market patterns, Commission will adhere to straight-line depreciation reporting at present, but will give question of accelerated depreciation or some other method further attention.--Establishment of Adequate Railroad Revenue Levels, 358 I.C.C. 844 (888-9)*.

140. Taxes.--In determining allowance for income taxes in computation of return on net investment, deferred tax accounting more closely approximates results intended by Congress; thus, statutory tax rate will be used.--Establishment of Adequate Railroad Revenue Levels, 358 I.C.C. 844 (888-94); purpose of using statutory tax rate was to give recognition to deferred taxes and investment tax credit, but this purpose can be served in more direct fashion by using data provided by system of accounts.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 270 (280).

§10705. AUTHORITY: THROUGH ROUTES, JOINT CLASSIFICATION, RATES AND DIVISIONS PRESCRIBED BY INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

2. Construction and interpretation.--Section 15(6) [now §10705] is aimed at divisions of joint rates, fares, or charges, and does not deal with secondary divisions of revenues among parties not participating in joint rates, fares, or charges; and §15(6) should be strictly construed in light of §§1(14)(b) [now §11105] and 8 and 9 [now both §11705]; thus, §15(6) prohibition against retroactive adjustment of divisions does not apply to protective service contracts under §1(14)(b).--Contracts for Protective Services, 358 I.C.C. 638 (646, 648)*.

Prescription of Divisions

200. Retroactive adjustment.--Under §15(6) [now §10705], for agreed rates, Commission can only order prospective change of divisions, but if joint rates were established by Commission order, change of divisions may be effective as of date of filing of complaint or date of Commission order of investigation; however, §15(6) does not apply to protective service contracts required under §1(14)(b) [now §11105].--Contracts for Protective Service, 358 I.C.C. 638 (645-8)*.

2. Construction and interpretation.--Rule of construction requires that antitrust exemption statutes must be construed narrowly so as not to derogate antitrust laws unnecessarily; same principle applies in construing particular terms of rate bureau agreement once it is found that agreement itself should receive antitrust immunity.--Southern Ports Foreign Frt. Committee--Agreement, 358 I.C.C. 696 (703)*.

When rate bureaus are beneficiaries of exemption from antitrust laws, and such exemption is warranted only where advantages to public interest, through furtherance of national transportation policy, outweigh disadvantages to public interest guarded against by antitrust laws, increased surveillance of rate bureaus is necessary; uniform system of accounts adopted to enable Commission better to perform its oversight responsbilities.--Uniform System of Accounts for Rate Bureaus, 358 I.C.C. 91 (95).

4. Agreements not covered.--Ratemaking organizations do not enjoy antitrust immunity if participating in §22 [now §10721] quotations negotiated between Government and carriers in absence of approved special procedures.--Southern Ports Foreign Frt. Committee--Agreement, 358 I.C.C. 696 (711)*.

5. Independent action; ratemaking procedure.--Provision that proposals submitted by mail or telegraph shall stand approved unless objections are recorded by two or more member lines, or unless public hearing is timely requested, adequately protects shippers' and other interested parties' right to have proposal considered before general committee; but any interested person must be given opportunity to submit written comments to carrier members prior to voting.--Southern Ports Foreign Frt. Committee--Agreement, 358 I.C.C. 696 (706-7)*.

Antitrust immunity should be accorded carriers' discussions of single- and joint-line proposals even though some carrier members of rate bureaus cannot vote or agree on proposal under §5b(5)(a) [now §10706] because carrier is not practicable participant in interline proposal or proposal involves single-line rate, only to extent discussion involves issues under §§2, 3 [both now §10741], and 4 [now §10726]; compensatory level of proposals and effect proposal will have on movement of traffic should remain within managerial prerogatives of initiating carrier in case of single-line rates and voting carriers in case of interline proposals.--Western Railroads--Agreement, 358 I.C.C. 662 (673-4)*.

Adequate monitoring of agreement can be achieved through opening all rate committee meetings to public and by requiring keeping of sound recordings of each meeting, and Federal Trade Commission and Dept. of Transportation are allowed full access to recordings in performing their advisory role under §5b(10); this requirement does not result in illegal delegation of Commission's monitoring authority under §5b(3), but rather constitutes necessary "terms and conditions" under §5b(2).--Id., p. 677.

Provisions in western railroads agreement requiring concurrence of other member lines before carrier can opt out of approved Transcontinental Freight Bureau docket infringes on carrier's right of independent action.--Id., p. 679.

Right of carrier to claim its local rates by taking independent action in form of flag-out of approved bureau docket in joint-line movement is not to be encumbered by bureau procedures; thus, ability of carrier to opt-out of inter-line proposals of approved bureau record without concurrence of connecting carriers is required.--Id., p. 680.

When proposed agreement relates in part to collective consideration of rates of compensation payable among railroads, but in part also to collective consideration of demurrage charges payable by shippers, so that rate committee meetings in this respect directly affect shipping public, applicants are directed to show cause why they should not be required to maintain verbatim transcripts of all committee and bureau discussions concerning rates and charges applicable between or among subscribing carriers or pertinent rules and regulations, and to hold open to public all meetings, or pertinent portions of meetings, and to maintain sound recordings of all committee and bureau discussions concerning rates of compensation for shipper-furnished transportation equipment, or concerning demurrage and storage charges payable by shippers for use of cars and other equipment and facilities.--Railroads Per Diem, Mileage, Demurrage--Agreement, 358 I.C.C. 481 (484-5)*.

Independent action under §5b [now §10706] does not give any carrier power to abridge another carrier's rights; thus, unilateral independent action by one party to joint rate is impossible, and Commission has no intention of granting special permission to reverse effective joint rates unless all parties to rate agree to change.-- Petition for Declaratory Order--Superphosphate, 358 I.C.C. 39 (40-1).

Thus, fact that railroad flagged out from general increase and ex parte increase tariff notes that fact by providing that increase does not apply to rates applicable from, to, or via points on that railroad does not prevent railroad crossing point that flagging railroad serves from applying increase; since to hold that in every case in which carrier's route intersects any points served by flagging railroad carrier could not apply general increase would cause flagging railroad's independent action to have great effect on number of carriers without their consent and contort independent action to point it is not independent at all, it must be held that railroad's flagout and holddown were only for its own account, and other carriers are free to apply increase on traffic merely traversing points served by flagging carrier.--Id., pp. 40-1.

6. Furtherance of national transportation policy.--Under §5b(2) [now §10706], Commission is directed to approve collective ratemaking agreements among railroads if approval is not prohibited by statute and would be in furtherance of national transportation policy [now §10101], and, although §5b differs from §5a [now §10706] in that it contains additional prohibitions governing railroad agreements, standard of review language is identical, so that standard for determining whether approval of proposed agreement would be in furtherance of NTP is same under §§5b and 5a; thus, standard of review under §5b(2) involves resolution of these issues: (1) whether proposed agreement would enhance one or more national transportations policy goals, (2) whether advantages of agreement override other considerations such as anticompetitive nature of agreement, and (3) whether agreement is necessary or objectives of parties could be accomplished by other means.--Western Railroad--Agreement, 358 I.C.C. 662 (665-6)*.

Since in light of express intent of courts and Commission to construe exemptions from antitrust laws as narrowly as possible, applicants must affirmatively demonstrate that antitrust immunity is necessary to full extent sought, but when applicants fail to make minimum evidentiary showing of specific examples of need for Commission approval within each regional organization which is part of proposed agreement, Commission is unable to find that approval of proposed agreement would be in furtherance of national transportation policy or that benefits of agreement outweigh disadvantages so that parties should be relieved from antitrust laws; however, since decisions defining burden of proof were issued following close of record in present case, interim approval of agreement is continued until applicants are afforded opportunity to submit additional evidence.--Id., p. 668.

7. Anticompetitive effects.--Under §5b [now §10706], Commission has primary jurisdiction to consider value and necessity of railroad collective ratemaking agreement; however, Commission must also weigh anticompetitive effects of approval, and §5b exemption must be construed narrowly in favor of benefits of competition, so that burden of establishing necessity for Commission approval lies with applicants seeking exemption from operation of antitrust laws.--Western Railroads--Agreements, 358 I.C.C. 662 (666)*.

In light of express intent of courts and Commission to construe exemptions from antitrust laws as narrowly as possible, applicants must affirmatively demonstrate that antitrust immunity is necessary to full extent sought; minimum evidentiary presentation should present specific examples of need for Commission approval within each regional organization which is part of proposed agreement.--Id., p. 668.

8. Notice.--Notice of broadened proposals must be given in same manner as original to ensure that due process is accorded all interested parties.--Southern Ports Foreign Frt. Committee--Agreement, 358 I.C.C. 696 (707)*.

Public notice of recommended final dispositions should contain reasons for action taken.--Id., pp. 707-8.

Types of changes which do not alter basic provisions, but merely add new routes near origin or destination points, related commodities, or new transit points to existing tariff matter, and which do not result in advances in rates, may be exempted by agreement from being placed on public docket or publicized.--Id., pp. 710-1.

12. Broad tariff change.--Section 5b(5)(b) permits voting on "general rate increases and decreases" by all carrier members of rate bureau without regard to limitations on voting in §5b(5)(a); definition of this term in 49 CFR 1102.1 should be adopted to describe phrase.--Southern Ports Foreign Frt. Committee--Agreement, 358 I.C.C. 696 (711-2)*.

"Broad tariff changes" as used in §5b(5)(b)(ii) [now §10706] should be defined in terms of geographical coverage, since nothing in language or legislative history of section suggests that term must be limited to specific commodities, and fact that term is listed with "general rate increases" provides no justification for argument that it must be defined in same way; tariff change, other than general increase or decrease, which is generally applicable to all carriers over large and specifically defined territory adequately delineates proposals covered by exception; however, exception is subject to rule of statutory construction that exemptions from antitrust laws are interpreted as narrowly as possible in favor of competition.--Western Railroads--Agreement, 358 I.C.C. 662 (674-6)*.

13. Single-line rates.--In interpreting definition of single-line rate in §5b(5)(a) [now §10706], contention that all movements which will be subject to rate contained in proposal must be looked at collectively since proposal is applicable over joint- and single-line routes of all carriers participating in proposal, is rejected; term applies both to single-line rate proposed by single carrier for application over own line and to rates applied to movement between two points on one carrier's line when included in proposal applicable to other movements between same two points on other carriers' lines, so that rate must be processed separate and apart from rates applicable to other single-line or joint-line movements.--Western Railroads--Agreement, 358 I.C.C. 662 (669-70)*.

In view of Congressional intention to preclude collective action on individual rate adjustments affecting traffic of single carrier, rule of statutory construction requiring antitrust exemption statutes to be interpreted as narrowly as possible in favor of competition, and policy of §101(b) of 4R Act (P.L. 94-210) to encourage competitive pricing practices within railroad industry, narrow interpretation of §5b(5)(a), restricting it to preclude voting only on rates which single-line carrier intends to apply exclusively over own line, was not intended by Congress.--Id., p. 670.

In view of basic intention of Congress in enacting §5b that rate bureau functions should be modernized to promote use of competitive forces, interline proposals of affiliated carriers should be treated as single- rather than as joint-line proposals; thus, where carriers under same management and common control proposed rates between them such proposals shall be single-line proposals for purpose of §5b(5)(a), and carriers under common management and control is to refer to carriers generally affiliated as defined in §5b(1)(a) to extent of controlling traffic policy, even though separate corporate entities may be maintained.--Id., p. 671.

14. Practicable participation.--Section 5b(5)(a)(ii) prohibits carriers which cannot practicably participate in interline movement from participating in agreements with respect to it; thus, agreement and voting on interline proposals should be limited to those carriers who either currently handle traffic which is subject of proposal as origin, destination, or intermediate carrier or have done so within past two years, but in order to permit agreement and voting on proposals involving new traffic, carriers who will handle new traffic should be permitted to vote on such proposals.--Southern Ports Foreign Frt. Committee--Agreement, 358 I.C.C. 696 (700-3)*.

While statute does not refer to commodities, nothing precludes incorporation of commodity restriction into agreement; precluding carriers which do not handle commodity involved in proposal from agreeing and voting is reasonable means of separating carriers who should not have voice in determining interline rate.--Id., p. 702.

Initial determination of eligibility to vote should be left to individual carriers rather than chairman; but carriers who have agreed and voted on interline proposals should be prepared to give evidence that rate bureau's standards have been met.--Id., p. 704.

Carrier should be considered as "practicable participant", allowed to vote on interline proposals, if carrier either currently handles traffic as origin, destination, or intermediate carrier, or has done so within past two years; and in cases involving new traffic, voting and agreement is allowed for carriers who will participate in proposals involving: (1) traffic which has not moved by rail in last two years, (2) commodities which will move for first time from given origins because of construction of new manufacturing or production facilities, (3) commodities which will move for first time by rail because of line extension, and (4) new commodities named for first time in Uniform Freight Classification, for which commodity rates must be established.--Western Railroads--Agreement, 358 I.C.C. 662 (673)*.

18. Approval by Commission.--Under §5b [now §10706], Commission has primary jurisdiction to consider value and necessity of railroad collective retemaking agreements.--Western Railroads--Agreement, 358 I.C.C. 662 (666)*.

Under §5b Commission may not approve agreements similar to those approved earlier under §5a [now §10706] solely on evidence submitted in earlier proceedings without some evidence that transportation conditions as they relate to agreement has not substantially changed; thus, §5b approval is warranted only when applicants can demonstrate that approval is warranted on basis of current transportation conditions.--Id., pp. 666-7.

Evidence submitted should justify approval of proposed agreement to full extent sought.--Id., p. 668.

Suspension

52. Grounds, generally.--In light of §15a(4) [now §10704], where rate is proposed by carriers which have demonstrated revenue need, Commission will exercise greater restraint in using suspension powers; despite 160 percent rate/variable cost general benchmark in Ex Part No. 320 [353 ICC 875], Commission will will not ordinarily suspend rate increase proposed by carrier with revenue need, unless resulting rate/variable cost relationship were to exceed 180 percent.--Establishment of Adequate Railroad Revenue Levels, 358 I.C.C. 844 (854); but on reconsideration, Commission decides not to rely on preestablished rate/cost ratio in exercising suspension power; it retains discretion to exercise greater restraint generally at suspension level where involved carriers lack adequate revenue.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 270 (275).

§10709. DETERMINATION OF MARKET DOMINANCE IN RAIL CARRIER RATE PROCEEDINGS

8. Reasonableness, bearing on.--Finding of market dominance raises no presumption that rate is unjust and unreasonable; thus, rate in excess of 163 percent of revenue-to-variable cost would not be per se unreasonable.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 222 (236); Id., 362 I.C.C. 170 (184-5).

Statutory policy is to give railroads increased ratemaking flexibility, even where they possess market dominance, so long as their rates are not unreasonably high or otherwise unlawful.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (557)*.

Presumptions

28. In general.--Shipper establishes presumption of market dominance which is unrebutted when there are no facilities for shipment of coal to shipper by water and no indication that any such facilities are planned or that water shipment is viable alternative, and when railroad has not responded to shipper's evidence as to applicability of substantial investment test.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Conrail, 362 I.C.C. 170 (195)*.

Essential question in determining market dominance is whether there exist sufficient commercially feasible and reasonably available transportation alternatives from other carriers or modes to insure that rate increase by any competing carrier will result in more than de minimus diversion of demand for transportation service during period in which rate in issue will be in effect; presumptions established in Ex Parte No. 320 [49 CFR 1109] are not exclusive means of proving market dominance.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (554-5)*.

While market share presumption is literally inapplicable to new movements, when all subject traffic will be handled by respondents, no evidence has been presented to show that respondents will control less than 70 percent of market, protestant consignee is contractually committed to purchase coal from origin mine so that market competition would not protect shipper if railroads were to attempt to exact unreasonably high rate, origin carrier is only one able to serve mine and destination carrier is only one able to serve consignee's plantsite, protestant has purchased specially designed cars to transport coal, no rail competition exists and heavy-loading characteristics of coal traffic and location of mine make competition from other modes not feasible, and mere speculation that coal slurry pipeline might be built in future is not sufficient, respondents are found to have market dominance over movements for which capital incentive unit-train rates are proposed.--Id., p. 555.

30. Percentage of variable costs.--Rate-cost presumption, providing that rates returning 160 percent or more serves as one indicium of market dominance, should not be referred to as "excess profits test", since it merely indicates that competition has not held rate below that return and brings rate under further scrutiny, but does not indicate that such rate is necessarily unreasonable; rate returning 160 percent or more of variable cost is not presumptively excessive, and, despite finding of market dominance, full burden of proof--both of persuasion and of coming forward with evidence--remains on complainant.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Conrail, 362 I.C.C. 170 (184-5)*.

§10729. RAIL CARRIERS: INCENTIVE FOR CAPITAL INVESTMENT

3. Purpose.--In light of policy expressed in §15a(4) [now §10704] of aiding railroads to attain adequate revenue levels, consideration of rail need to attract equity investment is appropriate in capital incentive rate proceeding, where Congress clearly intended to encourage large-scale rail investment in effort to improve physcial facilities, operations, and structure and infuse badly needed equity capital into railroad industry.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (559)*.

6. Capital investment.--Section 15(19) [now §10729] does not make dedication of plant or equipment which is subject of capital investment prerequisite to treatment under §15(19), but there must be proper allocation between existing and new equipment and showing that additional locomotive power is needed for new service rather than for carrier to fulfill its statutory obligation; thus, in view of high cost and large number of locomotives to be purchased proposed service, respondents' evidence regarding purchase of locomotives for proposed service satisfies requirement of reasonably direct effect upon rail transportation service to which proposed capital incentive rate applies.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (552-3)*.

Portion of respondents' proposed capital investment for upgrading and expansion of plant attributable to issue movement also qualifies proposed schedule for capital incentive treatment, when respondents need to upgrade main line roadway to accommodate protestant's heavy, high volume coal unit-trains; moreover, respondents' allocation of portion of this investment to issue traffic, based on projected gross tonnages of high-volume, unit-train coal movements, is not unreasonable.--Id., pp. 553-4.

8. Burden of proof.--While burden of proof as to lawfulness of proposed capital incentive rate lies with protestant, existence of necessary capital investment is jurisdictional matter which must first be established by railroad before capital incentive rate procedures become applicable.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (552)*.

10. Schedule: revisions to cost levels.--While unit-train coal rates subject to private agreement based on escalation formulas do not violate Act, escalation formula may not be imposed on shipper by publishing it in tariff.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (561-2)*.

Where parties have not agreed to private escalation formula, railroad may publish increases within five year period subject to normal suspension and investigation procedures.--Id., p. 562.

12. Schedules: lawfulness.--Capital incentive unit-train coal rate of $15.54 per ton found to be within zone of reasonableness in light of cost of service, comparable rates, indicia of rail revenue need, and high value of transportation service of coal; but $16.54 is unreasonably high.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (561)*.

If any part of proposal made under §15(19) [now §10729] is held unlawful, those parts which are held lawful may nevertheless be published so long as they comply with §6 [now §10761 et seq.] and tariff publishing regulations.--Id., p. 561.

Unjust Discrimination

71. Switching.--Railroad, by changing switching limits of destination station by revision of industrial guide, but not publishing any change in tariffs, extended to one consignee advantage not enjoyed by shipping public in general, constituting special device within proscription of §2 [now §10741].--Maxey-Bosshardt Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Southern Ry. Co., 358 I.C.C. 522 (525)*.

Proceedings

132. Presumptions and burden of proof.--General declarations as to competition or injury unsupported by evidentiary facts will not support finding of discrimination or undue preference or prejudice under §§2 or 3(1) [now §10741].--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (554)*.

To show §2 [now §10741] violation, complaining shipper must establish that defendant carrier has charged different rates for like and contemporaneous service in transportation of like kinds of traffic moving under substantially similar transportation conditions.--Maxey Bosshardt Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Southern Ry. Co., 358 I.C.C. 522 (526)*.

Character of Discrimination Prohibited

67. Differences in and comparisons of rates.--Mere difference in rates, standing alone, does not demonstrate unlawfulness under §3 [now §10741].--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (562)*.

96. Burden of proof.--General declarations as to competition or injury unsupported by evidentiary facts will not support finding of discrimination or undue preference or prejudice under §§2 or 3(1) [now §10741].--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (554, 562)*.

To support §3(1) [now §10741] violation, complainant must show that (1) disparity in rates exists, (2) complainant has suffered actual or potential competitive injury, (3) defendant is common source of preferential and prejudicial treatment, and (4) disparity is not justified by transportation conditions; should complainant sustain its burden as to first three elements, burden shifts to defendant to disprove fourth.--Maxey-Bosshardt Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Southern Ry. Co., 358 I.C.C. 522 (526)*.

Discrimination in Particular Situations

103a. Private cars.--There is no merit to protestant's contention that respondents' failure to propose rates applicable to carrier-supplied cars violates §§1(11) [now §11121] and 3(1) [now §10741] when cost of cars has not been considered in respondents' cost evidence, and protestant has not been coerced into buying specialized equipment.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (562)*.

108. Groups.--When complainant alleges that destination groupings at issue prejudice it in violation of §3(1) [now §10741] and that defendant destination carrier causes this prejudice, but fails to name originating carriers also as defendants, and evidence shows that defendant cannot alone control groupings, no §3(1) violation is shown.--Maxey-Bosshardt Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Southern Ry. Co., 358 I.C.C. 522 (525)*.

Group adjustments are more or less arbitrary and may have appearance of injustice; and, while preference and prejudice arising from rate zones may or may not be undue depending on circumstances, question must be considered in light of entire adjustment and purpose for which it was established and maintained, and each case must be determined on its own facts.--Id., p. 527.

Shippers and receivers are entitled to receive rates on par with market of which they are part; thus, while rate zones are by their nature somewhat arbitrary, where there is small cluster barely outside large rate zone, and shippers in that cluster are part of same market included in zone, line dividing zones appears unjustified when balancing carriers' needs against those of adversely affected shippers.--Id., pp. 527-8.

§10743. PAYMENT OF RATES

2. Construction and interpretation. -- While shipper alleges that Commission has no jurisdiction to establish rules and regulations dealing with collection of charges arising after delivery to shipper because §3(2) [now §10743], in shipper's view, is inapplicable to charges such as demurrage which accrue subsequent to delivery of freight, §§1(6) [now §10750] and 1(11) [now §11121] provide adequate jurisdictional basis to consider carrier's requirement of security deposits for future payment of demurrage.--Illinois Central Gulf R. Co.--Security Deposits, 358 I.C.C. 312 (315).

Extension of Credit

10. Regulations, generally.--Credit regulations were not intended to displace tariff publication requirements of §6 [now §10762]; thus, tariff publication is necessary when "precaution", taken under 49 CFR 1320.1 to assure payment of charges within credit period, results in additional charge for transportation service.--Illinois Central Gulf R. Co.--Security Deposits, 358 I.C.C. 312 (317).

§10750. DEMURRAGE CHARGES

273. Security deposit.--Carriers may lawfully require shippers to forward cash deposit, before release of cars, as security to guarantee payment of any demurrage charges which might accrue thereafter, if reasonable tariff rules are published covering practice.--Illinois Central Gulf R. Co.--Security Deposits, 358 I.C.C. 312 (319-21).

While shipper alleges that Commission has no jurisdiction to establish rules and regulations dealing with collection of charges arising after delivery to shipper because §3(2), in shipper's view, is inapplicable to charges such as demurrage which accrue subsequent to delivery of freight, §§1(6) [now §10750] and 1(11) [now §11121] provide adequate jurisdictional basis.--Id., p.315.

Notice

320. Notice required.--Shipper should not be obligated to pay demurrage bills if carrier fails to comply with notice provisions contained in demurrage tariff.--Illinois Central Gulf R. Co.--Security Deposit, 358 I.C.C. 312 (318).

There should be no obligation to pay erroneous demurrage bills or those which fail to identify demurrage charges on per car basis.--Id., p.318.

Principles Governing Tariff Interpretation

10. In general.--In construing railroad tariffs, as any other contract, all pertinent provisions must be considered together; construction should be that meaning which words used might reasonably carry to shippers to whom they are addressed, and any ambiguity or reasonable doubt as to their meaning must be resolved against carriers.--Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Continental Grain Co., 473 F. Supp. 1093 (1095).

In determining meaning of tariff provisions, usual rules commonly applied to statutes and contracts are applied: tariffs must be viewed as whole; provisions must be strictly construed; and terms used must be taken in sense in which they are generally understood and accepted commercially.--Union Tank Car Co.--Declaratory Order, 358 I.C.C 688 (691, 694-5)*.

Reasonable construction of words of tariff is that for rate to be "applicable" to carrier, it must apply over route in which that carrier participates; thus, when tariff provides that increase is not "applicable" from, to, or via points on carrier which flagged out from that increase, increase does apply to points on that carrier traversed by routes of another carrier in which flagging carrier does not participate.--Petition for Declaratory Order--Superphosphate, 358 I.C.C. 39 (41-2).

Change in tariff is not evidence that prior publication was defective, since if Commission were to find that tariff changes are acknowledgments of some defect in earlier versions, carriers would be discouraged from clarifying tariff.--Id., p.43.

11. Intent of framers not controlling.--Intention must be discernible from tariff, and conclusions on tariff interpretation are based on most reasonable construction; thus, independent statement of intention of tariff framers is unnecessary, and shipper's own statement of what it believes carriers' true intention to have been is entitled to little weight since shippers do not state why they believe this to be true.--Petition for Declaratory Order--Superphosphate, 358 I.C.C 39 (42).

12. Ambiguities construed against maker.--When tariff is ambiguous, reasonable doubts must be resolved against carrier, particularly where uniform, long-continued construction of tariff by carriers supports this interpretation; thus, when issue is whether carrier is "terminal railroad" whose switching charges are absorbed under tariff at issue, or "connecting carrier" whose switching charges are not absorbed, and tariff is ambiguous, long-standing practical construction of tariff supports conclusion that carrier is terminal railroad.--Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Continental Grain Co., 473 F.Supp. 1093 (1096-7).

Regulations Governing Tariff Interpretation

14. Practices of carriers.--When tariff is ambiguous, reasonable doubts must be resolved against carrier, particularly where uniform, long-continued construction of tariff by carriers supports this interpretation; thus, when issue is whether carrier is "terminal railroad" whose switching charges are absorbed under tariff at issue, or "connecting carrier" whose switching charges are not absorbed, and tariff is ambiguous, long-standing practical construction of tariff supports conclusion that carrier is terminal railroad.--Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Continental Grain Co., 473 F.Supp. 1093 (1096-7).

16. Entire tariff to be construed.--Fundamental principle of tariff construction is that tariffs are interpreted to give effect to all their provisions; thus, interpretation of tariff items at issue which would render other items superfluous is rejected.-- Petition for Declaratory Order--Superphosphate, 358 I.C.C 39 (41).

Observance of Published Tariffs

222. Carrier's duty to collect tariff charges.--Carriers are required to collect full amount of lawful tariff charges from all shippers in cash, and carrier may not accept services, advertising, property or release of claim for damages in payment for transportation; absent court proceeding where counterclaims are allowed, claims for damages filed by shipper bear no relation to carrier's duty to collect all tariff charges in cash, in order to prevent discrimination and insure uniform treatment of all shippers.--Illinois Central Gulf R. Co.--Security Deposits, 358 I.C.C. 312 (318).

3. Purpose.--Requirements of §6[now §10762] that common carriers file with Commission all rates and charges for transportation between all points they serve, are part of regulatory scheme and are fundamental in affording shippers protections embodied in §§2 and 3(1) [now §10741].--Maxey-Bosshardt Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Southern Ry. Co., 358 I.C.C. 522 (524)*.

Purpose of statutory requirements that tariffs containing all rates and charges be filed and published is to shut out opportunities for discrimination and favoritism.--Illinois Central Gulf R. Co.--Security Deposits, 358 I.C.C. 312 (316).

Types of Rates, Charges, Services Published

24. Related publications.--Industrial guides are unofficial publications designed to inform shippers of track location of industries at stations on lines issuing guide, but they are not filed with Commission as tariffs; thus, railroad, by changing switching limits of destination station by revision of industrial guide and not publishing any change in tariffs, extended to one consignee advantage not enjoyed by shipping public in general, constituting unjust and unreasonable practice in violation of §1(6) [now §10702] and special device proscribed by §2 [now §10741].--Maxey-Bosshardt Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Southern Ry. Co., 358 I.C.C 522 (524-5)*.

27. Joint rates.--While pre-recodification language of §6(1), now §10762, made special reference to Interstate Commerce Commission jurisdiction over joint through routes and rates, and thus made clearer than recodified language that such routes and rates could fall, as separate and special class, within ICC's jurisdiction, omission cannot alter Commission's jurisdiction over joint through rates and routes under Act.--Trailer Marine Transport Corp. v. F.M.C., 602 F.2d 379 (384)*.

56. Switching.--Railroad, by changing switching limits of destination station by revision of industrial guide and not publishing any change in tariffs, extended to one consignee advantage not enjoyed by shipping public in general, constituting unjust and unreasonable practice in violation of §1(6) [now §10762] and special device within proscription of §2 [now §10741].--Maxey-Bosshardt Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Southern Ry. Co., 358 I.C.C. 522 (525)*.

58. Demurrage.--While carriers may lawfully require shippers to forward cash deposit, before release of cars, as security to guarantee payment of any demurrage charges pertaining to demurrage charges which might accrue thereafter, security deposit rule does constitute additional charge pertaining to demurrage and results in different service than that received by other shippers not subject to requirement; thus, security deposit programs are unlawful under §6(1) [now §10762] and Commission's regulations (49 CFR 1300.4(h) and 1300.61(a)) unless reasonable tariff rules are published covering practice.--Illinois Central Gulf R. Co.--Security Deposits, 358 I.C.C. 312 (316).

Form and Effect of Publication

136. Plain and definite statement required.--Section 6 [now §10762] imposes duty on carriers to state transportation charges in their tariff with definiteness and certainty: rates and rules should be specific so that shipper will be able to ascertain correct rate to be charged and policies should be specifically defined as well as published; when tariff provision is ambiguous and does not contain clear standards for application, it will not lead to security of uniformity and same treatment to all shippers alike.--Birmingham Rail & Locomotive Co., Inc. v. Aberdeen, 358 I.C.C. 606 (607-8).

When tariff rule provision that locomotive crane tendered for shipment on own wheels will be inspected at origin by participating carriers to determine if it is in condition to move at speeds over 35 mph, does not contain guidelines or criteria for carrier to determine speed capacity of shipments, it is unlawfully vague in violation of §6 in that it lacks specificity necessary to allow shipping public to be aware in advance of guidelines utilized in speed determination; tariff provisons dependent on convenience or discretion of carriers are ripe for potential discriminatory practices and therefore are objectionable.--Id., p.608

Language which flags out certain carriers from application of provisions, viz., "provisions of this note will not apply on traffic moving from or to points on or route via", is ambiguous in that wording might permit any participation by flag out carrier to nullify special train charges esablished by carrier participating in provision, but also might interpret language to limit only nonparticipating carriers.--Id., p.608.

When exception provides for application of special train service only over those portions of carrier's lines where it does not operate regular trains at speeds of 35 mph or less, to determine special train charges would require knowledge of carrier's operating practices that only carrier itself would have; shippers neither have nor are charged with knowledge of such practices.--Id., p.609.

Rule 4(i)(1) of Tariff Circular No. 20 (49 CFR 1304(i)(1)) requires that tariff clearly state applicable rate; thus, Commission cannot sanction publication rate subject to escalation formula.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (561-2)*.

Change in Tariffs

180. Incorporation of rate increases into tariffs.--Regulations (49 CFR 1300.32) governing transfer of general increases from master tariffs into individual tariffs of railroads or rail ratemaking organization, adopted pursuant to §6(6) [now §10762] as amended by §209 of 4R Act (P.L. 94-210).--Transfer of General Increases, Master Tariffs, 358 I.C.C. 158 (171).

In view of legislative history of §209, showing that Congress intended to limit life of separate master tariffs to alleviate problems of shippers using tariffs, statute does not prohibit use of conversion-table supplements to update individual tariffs; statute provides that general increases must be incorporated into individual tariffs, not rates, within two years, and since tariff publication consists of original tariff and supplements, conversion-table supplement is as much part of tariff as any other supplement.-Id., p.167.

Special permission authority to use conversion-table supplement is not to be continued indefinitely, but should be limited so as to phase out use of conversion-table supplements.--Id., pp.168-9.

CHAPTER 109---LICENSING

§10921. REQUIREMENT FOR CERTIFICATE, PERMIT, OR LICENSE

2. Construction and interpretation.--In view of fact that Seaway International Bridge between U.S. and Canada is "public highway" within meaning of §206(a)(1) [now §10921], Canadian carrier must hold Commission authority to operate between international boundary line located on bridge and U.S. customs compound located on approach road to bridge--Glengarry Transport Ltd.--Declaratory Order, 128 M.C.C. 342 (349).

§10922. CERTIFICATE OF MOTOR AND WATER COMMON CARRIERS

15. Filing applications; parties; notice.--Acceptable forms of requests for operating authority under Motor Carrier Act of 1980 (Ex Parte No. 55 (Sub-No. 43A), see 45 FR 45545.

Notice: Although operations authorized differ and are slightly broader in scope than authority initially sought and published in Federal Register, extent of alteration is relatively insignificant and not of such importance as to demand republication; lack of notice of authority actually granted will not materially prejudice those who may have relied upon published notice.--Triangle Trucking Co., Inc., Contr. Car. Applic., 128 M.C.C. 386 (398).

Parties; multiple application: Irregular-route carriers may protest applications for regular-route authority.---Commercial Motor Frt., Inc., Ext., 128 M.C.C. 832 (836).

16. Amendment of application.--

Restrictive: Piecemeal modification of applications for purpose of limiting opposition is not favored; thus, when applicants offered to limit their proof to commodities other than "spent catalyst" and several protestants withdrew their opposition in response, "spent catalyst" is not excluded from authority granted.-- McNair Transport Ext.--Chemicals and Petroleum, 128 M.C.C. 650 (660).

22. Evidence.--When protestants at hearing relied on oral motion requesting that application be summarily denied rather than testify and present evidence of opposition, and that motion was denied, operating authorities and other bases of opposition of protestants are not part of record, and, in light of protestants' failure to present evidence, their interests are not further discussed.--England & Sons, Inc., Ext.--Milton, PA, 128 M.C.C. 142 (146).

Filing after hearing: When applicant petitions for reopening, further hearing, and receipt of additional evidence, such evidence being statement made by president of protestant in trade publication conceding lack of interest in involved traffic, but evidence is vague and not specifically related to parties or traffic involved in proceeding, would not warrant result different from that reached by Law Judge, and would unduly prolong proceeding, petition is denied.--MaNair Transport Ext.--Chemicals and Petroleum, 128 M.C.C. 650 (652-3).

Passenger service: Evidence adduced in support of passenger operations is inherently more general than that offered in support of applications for authority to transport freight, since supporting witnesses often represent groups which require transportation on rather infrequent and somewhat unpredictable basis; Commission has thus been less exacting in evaluating evidence in such cases.--Highland Tours, Inc., Com. Car. Applic., 128 M.C.C. 595 (599)*.

Testimony of travel agencies cannot be given weight as to present needs of applicant's service, but is of some weight in showing future need for applicant's proposed service; moreover, preformed affinity groups show interest in using applicant's charter service. Granted.--Id., pp.599-600.

Weight of evidence: When failure of protestants not filing replies to petition for reconsideration indicates lack of continuing interest and necessarily detracts from weight their opposition normally would be accorded, their evidence is not treated further.--Incorporated Carriers, Ltd.--Gateway Elimination, 128 M.C.C. 810 (812)*.

Failure of carrier to participate in application proceeding demonstrates it lack of interest and demands that carrier's operations be accorded little or no weight, particularly where there is no specific evidence regarding fitness, willingness, or ability of any existing carrier to provide proposed service.--Triangle Trucking Co., Inc., Contr. Car. Applic., 128 M.C.C. 386 (395).

23. Official notice; res judicata; stare decisis.--Joint board erred in taking official notice of authority of nonparty carriers, when their failure to participate in proceeding demonstrates their lack of willingness or ability to participate in involved traffic.--Triangle Trucking Co., Inc., Contr. Car. Applic., 128 M.C.C. 386 (395).

It is the Commission's duty to balance the amount of need shown by the supporting shipper against the amount of diversion of traffic which would likely inure to protestant from a grant of authority. To comply with that duty, the Commission may take note of a carrier's annual reports filed with this Commission. In instant case, protestant has indicated the revenues it derived from service performed for the supporting shipper but because protestant failed to indicated the attendant operating expenses it is not possible to calculate protestant's actual profit derived from the particular traffic involved. Accordingly, the Commission concludes that while protestant's participation in the involved traffic has been substantial, there is no sound basis to conclude that a diversion of such revenues would adversely affect its financial stability. Application approved.--Mitchell Transport, Inc., Ext.--Petroleum Coke, 128 M.C.C. 371 (373-74).

106. Restriction of operations.--

Commodities: Restrictions against transportation of livestock are not normally imposed absent specific need for such restrictions.--Commercial Motor Frt., Inc., Ext., 128 M.C.C. 832 (839).

While applicant requests that authority exclude transportation of commodities injurious or contaminating to other lading, this exclusion is not now generally employed, because carriers are permitted, by appropriate tariff provisions, to refuse to handle offensive or contaminating commodities.--Id., p.840.

Interchange: When applicant shows need to serve particular point for purposes of interchange, it is appropriate to limit authority granted to serve that point to performance of interchange service.--England & Sons, Inc., Ext.--Milton, PA, 128 M.C.C. 142 (154).

Tacking: Law judge erred in imposing tacking restriction when protestants fail to show that unrestricted grants would cause them substantial harm, applicants now provide some of proposed service through interline or in more circuitous manner, and tacking would allow applicants to shorten circuitous routes, but they would not possess single-line service now held by protestants; moreover, when applicants file for gateway elimination under 49 CFR 1065.1(d)(2), protestants will have renewed opportunity to contest applicant's attempts to convert joined authority into direct, through service.--F-B Truck Line Co. Ext.--Colorado/Utah, 128 M.C.C. 628 (635)*.

107. Competition.--

Passenger carriers: Even when services of existing carriers are not shown inadequate, Commission is not precluded from granting authority based on consideration of other factors, and carrier first in business has no absolute immunity against future competition, even though resulting competition may cause carrier already providing service to lose revenue; thus, when protestants are nation's largest passenger carriers, they are only passenger carriers authorized to serve large urban area in question, and applicant is small carrier with only one bus, grant will inject needed element of competition into involved charter market and will offer consumers broader choice of charter bus operators without seriously harming protestants. Granted.--Highland Tours, Inc., Com. Car. Applic., 128 M.C.C. 595 (601-3)*.

125. Convenience and necessity; demand for service in general.--In its regulatory actions Commission is charged with duty to promote efficient service while fostering sound conditions in transportation; excessive emphasis should not be placed on possible destabilizing impact on existing carrier, since determination whether public convenience and necessity require proposed service compels balancing of all pertinent circumstances presented on record.--McNair Transport Ext.--Chemicals and Petroleum, 128 M.C.C. 650 (656-7).

Commodity descriptions: While Commission is not unsympathetic to position of carrier which loses substantial portion of traffic lawfully moving under commodity description due to technological changes made by its shippers, where these changes are so striking as to result in movement of commodity not previously authorized, relief can be granted only by application for appropriate authority.--P.A.K. Transport, Inc.--Invest. & Revoc., 128 M.C.C. 363 (369)*.

Container service: Commission's policy is to promote coordination of efficient and economical intermodal transportation service, and containerization is recognized as progressive innovation which facilitates coordination of intermodal operations; thus, grant of authority to carry containerized freight from shipper's plant to ocean carrier's loading dock within same commercial zone, and empty containers on return, will foster efficient and economical coordination of transnational intermodal shipments in accordance with Commission's policies; granted.--Triangle Trucking Co, Inc., Contr. Car. Applic., 128 M.C.C. 386 (397).

Conversions of authority: When supporting shippers need single-line, same-day or overnight service on LTL shipments, with expedited pickups and deliveries; maintenance of terminal in area of service may justify grant even though existing carriers from outside area already hold appropriate authority; vendee has met shippers' needs during operation under temporary authority; and harm to protestants is outweighed by benefit to public, certificate of public convenience and necessity is granted in lieu of vendor's certificate of registration, and vendee is granted permission to purchase vendor's authority.--South Bend Frt. Line, Inc.--Pur.--Delia Cartage, 127 M.C.C. 169 (182-5)*.

Distance to available carrier: Maintenance of terminal in area of service may justify grant even though existing carriers from outside area already hold appropriate authority.--South Bend Frt. Line, Inc.--Pur.--Delia Cartage, 127 M.C.C. 169 (183)*.

Energy sources: Because of scarcity of raw materials used in production of petroleum derived chemicals and petroleum products, consideratons of efficiency of transportation achieve even greater significance, militating in favor of finding that single-line operations would be in public interest; granted.--McNair Transport Ext.--Chemicals and Petroleum, 128 M.C.C. 650 (658).

Existing carriers; service: Proof of inadequacy of existing service is not quintessential requirement for granting operating rights when other factors clearly outweigh that element of applicant's presentation; thus, when applicant proposes direct operation between off-route points sought and existing regular routes, and no protestant can perform as responsive service, application is granted.--Commercial Motor Frt., Inc., Ext., 128 M.C.C. 832 (838-9).

Financial fitness: When applicant's financial resources are extremely limited, it lacks equipment and prior experience, and it has left unanswered several questions concerning purchase and maintenance of buses and availability of credit, it has minimal capacity to perform proposed service; and when this information is viewed together with additional claims of applicant's misconduct, serious questions as to applicant's fitness are present; remanded for reconsideration of applicant's financial fitness after investigation of allegations of its misconduct.--Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. United States, 600 F.2d 999 (1001-2)*.

Fitness, in general: When protestant alleges that applicant's counsel attempted to coerce protestant to abandon its opposition to application by threatening antitrust action and suggested that protestant would either loan applicant funds or lease it equipment at nominal fee, in exchange for allowing protestant to acquire interest in applicant, serious questions as to applicant's ethical integrity are presented; these, combined with substantial questions concerning applicant's financial fitness, require remand for consideration of fitness issue.--Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. United States, 600 F.2d 999 (1001-2)*.

In evaluating fitness issue, Commission must ordinarily consider (1) nature and extent of past violations, (2) mitigating or extenuating circumstances surrounding violations, (3) whether carrier's conduct represents, (4) whether it has made sincere efforts to correct past mistakes, and (5) whether applicant is willing and able to compart with statute, rules and regulations; thus, when applicant performed cartage service within commercial zone for ocean carrier under erroneous assumption that it was exempt, its unauthorized operation does not reflect adversely on its fitness to perform service.--Triangle Trucking Co., Inc., Contr. Car. Applic., 128 M.C.C. 386 (396-7).

When applicant unlawfully tacked separate paragraphs of its operating rights and conducted leasing operations wherein lessor unlawfully controlled equipment, but its operations were not flagrant or knowingly performed in violation of law, applicant is not unfit.--England & Sons, Inc., Ext.--Milton, PA, 128 M.C.C. 142 (151, 153).

Following the traffic: When shipper moved its facility to another point and planned to increase production at that point, Commission properly granted authority to applicant, who had served shipper at old facility, to serve shipper at new, under follow the traffic doctrine; since shipper did not intend to diminish amount of traffic tendered protestant, and needed service of applicant also in view of increased volume of traffic expected, Commission properly balanced shipper's needs and needs of public, plus fact that applicant would otherwise lose all its previous traffic, against fact that protestant would lose potential expanded service; affirmed.--Ben Ruegagger Trucker Serv. Inc. v. I.C.C., 600 F.2d 591 (592-3)*.

Foreign commerce: In view of fact that Seaway International Bridge between U.S. and Canada is "public highway" within meaning of §206(a)(1) [now §10921]. Canadian carrier must hold Commission authority to operate between international boundary line located on bridge and U.S. customs compound located on approach road to bridge.--Glengarry Transport Ltd.--Declaratory Order, 128 M.C.C. 342 (349).

Interchange; interline: Although approval of application will not wholly eliminate need for interline operations, it will enable some shippers to reduce number of carriers involved from three to two; granted.--Commercial Motor Frt., Inc., Ext., 128 M.C.C. 832 (837).

When applicant fails to show, as now required, public need for tacking authority sought with present authority or for direct service between points in question, tacking authority is not granted.--Central Tranpsort, Inc., Ext.--Ky and Tenn., 128 M.C.C. 781 (792).

For relocation of interchange point, applicant need only establish, in addition to operating economies or efficiency, that interline transportation through applied-for interchange point will not result in through service competitively different from that performed through present interchange point; thus, when applicant proposes merely to interline at new point some traffic it now interchanges at present point in order to eliminate some circuity, and availability of two gateways will provide greater flexibility, proposed operation will enhance economy and efficiency but will not result in essentially new service.--England & Sons, Inc., Ext.--Milton, PA, 128 M.C.C. 142 (147-8).

Racial and ethnic factors: When serious questions are raised concerning financial fitness and ethical integrity of applicant, who proposes passenger service designed to accomodate Spanish-speaking passengers, and Commission failed adequately to examine these questions, case is remanded for reconsideration.--Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. United States, 600 F.2d 999 (1001-2)*.

Single-line service: When proposed service will permit shippers to coordinate intrastate and interstate shipment by tendering both to single carrier, will extend benefits of single-line service to points now served by interline, applicant is not entirely new competitior in area, existing joint-line services may not be adequate, and protestants only have limited interest in traffic at issue, application is granted.--Commercial Motor Frt., Inc., Ext., 128 M.C.C. 832 (837-9).

Primary factors to be considered in application proposing single-line in lieu of joint-line service are: (1) adequacy and extent of applicant's joint-line service, (2) adequacy and extent of competitive services, (3) beneficial and adverse impacts of new improved operation on applicant's competitor including applicant's prior interline carrier, and (4) public benefits derived from fuel conservation and promotion of economy and efficiency; thus, when applicant seeks to substitute single-line service for its present joint-line service, interline carrier is not party to proceeding, applicant's present joint-line service meets shippers' needs and shippers will continue to use it if application is denied, protestants' direct services are less impressive than applicant's interline, and benefit of infusion of new competition is greater than harm to protestants who are not largely dependent on supporting shipper's traffic, and grant will eliminate waste and inefficency, application is granted.--Central Transport, Inc., Ext.--Ky, and Tenn., 128 M.C.C. 781 (790-1).

Elimination of circuitous interlining should be encouraged to eliminate waste of fuel, time, money, and effort; grant of authority to applicant to operate directly to destination would allow carrier to eliminate such waste, minimize highway congestion and air and noise pollution, and thus benefit carrier, shipping public, and nation.--Id., p.791.

In considering whether single-line service should be authorized to extent of applicant' existing joint-line operations, factors considered are: (1) adequacy and extent of applicants' joint-line service; (2) adequacy and extent of other competitive services; (3) beneficial and adverse impacts of new, improved operation on competitors, including prior interline carriers; and (4) public benefits derived from fuel conservation and promotion of economy and efficiency.--McNair Transport Ext.--Chemicals and Petroleum, 128 M.C.C. 650 (657).

When applicants' interline operations comprise significant part of present competitive picture, and single-line grant will alleviate equipment availability problems; protestants' services are not conclusively shown inadequate, but additional carriers are needed to avoid equipment shortages; existing long-haul carriers will not be seriously harmed by single-line grant, since applicants already realize substantial revenues from involved traffic, while likelihood of traffic diversion or intensity of opposition are not controlling with regard to ultimate issue of need for proposed single-line service; requirement of efficient transportation of petroleum products militates in favor of finding single-line operations in public interest; and circuity reduction and elimination of costs and complications inherent in interline service constitute concrete benefits of proposed service, ultimately benefiting consuming public, applications are approved to extent of applicants' joint-line service.--Id., pp. 657-9.

With regard to extension of applicants' operations into markets they have not served, when protestants' operations are not shown materially inadequate, but inadequacy of existing service is not precondition to grant of new authority; applicants will provide more flexible service than territorially limited protestants; new traffic will support additional service; and competitive impact will be minimal, applications are granted.--Id., pp.659-60.

When supporting shippers need single-line, same-day or overnight service on LTL shipments, with expedited pickups and deliveries; maintenance of terminal in area of service may justify grant even though existing carriers from outside area already hold appropriate authority; vendee has met shippers' needs during operation under temporary authority; and harm to protestants is outweighed by benefit to public, certificate of public convenience and necessity is granted in lieu of vendor's certificate of registration, and vendee is granted permission to purchase vendor's authority.--South Bend Frt. Line, Inc.--Pur.--Delia Cartage, 127 M.C.C. 169 (182-5)*.

In 120 MCC 793, the Commission found that the failure of the originating carrier to appear in opposition coupled with applicant's substantial participation in shipper's traffic in joint-line service are considerations strongly favoring a grant of authority in proceedings where substituted service is sought. In addition to both of these elements being present in this proceeding, only a relatively limited portion of the needed service can be provided by protestants. A grant of single-line authority, therefore, would not change significantly the competitive situation. Approved.--Colonial Refrig. Transp., Inc., Ext.--Bradley, 128 M.C.C 43 (47-48)*.

However, this proceeding differs slightly from recent cases which involve substitution of single-line for joint-line service in that applicant also seeks to broaden its commodity description and to serve an additional destination State not previously served. In determining whether public convenience and necessity require the proposed operation, the Commission is not precluded from considering both substitution of single-line for joint-line service and an extension of service, recognizing that both aspects, albeit based on separate theories, are related in the single operation by the demonstration of a need for service.--Id., p.48.

Temporary authority:

In §5 proceedings, evidence of operations under temporary authority is admissible to determine whether transaction and unified service by vendee will be in public interest, and in §207 proceedings as indication of applicant's ability to render proposed service, involved traffic volume, and potential effect of grant on existing carriers; thus, in applications to convert vendor's certificate of registration into certificate of public convenience and necessity and to purchase vendor's authority, showing that vendee, operating under temporary authority, meets supporting shippers' need for same-day or overnight service on 96 percent of shipments supports grant of applications.--South Bend Frt. Line, Inc.--Pur.--Delia Cartage, 127 M.C.C. 169 (183-4)*.

128. Change in route.--

Gateway elimination:

To eliminate gateway under 49 CFR 1065, applicant must establish that (1) it is transporting substantial volume of traffic from and to points involved by operating in good faith through gateways and (2) elimination of gateway will not enable it to institute new service or service so different from present service as materially to improve its competitive position to detriment of existing carriers; where elimination would allow new service or would provide applicant with substantial competitive advantage not previously enjoyed it is incumbent upon applicant to prove public convenience and necessity.--Artim Transp. System, Inc., Ext.--Gateway Elim., 128 M.C.C. 945 (948)*.

Unless there are compelling reasons, it is not enough to show that between selected points applicant has transported substantial traffic, but rather it must show that applicant is effective competitor to substantially all points within scope of authority; but when considering what amount of traffic is substantial, relative size of applicant, scope of authority, and volume of traffic must be considered.--Id., pp.948-9.

Under national transportation policy [now §10101], gateway may not be eliminated if result would adversely affect competitive position of existing carriers.--Id., p.949.

While applicant's traffic data is limited to two-year period preceding Nov. 23, 1973, under elimination rules, no similar constraint is imposed on protestants, and, while strict comparisons are frequently difficult because parties do not develop fully comparable traffic data, protestants' inclusion of 1974 shipments is appropriate.--Id., p.949.

When applicant has handled substantial traffic through gateway, and protestants have failed to develop evidence of competitive operations, application to that extent is granted; carrier's burden of demonstrating substantial operations is relative, no mechanical rule being applied, and in those portions of case in which protestants fail to develop record regarding competitive traffic, showing of even insignificant amount of traffic by applicant is sufficient showing.--Id., pp.949-50.

When protestants conduct substantial operations in area, but applicant's operations through gateway are insubstantial, there is no justification for elimination of gateway resulting in grant of statewide authority to applicant, there being no indication that applicant is effective competitor for existing traffic.--Id., p.950.

In proceeding to eliminate gateway under special rules promulgated in 119 MCC 530, applicant must establish that (1) it transports substantial volume of traffic from and to points involved by operating in good faith through gateway and is effectively and efficiently competing with existing carriers, and (2) elimination will not enable it to institute new service or service so different from present service as materially to improve competitive position to detriment of existing carriers.--Incorporated Carrier, Ltd,--Gateway Elimination, 128 M.C.C. 810 (814)*.

Threshold question in elimination proceeding is whether applicant has transported substantial volume of traffic through gateway; however, there is no mechanical test to determine substantiality of traffic, and question is relative, requiring evaluation in light of circumstances of each case, including nature of authority held, type of commodities involved, breadth and character of territories served, volumes transported in comparison with protestants', and relative sizes of applicant and protestants.--Id., p.814.

Specialized carriers of new furniture, rather than of wide range of commodities, cannot be expected to show volume figures as high as those of carriers of other types of freight; thus, when applicant furniture carrier's traffic volume appears low, but only one protestant has shown any traffic transported, applicant is substantial participant in traffic at issue.--Id., p.815.

When protestant has transported substantial traffic to Pacific Northwest, and applicant has transported insubstantial amount through very circuitous gateway, application as to that area denied; but where similar circuity problems exist as to other areas, but no carrier opposes that portion of application, application is granted to that extent.--Id., pp.815-6.

Specification of Routes

230. Regular-, irregular-route characteristics.--While irregular-route carrier does not perform same type of service which regular-route carrier does, when irregular-route carriers are authorized to serve same shippers as regular-route applicant, they may oppose regular-route application; at best, type of service (regular vs. irregular route) affects weight accorded protestants' evidence and does not preclude one type of carrier from opposing grant to carrier seeking different type of authority.--Commercial Motor Frt., Inc., Ext., 128 M.C.C. 832 (836).

231. Combination of routes.--In order for rights in separate paragraphs of single certificate to be lawfully subject to combination at common service points, they must constitute separate grants of operating authority, since separate portions of single grant may not be tacked; thus, when carrier was awarded grandfather authority in five separate paragraphs, and it was not intended that carrier should be able to tack these paragraphs so as to conduct operations beyond scope of those encompassed in any individual paragraph, these separate paragraphs could not be tacked.--England & Sons, Inc., Ext.--Milton, PA, 128 M.C.C 142 (149,151).

232. Off-route service.--Authority to serve off-route points is granted only in connection with regular-route operations.--Commercial Motor Frt., Inc., Ext., 128 M.C.C. 832 (840).

Deviation from Routes

250. Superhighway rules.--Superhighway rules (49 CFR 1042.3) apply only to certificates authorizing transportation of general freight over regular service routes, and concept of underlying certificated service routes between "point of departure and point of return" does not include routes constructed by combining or tacking regular routes and collections of off-route points, since certificated operations underlying superhighway operations must be entirely regular route in nature, and cannot be based even in part on collection of off-route points incidental to regular routes but not comprising them; definition of regular routes in 49 CFR 1042.4(b)(10) as designated highway or series of highways over which regular-route carrier is specifically authorized to operate clearly established that regular service route is not same thing as collection of off-route points.--Crouse Cartage Co. Invest. & Revoc. of Certif., 128 M.C.C. 158 (163-4).

Where respondent's service to point at issue under superhighway rules is based on underlying service route itself based in part on respondent's authority to serve off-route points, superhighway rules do not authorize operation in question.--Id., p.164.

While superhighway rules contemplate utilization of nonsuperhighway connecting or access highways extending between authorized regular service routes and superhighways merely as incident to operation over superhighways, rules do not envision that operations over such connecting or access highways shall constitute significant portion of total over-the-road distance traversed between points of departure from and return to authorized regular route; as general rule of thumb, where operation over nonsuperhighway connecting highways constitutes more than 20 percent of total operation, nonsuperhighway portion is deeming to constitute significant portion of total operations, and is not permitted under superhighway rules.--Id., pp.164-5).

Where in questioned operations nonsuperhighway connecting highways constitute 32.1 percent and 41.9 percent of total route, these operations are not within scope of those allowed under superhighway rules, while 20-percent rule of thumb is subject to reasonable variations depending upon particular situation respondent does not demonstrate any compelling reason or special circumstances that would justify departure from 20 percent rule. Cease and desist order entered.--Id., pp.165-6.

Passenger Carriers

258. In general.--Commission is aware of importance of preserving regular-route passenger bus service throughout country, especially in view of nation's energy crisis; but when applicant operates only one bus, protestant Greyhound is nation's largest passenger carrier, protestant has maintained favorable ratios between total operating revenues and expenses, and grant would inject needed element of competition into charter market in question, applicantion is granted.--Highland Tours, Inc., Com. Car. Applic., 128 M.C.C 595 (601-2)*.

260. Carriage of property, baggage, mail, etc., with passengers.--Pickup and delivery terminal areas of motor carriers of passengers are made coextensive with terminal areas of motor carriers of property and freight forwarders, with respect to carriage of express, in order to improve passenger carriers' revenue position by increasing express service and to improve carriage of small shipments.--Terminal Areas for Express Shipments by Bus, 128 M.C.C 204 (228).

While separate nonpassenger carrying vehicle may not be used by passenger carrier to transport express, pickup and delivery services within terminal area offered by or on behalf of passenger carrier may be performed in other than passenger carrying vehicles.--Id., pp.206, 227.

Commission's authority and duty to interpret operating rights of all motor carriers, including passenger carriers, is indisputable; thus, Commission is empowered to interpret scope of operating rights of passenger carriers to transport property in incidental movements, as provided by §208(d) [now §10932], and to define limits of areas within which exempt pickup and delivery services may be performed in connection with incidental transportation of property.--Id., p.223.

Bona fide collection, transfer, and delivery service is by its nature incidental to line-haul movement.--Id., p.223.

Courier services distinguished from bus transportation of express.-Id., p.226.

25. Necessity, demand for service.--Former §209(b) (now §10923) requires that the Commission consider the number of shippers to be served by applicant, the nature of the service proposed, the effect which granting the permit would have upon the services of the protesting carriers, the effect which denying the permit would have upon applicant and/or its shipper, and the changing character of that shipper's requirements. The Supreme Court has enunciated general guidelines for the proper application of this section, and emphasized the impropriety of indulging in presumptions for or against any one of the five factors. Evidence of record herein is convincing that the benefit from applicant's expanded service and additional competition far outweighs any adverse effects, real or potential, that may befall protestants.--Remington Freight Lines, Inc., Extension, 128 M.C.C. 857 (860-62).

The Commission concluded that applicant's provision of special equipment (dromedaries, full tarpaulins, nets, etc.) as described herein is designed to meet shippers' distinct and largely unique transportation requirements. Applicant proposes to serve a total of seven or eight shippers which is within the limit on the maximum number of shippers a contract carrier may serve as that limit was interpreted in 91 MCC 691, 696. Further, the evidence strongly suggests that effects of a grant of the sought permits on protestants' operations would be minimal inasmuch as none of protestants have transported any traffic for four of the five supporting shippers and only a small amount for the remaining shipper. Finally, denial of sought permits would deprive each of the shippers of an individualized service for which they have demonstrated a need. Application approved.--McKelvey Common Carrier Applic., 128 M.C.C. 23 (29-32).

§10925. EFFECTIVE PERIODS OF CERTIFICATES, PERMITS, AND LICENSES

2. Interpretation of licenses, general principles.--When certificate on its face would permit either of two interpretations as reasonable construction, so that operating rights are patently ambiguous, it is appropriate to consider extraneous matters and to examine the administrative history of authority, including record upon which rights were granted, in order to determine intent of Commission as to scope of operations authorized.--England & Sons, Inc., Ext.--Milton, PA, 128 M.C.C. 142 (149).

Radial, nonradial routes: While carrier claims it may provide service between certain points by operating wholly within ambit of first territorial paragraph of its grandfather certificate, these points are within radial point territory of such paragraph, so that this service would constitute unlawful crosshauling.--England & Sons, Inc., Ext.--Milton, PA, 128 M.C.C. 142 (149).

§10928. TEMPORARY AUTHORITY FOR MOTOR AND WATER CARRIERS

10. Effect in applications for permanent authority.--In §5 proceedings, evidence of operations under temporary authority is admissible to determine whether transaction and unified service by vendee will be in public interest, and in §207 proceedings as indication of applicant's ability to render proposed service, involved traffic volume, and potential effect of grant on existing carriers; thus, in applications to convert vendor's certificate of registration into certificate of public convenience and necessity and to purchase vendor's authority, showing that vendee, operating under temporary authority, meets supporting shippers' need for same day or overnight service on 96 percent of shipments supports grant of applications.--South Bend Frt. Line, Inc.--Pur.--Delia Cartage, 127 M.C.C. 169 (183-4).*

Revised temporary authority rules under §10928, as amended by §23 of Motor Carrier Act of 1980 (Ex Parte No. MC-67 (Sub-No. 9)), see 45 FR 45525.

Motor Carrier Dual Operations

2. Construction and interpretation.--Legislative history and administrative interpretation of §210, now §10930, summarized.--American Trucking Assn., Inc. v. United States, 602 F.2d 444 (446-9)*.

Congressional concern in §210 was that motor carriers operating under dual authority might engage in various abuses, notably rate discrimination, and Congress invested Commission with broad discretion in discharge of its delegated responsibilities of ensuring that such abuses did not arise; thus, Congress did not intend to constrain agency by prescribing rigid procedural rules.--Id., pp. 449-51.

Deletion of dual operations rule (49 CFR 1004.3), under §10930(a), as amended by Motor Carrier Act of 1980, see 45 FR 45528.

4. Discrimination; criteria to assess.--Commission rule (49 CFR 1004.3) that holding of both common and contract carrier authority normally is consistent with public interest and national transportation policy and that Commission will not give individual consideration to issue in applications involving dual operations unless there is showing in particular case that rate or service preference is likely to be extended or other discrimination likely to be practiced, is affirmed; Congress did not dictate procedure Commission must use to implement §210, now §10930, and findings that rate discrimination by dual operators is virtually nonexistent and that §218, now §10704, provides more effective method to monitor rate practices and abuses, provide rational basis for rule.--American Trucking Assn., Inc. v. United States, 602 F.2d 444 (450-2)*.

While protestant will have burden of producing some quantum of evidence as to potential for abuse by dual operator, burden of proof will continue to remain with applicant to demonstrate that proposed dual operations will be consistent with public interest.--Id., p. 452.

When applicant's dual operations have been previously approved, and grant of relocation of interchange point does not constitute essentially new operation and will not give rise to any basically new dual operations, no objectionable dual operations under §210 [now §10930] will be created.--England & Sons, Inc., Ext.--Milton, PA, 128 M.C.C. 142 (153-4).

§10932. MOTOR CARRIER SAVINGS PROVISIONS

5. Certificate of registration requirement.--When interstate carrier applies to purchase certificate of registration carrier, and state agency approves transfer of underlying intrastate authority prior to action by Commission, transfer of intrastate authority does not terminate certificate of registration under prohibition of §206(a)(7) [now §10932]; nonseverability provision of §206(a)(7) is not intended to work hardship upon carriers who have in good faith taken all necessary steps to effect valid, contemporaneous transfer of both interstate and intrastate rights, when separation occurs as result of state's prior disposition of intrastate transfer, since intrastate authority is transferred to same party which seeks Commission approval to purchase corresponding certificate of registration, and no possibility of creating duplicating rights by transaction exists.--South Bend Frt. Line, Inc.--Pur.--Delia Cartage, 127 M.C.C. 169 (178-9)*.

Carriers to Provide and Furnish Transportation

4. Jurisdiction of Commission and of courts.--When plaintiff alleges that defendants TVA and railroad entered into combination to limit number of cars available to plaintiff at its mine, which combination had effect of reducing number of cars that railroad would make available to plaintiff in violation of antitrust laws, but defendants contend that complaint concerns discrimination in car supply within Commission's primary jurisdiction and thus not subject to injunction under §16 of Clayton Act, held: complaint is not within primary jurisdiction of Commission, and plaintiff's request for injunctive relief is properly before court; however, allegation that railroad breached its duty to provide adequate service to plaintiff is within Commission's primary jurisdiction.--Webster County Coal Corp. v. T.V.A. 476 F. Supp. 529 (534-5).

6. Cancellation of service.--Respondent's cancellation of rates and routes on interstate TOFC and COFC traffic at local ramps, found not to contravene §1(4) [now §11101] responsibility to provide transportation upon reasonable request.--Abandonment of TOFC Services by Louisville & N. R. Co., 357 I.C.C. 169 (169-70).

What Embraced in Transportation to be Furnished

26. Pickup and delivery.--Transportation includes delivery, and ordinarily line-haul tariff rates include delivery, unless additional charges therefor are expressly set forth.--Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Continental Grain Co., 473 F. Supp. 1093 (1094, 1096).

31. Cars on own wheels.--When locomotive cranes are not conventional railway equipment, and when moving on their own wheels are more susceptible to derailment than other rail equipment, complainant does not meet its burden of proving that in tariff provision that locomotive crane tendered for shipment on own wheels will be inspected at origin by participating carriers to determine if it is in condition to move at speeds over 35 mph, use of particular 35 mph figure is per se unreasonable practice in violation of §1(6) [now §10702] or is otherwise unlawful.--Birmingham Rail & Locomotive Co., Inc., v. Aberdeen, 358 I.C.C. 606 (607); however, provision found to be ambiguous in violation of §6 [now §10762].--Id., pp. 607-9.

68. Loading and unloading.--Consignees have affirmative obligation to unload cars fully (340 ICC 405); thus, when Commission regulations require use of net weights in voluntary settlement of loss and damage claims on scrap shipments, and railroads fear that they will be liable because certain cars are only partially unloaded at destination, railroads can protect themselves by forcing compliance by refusing to move cars and charging demurrage until cars are fully unloaded.--Assn. of Am. Railroads v. I.C.C., 600 F. 2d 989 (998-9)*.

§11102. CLASSIFICATION OF CARRIERS

7. Classification of carriers; commodity basis.--Petitioner raises the question of whether motor carrier authority to transport foodstuffs embraces authority to transport beer. This question must be answered in the negative. The Commission has formulated a general rule of interpretation that commodity descriptions in operating authorities are to be construed on the basis of industry or trade usages and practices and common understanding in the transportation industry rather than on the basis of academic or literal definitions found in dictionaries. In two cases cited herein, the Commission faced similar factual situations to that pertaining in this proceeding and the Commission concluded in those cases that malt beverages have not been classified in the transportation industry as food or food products but instead have been considered as separate and distinct commodities. Petitioner's contention that the nutritional value test be applied to beer thus has already been raised and rejected. Therefore, the Commission concludes that authority to transport "foodstuffs" does not embrace authority to transport the commodity beer.--Ajax Transf. Co. Petition for Declaratory Order, 128 M.C.C. 235 (237-39).

Beer: The authority to transport "foodstuffs" does not embrace authority to transport the commodity beer.--Ajax Transf. Co.--Petition for Declaratory Order, 128 M.C.C. 235 (239).

Foodstuffs: The authority to transport "foodstuffs" does not embrace authority to transport the commodity beer.--Ajax Transf. Co.--Petition for Declaratory Order, 128 M.C.C. 235 (239).

Scrap: While slabs, edgings, and cuttings are arguably scrap in sense that they are unprocessed trimmings no longer suitable for use as lumber, wood chips, which are processed by specially designed chipping machine from such unprocessed trimmings, are not discarded scrap but products manufactured to conform to specific requirements of paper or other industries; thus, wood chips cannot be transported under certificate authorizing carriage of "junk, salvage, scrap, and waste materials".--P.A.K. Transport, Inc., Invest. & Revoc, 128 M.C.C. 363 (367-9)*.

§11105. PROTECTIVE SERVICES

15. Protective service contracts.--Railroads can be held liable for previous noncompliance with 1962 order (318 ICC 111) requiring them to enter into and submit for approval contracts with carline companies for provision of mechanical protective service.--Contracts for Protective Services, 358 I.C.C. 638 (643)*.

Railroads' contention, that further administrative enforcement proceedings were condition precedent to existence of substantive rights under 1962 order, is rejected; carriers had affirmative duty to submit protective service contracts to Commission which complied with regulations promulgated in 1962 order, and when they failed to do so, carline company exercised its right under §9 [now §11705] to sue for damages in district court, and was not required first to request Commission to issue order for failure to file contracts.--Id., pp. 643-4.

History of provision of protective service under §1(14)(b) [now §11105], outlined.--Id., pp. 639-40, 647.

While §15(6) [now §10705] bars retroactive adjustment of divisions, §15(6) does not apply to protective service contracts under §1(14)(b), since such contracts only indirectly affect divisions; action for adjustment of divisions is limited by total revenue available from particular movement of traffic, but protective service system is different, broad principle governing such contracts being that carline companies should bill each individual railroad for services rendered to it on basis of cost plus reasonable profit.--Id., pp. 645-8.

On balance, equities favor carline companies over railroads in view of fact that railroads' past noncompliance with Commission's protective service contract order was largely of their own making.--Id. p. 648-52.

Because requirement that all carriers having any arrangement with carlines must file and receive Commission approval of contracts arises from §1(14)(b) and not from order at issue, and order apprised all carriers that contracts were required, carriers not party to proceedings in which order was promulgated are still bound by decisions in those proceedings.--Id., p. 653.

Railroads held liable from effective date of 1962 order requiring filing of contracts.--Id., p. 654.

Regulations (49 CFR 1032(c)) limit "reasonable profit" for carlines to six percent, but it is not made mandatory; thus, contracts between railroads and carline providing that carline shall calculate interest on railroad's annual proportional share of operating deficit at rate of eight percent on one-half of deficit, is reasonable and not in conflict with Commission's regulations.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 867 (870)*.

All railroad parties, that have not submitted contracts with carline, must enter into form of contract set forth herein.--Id., p. 870.

10. Leasing regulations, practices.--If carrier leases equipment from another in order to perform its authorized operations, lessee must actually control, direct, and conduct operations performed under its operating authority; thus, when written terms of lease arrangement are not objectionable, but lessor receives call from shipper in its own name and sends vehicle, placarded with own name, to pickup and deliver lading, garages and maintains equipment, supplies drivers, and bills, collects, and traces shipments, lessor actually controls operation in violation of Commission requirement.--England & Sons, Inc., Ext.--Milton, PA, 128 M.C.C. 142 (153).

Lease and interchange regulations contain no specific prohibition against percentage-of-revenue method of compensation, but merely require that compensation paid by lessee for use of equipment be specific; however, division of revenues is condemned as inimical to sound regulation because it tends to encourage carriers with extensive operating rights, who are unable or unwilling to provide service, unlawfully to lease rights to others under guise of equipment leases.--Id., p. 153.

SUBCHAPTER II--CAR SERVICE

Ownership of Cars Supplied

35. In general.--There is no merit to protestant's contention that respondents' failure to propose rates applicable to carrier-supplied cars violates §§1(11) [now §11121] and 3(1) [now §10741] when cost of cars has not been considered in respondents' cost evidence, and protestant has not been coerced into buying specialized equipment.--Incentive Rate on Coal--Smithers Lake, TX, 358 I.C.C. 537 (562)*.

Car Service Rules, Regulations, and Practices

78. In general.--While shipper alleges that Commission has no jurisdiction to establish rules and regulations dealing with collection of charges arising after delivery to shipper because §3(2) [now §10743], in shipper's view, is inapplicable to charges such as demurrage which accrue subsequent to delivery of freight, §§1(6) [now §10750] and 1(11) [now §11121] provide adequate jurisdictional basis to consider carrier's requirement of security deposits for future payment of demurrage.--Illinois Central Gulf R. Co.--Security Deposits, 358 I.C.C. 312 (315).

Car Service Rule 7 (49 CFR 1033.7) modified to apply on "error delivery cars" as well as on "no bill" cars, in order to encourage more efficient operating practices in interchanging cars.--Investigation of Adequacy of Freight Car Ownership, 357 I.C.C. 762 (764)*.

SUBCHAPTER III---REPORTS AND RECORDS

§11144. RECORDS: FORM: INSPECTION: PRESERVATION

5. Records subject to inspection.--Commission's broad authority to inquire into management of business of persons controlling, controlled by, and sharing control with carriers in same manner as carriers is limited solely by requirement that inquiry be related to management of business of carrier (§§12(1) and 204(a)(7) [now both §10321]) and that documents inspected be such as Commission deems relevant to such person's relation to or transactions with carrier (§§20(5) and 220(d) [now both §11144]).--Corporate Disclosure Regulations, 354 I.CC. 27 (34-8)*.

§11145. REPORTS BY CARRIERS, LESSORS, AND ASSOCIATIONS

4. Corporate disclosure.--Regulations adopted to require carriers to report annually information on corporate structure, affiliations of officers and directors, and debtholdings in order to provide Commission with information about control and ownership of regulated carriers.--Corporate Disclosure Regulations, 354 I.C.C. 27 (62); regulations clarified.--Id., 356 I.C.C. 103 (105-8).

6. Parties subject to section.--In answer to objection that proposed reporting regulations could be interpreted as calling for reports from noncarrier parents and subsidiaries, held: in conformity with §20(1) [now §11145], only entity required to file report is respondent carrier and companies considered carriers pursuant to order entered under §5(4) [now §11348].--Corporate Disclosure Regulations, 354 I.C.C. 27 (34-5)*.

Fact that respondent carriers will have to contact noncarrier parents and subsidiaries for required information does not violate §20(1), so long as information requested is reasonable.--Id., p. 35.

CHAPTER 113--FINANCE

SUBCHAPTER II--OWNERSHIP

§11323. LIMITATION ON OWNERSHIP OF OTHER CARRIERS BY FREIGHT FORWARDER

ERRATUM

The last lines of the annotation appearing at §11323, n. 5, in Vol. III, No. 6, p. 1295 of the Advance Bulletin (August 1980) were inadvertently dropped. They are as follows:

. . . subsidiary to motor carrier and subsequently acquire control of motor carrier and thereby reacquire control of forwarder.--R. J. Reynolds Industries, Inc.--Continuance in Control, 127 M.C.C. 586 (588-9).

SUBCHAPTER III-COMBINATIONS

§11341. SCOPE OF AUTHORITY

2. Relief from State laws.--Commission may nullify only State law restraints that are materially related to proposed merger or consolidation within Commission's jurisdiction; it is incorrect to say that Commission is limited by §5(12), formerly §5(11) [now §11343], and may nullify State law constraints only where restraints would stand in way of or absolutely prohibit proposed consolidation.--Missouri Pac. R. Co.--Merger-T&P and C&EI, 354 I.C.C. 763 (764)*.

Court's judgment, which set aside portion of Commission's order approving merger that abrogated agreement entered into under State law, is self-executing.--Id., p. 764.

§11343. CONSOLIDATION, MERGER, AND ACQUISITION OF CONTROL

7. Competition.--

Diversion; traffic studies.--When several shippers complain of protestant's service, and grant of purchase application will provide shippers with alternative carrier and give protestant added incentive to improve service, and diversion of traffic from protestant is outweighed by benefits to applicants and to public in form of better service, application is granted.--South Bend Frt. Line, Inc.--Pur.--Delia Cartage, 127 M.C.C. 169 (185)*.

When traffic studies of short-haul protestants show that most shipments go to or come from points beyond vendee's proposed operation, so that to divert traffic vendee would have to become originating or delivering carrier instead of protestants, diversion protestants will suffer is outweighed by benefits of proposed unification.--Id., p. 185.

45. Control.--

Unauthorized, unlawful: Family relationship does not establish unlawful control; thus, no unlawful control between vendor and vendee is shown, despite fact that husband is director of one carrier and wife of other, vice president of vendee is married to daughter of president of vendor, and president of vendor has occasionally acted as lawyer for vendee.--South Bend Frt. Line, Inc.--Pur.--Delia Cartage, 127 M.C.C. 169 (181)*; fact that vendee and vendor interline traffic does not change result, since vendor also interchanges with other carriers.--Id., p. 181.

Although applicants share same terminal address, proximity of carriers does not indicate unlawful control, since carriers do not share facilities and vendor pays vendee for facilities under lease, and no evidence of interlocking financial relationship is presented.--Id., p. 182.

Fact that present employee of vendee was terminal manager of vendor during time his father was terminal manager of vendee does not establish unlawful control; father-son relationship of terminal managers for carriers with adjoining terminals cannot of itself bar proposed transaction.--Id., p. 182.

Fact that children of siblings of president of vendor own and operate company which leases equipment to both vendor and vendee does not offer good grounds for barring proposed transaction when president of vendor has no interest in leasing company, vendee also leases equipment, under long terms, from other companies and employs own drivers, and no evidence exists of any attempt to exercise unauthorized control.--Id., p. 182.

Assuming arguendo vendee unlawfully controls vendor, shipper support, vendee's operation of vendor under temporary authority, and lack of harm to protestants establish proposed transaction in public interest.--Id., p. 182.

48. Purchase.--

Dormant, discontinued operations: In considering dormancy issue, applicable test is that of "substantiality," i.e., whether vendor, while operating under certificate of registration, provided substantial service on substantial number of commodities to representative points within considered territory; test is flexible, and due consideration must be given to whether vendor utilized its financial and material capabilities as far as practicable, principle being that if vendor conducted operations in manner consistent with level of its resources then its right are not dormant; thus, irregular-route carrier must show that it has rendered substantial service to representative number of points throughout its authorized territory in order to support conclusion that its operations have been substantial and continuous.--South Bend Frt. Line, Inc.--Pur.--Della Cartage, 127 M.C.C. 169 (179-80)*.

Therefore, when evidence shows that vendor moved 1,400 shipments during 11-month period prior to filing of §5 application, involving continuous operations within authorized territory and carriage of wide variety of authorized commodities, operating rights are not dormant; and considering fact that vendor's president and sole stockholder operated under handicaps of advanced years and ill health and limited facilities, equipment, and resources, financial and material capacilities of vendor were used as far as practicable.--Id., p. 180.

Finding of dormancy would not preclude transfer and unification where transfer is in public interest and conforms to national transportation policy.--Id., p. 180.

Single-line-service: When supporting shippers need single-line, same-day or overnight service on LTL shipments, with expedited pickups and deliveries; maintenance of terminal in area of service may justify grant even though existing carriers from outside area already hold appropriate authority; vendee has met shippers' needs during operation under temporary authority; and harm to protestants is outweighed by benefit to public, purchase application is granted.--South Bend Frt. Line, Inc.--Pur.--Delia Cartage, 127 M.C.C. 169 (182-5)*.

52. Mergers.--

Conditions: Commission's interpretation of merger conditions and agency precedents is entitled to deference on judicial review, since fashioning of merger condition is entrusted by statute to agency's expert judgment; thus, when merger condition required railroad to "maintain and keep open all routes and channels of trade via existing junctions and gateways" and at time of merger class rates applied over all routes, proposed reduced commodity rate, restricted to routes involving railroad, violated merger condition despite fact that this was new point-to-point movement of traffic which had not existed at time of merger, since it had effect of closing route over which carriers had held out single-joint rate.--Seaboard Coast Line R. Co. v. United States, 599 F.2d 650 (652-4)*.

While mere combination of rates over routes which have not moved any traffic is not sufficient to establish route which must be kept open, joint through rate is conclusive evidence of through route which is commercially open; moreover, 353 ICC 796, which holds that merged railroad may take defensive restrictive action in response to unilateral restrictive action already taken by complaining railroad, does not apply where merged railroad initiated restrictive action not as defensive response.--Id., p. 654.

§11347. EMPLOYEE PROTECTIVE ARRANGEMENTS IN TRANSACTIONS INVOLVING RAIL CARRIERS

1. In general.--When Commission order approving merger imposed New Orleans conditions, and after merger railroad and authorized union representatives entered into agreements in lieu of Commission order, as permitted by last sentence of §5(2)(f) [now §§11347], arbitration provisions contained in that agreement were made mandatory and plaintiff employees could not sue railroad directly for benefits allegedly due them under Commission order.--Sorensen v. Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co., 476 F. Supp. 1125 (1128-30).

Agreement entered into pursuant to last sentence of §5(2)(f) may not substantially abrogate rights contained in Commission order.--Id., p. 1131.

Even if plaintiffs' rights were derived from Commission order, New Orleans conditions (282 ICC 271) combined conditions of Washington Agreement of 1936 and Oklahoma conditions (258 ICC 177), thus providing for arbitration of merger disputes; since provisions made by Commission are mandatory not permissive, especially where either party elects to utilize arbitration procedure, and since parties provided for arbitration in their agreement in accordance with Commission order, arbitration award was final and binding on parties.--Id., p. 1133.

In proceedings under former §5(2), now §11343 et seq., Commission has been under duty, as of enactment of 4R Act (P.L. 94-210) on Feb. 5, 1976, to apply labor conditions developed pursuant to §405 of Rail Passenger Service Act, and Commission has decided that New York Dock labor protective conditions (360 ICC 60) are to be imposed in rail transactions for which approval is sought under §11343 et seq., with exception of trackage rights and leases; thus, when Commission approved merger after enactment of 4R Act it was statutorily required to impose conditions set forth in New York Dock as being minimum conditions required by §5(2)(f), now §11347, and merger proceeding is reopened to impose these conditions.--Missouri Pac. R. Co.--Merger--T&P and C&EI, 360 I.C.C. 565 (568-70)*.

§11349. TEMPORARY OPERATING APPROVAL FOR TRANSACTIONS INVOLVING MOTOR AND WATER CARRIERS

1. In general.--In §5 proceedings, evidence of operations under temporary authority is admissible to determine whether transaction and unified service by vendee will be in public interest, and in §207 proceedings as indication of applicant's ability to render proposed service, involved traffic volume, and potential effect of grant on existing carriers; thus, in applications to convert vendor's certificate of registration into certificate of public convenience and necessity and to purchase vendor's authority, showing that vendee, operating under temporary authority, meets supporting shippers' need for same-day or overnight service on 96 percent of shipments supports grant of applications.--South Bend Frt. Line, Inc.--Pur.--Delia Cartage, 127 M.C.C. 169 (183-4)*.

CHAPTER 117---ENFORCEMENT: INVESTIGATIONS, RIGHTS AND REMEDIES

Parties

37. Defendants, in general.--Complainant has ability to determine scope of investigation from outset by naming those carriers believed to have violated Act.--Maxey-Bosshardt Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Southern Ry. Co., 358 I.C.C 522 (525)*.

46. Scope of issues.--When complaint challenges lawfulness of tariff note, but has not been amended to challenge exception to note, decision only determines lawfulness of language in exception to extent it is same as that in underlying note; however, while exception is not directly in issue, it has been brought up by both parties and deserves Commission's comments, since, by pointing out problems peculiar to exception, undue protraction of litigation can be avoided if note and exception are republished.--Birmingham Rail & Locomotive Co., Inc. v. Aberdeen, 358 I.C.C. 606 (609).

Liability of Carriers

110. Stipulations.--Where issue is whether respondent's operation, allegedly based on superhighway rules, is properly based on regular route authority, at hearing Bureau of Investigations and Enforcement stipulated that route existed, but in post hearing brief Bureau renounced stipulation, held: Commission is not bound by stipulation, since Bureau by stipulation cannot confer upon respondent authority which it does not hold; moreover, respondent has had opportunity, after renunciation, to argue its case, and renunciation has not put respondent in worse condition than it would have been in if Bureau had never stipulated.--Crouse Cartage Co. Invest. & Revoc. of Certif., 128 M.C.C. 157 (164).

The Hearing

126. Burden of proof.--In complaint proceeding, full burden of proof--both of persuasion and of coming forward with evidence--remains on complainant despite finding that rate equals or exceeds 160 percent of variable cost under market dominance test; complainant may not fall back upon indicium of market dominance to make its case for unreasonableness.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Conrail, 362 I.C.C. 170 (185)*.

Evidence

136. Admissibility, in general.--When on brief complainant introduced figure as average contribution for certain movements, figure was purportedly based on letter from Commission's Bureau of Economics, but letter was not introduced into evidence even as late-filed exhibit, and railroads were given no opportunity to examine it at hearing or object to its introduction after hearing, reliance on such evidence would constitute abuse of due process.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Conrail, 362 I.C.C. 170 (172)*.

140. Official notice.--Law Judge took official notice of 1972 Burden Study.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Conrail, 362 I.C.C. 170 (172)*.

Official notice taken of study conducted for Commission by private consultant on subject of noncompensatory services.--Establishment of Adequate Railroad Revenue Levels, 358 I.C.C. 844 (865); but on further consideration, notice is withdrawn, because notice of study is not necessary for any conclusions reached in this proceeding, conclusions of study are matter of legitimate debate, and no future Commission action affecting rights of any party shall be based on it without full opportunity afforded for comment.--Id., 359 I.C.C. 270 (277-9).

159. Estoppel.--Doctrine of estoppel by election requires that party against whom estoppel is sought must have gained some advantage for himself or produced some disadvantage to another, and person seeking to invoke estoppel must have been induced to change position by representation or concealment of material facts; thus, while Commission does not condone petitioner's failure to disclose prosecution of applications for operating authority and for purchase of authority to perform operation in question, while at same time seeking declaratory order to effect that operation is not subject to regulation, when competing carrier has not been induced to change position in any proceeding as result of petitioner's actions, and petitioner has not actually made choice between inconsistent courses of conduct, doctrine of estoppel by election cannot be appropriately invoked.--Glengarry Transport Ltd.--Declaratory Order, 128 M.C.C. 342 (344).

161. Informal opinions of Commission.--Views expressed in letter opinions of Commission are informal and without prejudice to different conclusion should matter come before Commission on formal docket.--Petition for Declaratory Order--Superphosphate, 358 I.C.C. 39 (43).

§11705. RIGHTS AND REMEDIES OF PERSONS INJURED BY CERTAIN CARRIERS

6. Election of forum.--Section 16(7) [now §11914] requires carriers to observe and comply with orders so long as they remain in effect, §8 [now §11705] provides that if carrier does anything act prohibits carrier shall be liable to person injured for damages sustained as result of violation, and §9 [now §11705] allows injured party to bring action for damages either in Commission or in district court; thus, when railroads failed to comply with order requiring them to file contracts with carline companies for provision of protective services, carline company harmed by this noncompliance had right to sue for damages in district court under §9 and was not required to come to Commission first to obtain order for failure to file contracts.--Contracts for Protective Services, 358 I.C.C. 638 (644)*.

Unreasonable Rates and Charges

120. In general.--Issue of reparations is addressed to Commission's discretion, and it may deny reparation even though rate is unreasonable where there is good and sufficient reason for doing so; thus, when in prior report Commission was unable to prescribe lawful rate and to indicate norm upon which reductions might be premised, while present rate prescription is result of balancing of many competing factors and carriers could not have anticipated result of this judgment, it is inappropriate to award reparations on basis of standard reached only after lengthy consideration of further evidence.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 222 (241)*.

Discrimination

180. Burden of proof and measure of damages.--Where competitive injury is alleged, measure of recovery is not necessarily difference in charges paid by complaining shipper; complainant must demonstrate amount its business has been damaged because its competitors have paid less for transportation service.--Maxey-Bosshardt Lbr. Co., Inc. v. Southern Ry. Co., 358 I.C.C. 522 (528)*.

Orders Other than for payment of Money

210. Injunctive relief.--When railroads failed to comply with order requiring them to file contracts with carline companies for provision of protective services, carline company harmed by this noncompliance had right to sue for damages under §9 [now §11705], and order created substantive right enforceable by injunction under §16(12) [now §11705].--Contracts for Protective Services, 358 I.C.C. 638 (645)*.

§11706. LIMITATION ON ACTIONS BY AND AGAINST COMMON CARRIERS

Actions by Carriers to Recover Charges

76. In general.--In diversity action for settlement of interline accounts solely between carriers relating to past per diem charges subject to valid agreement, State statute of limitations, rather than 3-year limitations period in §16(3)(a) [now §11706], applies.--Seaboard Coast Line R. Co. v. Long Island R. Co., 447 F. Supp. 108 (112-3).

Although defendant did not plead federal statute of limitations in its answer, it did not waive it because provision is jurisdictional if it is applied.--Id., p. 111.

Uncollected charges, even though prescribed under §15 [now §10704], cannot be sued for after 3-year limitation period has expired.--Id., p. 114.

Although Commission has overturned long-standing practice and has held that §16 applies to suits between carriers as well as to suits between carrier and shipper, and court is not inclined to disagree with Commission as to damage claims brought before Commission, in action involving claims not before Commission and arising out of matters which had not been regulated by Commission, to apply retroactively Commission's new interpretation of §16(3) would be unreasonable, would serve no regulatory purpose, and would give plaintiff windfall; thus, old rule that §16(3) does not apply to actions or complaints between carriers is used, and Commission's new interpretation is limited to prospective operation.--Id., p. 116.

Liability of Carriers

30. In general; burden of proof.--Since under §20(11) [now §11707] carrier is liable for all damage sustained by goods in transit unless it can prove loss was due entirely to excepted cause such as act of shipper, when shipper shows that goods were damaged, carrier has burden of proving both that damage was attributable to excepted cause and that carrier was free from negligence; thus, when carrier was on notice that earlier shipments had been badly packed, and damage was caused by badly packed shipment falling off car and derailing train, case is remanded for determination whether railroad was negligent in accepting shipment.--Masonite Corp. v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 601 F.2d 724 (728-9).

Accord and satisfaction is affirmative defense, and railroad does not bear burden of showing that defense when parties agreed to settle only their dispute over salvage value of shipment.--Id., pp. 727-8.

40. Measure of damages.--Commission regulation, applying to voluntary settlement of loss and damage claims on shipments of scrap iron and steel, and providing that where weight is used as measure of loss in rail transit and actual tare and gross weights are determined at origin and destination, settlement of claims shall be based on comparison of net weights at origin and destination, is procedural rather than substantive, in effect prescribing evidentiary rule, and thus was justifiably promulgated by Commission in discharge of its statutory obligation to enforce railroads' obligation to compensate shippers for full actual loss under §§12(1) [now §10321] and 20(11) [now §11707].--Assn. of Am. Railroads v. I.C.C., 600 F.2d 989 (993-7)*.

Actions

117. Jurisdiction.--Commission regulation for use of net weights in voluntary settlement of loss and damage claims on scrap shipments does not apply when such claims are litigated in court, where railroad can offer all relevant evidence; rather, it is procedural not substantive rule and justifiably promulgated by Commission in discharge of its statutory obligation to enforce railroads' obligation to compensate shippers for full actual loss under §§12(1) [now §10321] and 20(11) [now §11707].--Assn. of Am. Railroads v. I.C.C., 600 F.2d 989 (995-7)*.

CHAPTER 119---CIVIL AND CRIMINAL PENALTIES

§11910. UNLAWFUL DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION

5. Disclosure of information without shipper's consent.--When complainants allege unauthorized and unlawful common control of two carriers, and refer to certain specific shipments carried by one carrier in equipment of other, such evidence is not considered, since it was obtained in violation of §222(e), which makes it illegal for carrier, or agents thereof, to disclose particular information about shipment without consent of shipper or consignee.--South Bend Frt. Line, Inc.--Pur. Delia Cartage, 127 M.C.C. 169 (181)*.

§11914. GENERAL CRIMINAL PENALTY WHEN SPECIFIC PENALTY NOT PROVIDED

10. Violation of orders.--Section 16(7) [now §11914] requires common carriers to observe and comply with orders so long as they remain in effect; thus, railroads can be held liable for previous noncompliance with Commission order requiring them to file contracts with carline companies for provision of protective service, and carline harmed by this noncompliance had right to sue for damages in district court under §9 [now §11705].--Contracts for Protective Service, 358 I.C.C. 638 (644)*.

SUPPLEMENTAL ACTS

5 USC

Burden of proof.--The statutory standard of proof to be applied in proceedings of regulatory agencies such as the Interstate Commerce Commission is contained in §7(d) of the Administrative Procedure Act which provides that an order must be supported by "reliable, probative and substantial evidence".--Colonial Refrig. Transp., Inc., Ext.--Bradley, 128 M.C.C. 43 (47)*.

Declaratory orders.--Doctrine of estoppel by election requires that party against whom estoppel is sought must have gained some advantage for himself or produced some disadvantage to another, and person seeking to invoke estoppel must have been induced to change position by misrepresentation or concealment of material facts; thus, while Commission does not condone petitioner's failure to disclose prosecution of applications for operating authority and for purchase of authority to perform operation in question, while at same time seeking declaratory order to effect that operation is not subject to regulation, when competing carrier has not been induced to change position in any proceeding as result of petitioner's actions, and petitioner has not actually made choice between inconsistent courses of conduct, doctrine of estoppel by election cannot appropriately be invoked.--Glengarry Transport Ltd.--Declaratory Order, 128 M.C.C. 342 (344).

Hearing; whether required.--APA does not mandate that administrative rulemaking be accomplished by oral hearing, but instead sets out minimum standards for participation of parties by requiring that they be afforded opportunity to make written presentations, and absent specific statutory requirement to contrary, decision to hold oral hearings in rulemaking proceeding is matter solely within discretion of agency; thus, in proceeding to expand bus express terminal areas, decision to hold oral hearings is solely within discretion of Commission, and, absent showing that such discretion has been abused, there is no basis for requiring oral hearing.--Terminal Areas for Express Shipments by Bus, 128 M.C.C. 204 (221).

Judicial review.--While reviewing court is not entitled to substitute its judgment for Commission's or to correct Commission decisions with which it disagrees, it need not remain silent when Commission virtually ignores serious charges relevant to central issue in proceeding; thus, when serious questions are raised concerning financial fitness and ethical integrity of applicant, and Commission failed adequately to examine these questions, case is remanded for reconsideration.--Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. United States, 600 F.2d 999 (1001-2)*.

BANKRUPTCY ACT

§205. REORGANIZATION OF RAILROADS ENGAGED IN INTERSTATE COMMERCE

30. Plan of reorganization.--Proposed, amended plan of reorganization approved, when plan is feasible in that adequate resources are available to make cash payments required; plan does not discriminate unfairly in favor of any class of claims; all fees incidental to reorganization are subject to court approval; provision is made for payment of all costs of administration and other allowances; and plan complies with all other requirements of law.--In re Central R. Co. of N. J., 473 F. Supp. 225 (233-4)*.

40. Carriers' claims.--District court's refusal to order immediate payment of pre-reorganization per diem charges to railroads prior to payment of all other unsecured pre-reorganization claims, affirmed; charges prior to Commission's 1969 general order requiring railroads to pay specific per diem charges in future were not fixed by Commission, and those subsequent to that order, even if required by Commission, could not be required here in view of fact that nothing in either Bankruptcy or Interstate Commerce Acts gives Commission power to override reorganization court's discretion in setting time for payment of claims against estate.--In re Boston & Maine Corp., 600 F.2d 307 (308-10)*.

Trustee of debtor cannot be held to have violated Commission rules on per diem payments for pre-reorganization car use because trustee and debtor are not same person; upon filing of petition in bankruptcy, assets of debtor rest in hands of trustee, and, in order to facilitate rehabilitation, claims of pre-filing creditors take back seat while post-filing creditors obtain priority as expenses of administration, post-filing claims being those whose supporting consideration was received by trustees not debtor; thus, as to settlements due before filing, trustee could not have violated Commission orders because trustee did not exist, and as to car use provided before filing but accounted for after filing, claims for per diem were claims against debtor not trustee.--Id, p. 312.

Under Bankruptcy Reform Act, 11 USC §1166, payments for both pre- and post-bankruptcy charges must be approved by reorganization court.--Id., p. 313.

Claims of car line lessor of cars are pre-reorganization unsecured claims.--Id., p. 313.

47. Former employees.--When prior reorganization court order authorized trustees to continue payments to former employees under unfunded programs, as current operating expenses, subject to limitation that no payments to employee under such program could be made if employee would receive from debtor more than $50,000 per year in aggregate, former employee' claims cannot be treated as claims of administration entitled to payment in cash, except to extent contemplated by order; therefore, these claims are so classified in reorganization plan.--In re Penn Central Transp. Co., 477 F. Supp. 166 (167-9).

65. Contracts; leases.--When shippers petition to have debtor pay as cost of administration certain refunds allegedly due under sidetrack agreements, and subsequently debtor conveyed all its operating properties to Conrail, held: debtor's obligations to make refunds under agreements terminated as of date of conveyance to Conrail in all cases in which agreements specified per car freight revenues as sole source of repayment or otherwise clearly manifested intention of parties to that effect, since debtor is no longer engaged in railroad operations; but where per car formula merely reflects rate of reimbursement, without limitation as to source of funds, debtor's obligations did not terminate as of that date, but amount of remaining obligation must be resolved in further proceedings.--In re Penn Central Transp. Co., 477 F. Supp. 112 (117-8).

112. Compensation of trustees.--Compensation for trustee of debtor, determined.--In re Central R. Co. of N. J., 477 F. Supp. 1228 (1234).

Compensation of trustees of debtor and secondary debtors determined under §77(c)(2).--In re Penn Central Transp. Co., 476 F. Supp. 131 (133-4).

In fixing compensation, balance must be struck between awarding fair compensation for competent trustees able to carry out public policies of Bankruptcy Act and preservation of debtor's assets and creditors' interests.--Id., p. 133.

Although prior to enactment of Railroad Revitalization Act of 1976 Commission fixed maximum compensation of trustees and their counsel and reorganization court made allowance within amount fixed by Commission, 45 USC §791(b)(4) eliminated Commission's participation in §77 proceedings of railroads subject to Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973.--Id., p. 131.

115. Counsel; compensation.--Compensation for attorney for trustee of debtor, determined.--In re Central R. Co. of N. J., 477 F. Supp. 1228 (1234).

116. Compensation of mortgage trustees; special counsel.--Petitioners bear burden of proving that services for which compensation is sought under §77(c)(12) measureably benefited estate of debtor, and services must have advanced course of reorganization and not impeded it; moreover, general rule is that there must not be duplication or overlapping of services rendered by trustee and his counsel and by other petitioners.--In re Central R. Co. of N. J., 477 F. Supp. 1228 (1230).

Compensation of indenture trustee and of attorneys for indenture trustee, determined.--Id., pp. 1231-3; compensation of attorney for bondholders protective committee, determined.--Id., pp. 1233-4.

ANTITRUST ACTS
15 USC

SHERMAN ACT

§1. TRUSTS, ETC., IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE ILLEGAL: EXCEPTION; PENALTY

26. Forrbidden contracts and combinations; between competing carriers.--Conviction, on plea of nolo contendere, of armored car service for violation §1 of Sherman Act by conspiring to allocate customers and submit collusive bids for armored car and related services, affirmed.--United States v. Wells Fargo Armored Service Corp., 587 F.2d 782 (782-3); settlement of subsequent treble damages class action, approved.--In re Armored Car Antitrust Litigation, 472 F. Supp.1357 (1390-1).

CLAYTON ACT

§26. INJUNCTIVE RELIEF FOR PRIVATE PARTIES; EXCEPTION

5. Proviso as to injunctive relief against carrier.--When plaintiff alleges that defendants TVA and railroad entered into combination to limit number of cars available to plaintiff at its mine, which combination had effect of reducing number of cars that railroad would make available to plaintiff in violation of antitrust laws, but defendants contend that complaint concerns discrimination in matter of car supply within Commission's primary jusrisdiction and thus notsubject to injunction under §16 of Clayton Act, held: complaint is not within primary jurisdiction of Commission, and plaintiff's request for injunctive relief is properly before court; however, allegation that railroad breached its duty to provide adequate service to plaintiff is within Commission's primary jurisdiction.--Webster County Coal Corp. v. T.V.A., 476 F. Supp. 529 (534-5).

NATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY

§4332. COOPERATION OF AGENCIES; REPORTS; AVAILABILITY OF INFORMATION; RECOMMENDATIONS; INTERNATIONAL AND NATIONAL COORDINATION OF EFFORTS

5. Environmental impact statement, when required.--When Commission's regulations (49 CFR 1108.9(a)(16) and 1108.12) require submission of supplemental environmental evaluation (SEE), but by letter petitioners stated that each matter thatwould have been discussed in separately prepared SEE were addressed in its representations, this letter was not sufficiento comply with regulation requiring SEE; but since there is nevidence that rule change sought will have significant environmental impact, and request that petitioner provide SEE would cause inordinate delay, Commission on its own motion (4CFR 1048.50(b)) waives requirement that SEE be filed.--Terminal Areas for Express Shipments by Bus, 128 M.C.C. 204 (220-1)

REGIONAL RAIL REORGANIZATION ACT

§702. DEFINITIONS

12. Rail properties.--Office building owned by nonrail subsidiary of debtor railroad and more than 50 percent of which was used for rail purposes, was "rail property" under §102(12) and thus properly conveyed to Conrail.--Penn Cent. Corp. v. United States Ry. Assn., 475 F.Supp. 165 (168-9).

SHIPPING ACT--MERCHANT MARINE ACT

§832. POWERS OF INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION NOT AFFECTED

1. In general.--In view of fact that 46 USC §832 explicitly provides that Intercoastal Shipping Act and Shipping Act of 1916 are not to be construed to affect power or jurisdiction of Interstate Commerce Commission, proper inquiry is, first, whether Interstate Commerce Act confers jurisdiction on ICC over marine as well as land segment of joint through trade between Puerto Rico and inland points of United States, and, second, only if such jurisdiction is not conferred on ICC, on whether Intercoastal Shipping Act confers such jurisdiction on Federal Maritime Commission; thus, when Interstate Commerce Act (§10501, formerly §1(1)) confers such jurisdiction on ICC, it cannot be argued that Intercoastal Shipping Act or Shipping Act of 1916 empowers FMC to regulate trade at issue.--Trailer Marine Transport Corp. v. F.M.C., 602 F.2d 379 (393-9)*.

RULES OF PRACTICE

Rule 13. Typographical specifications generally.--When protestant moves to strike applicant's exceptions on basis that they violate rule 15 [now 13], being in excess of 50 pages and not printed, but applicant's exceptions are in substantial compliance with rules, motion is denied.--England & Sons, Inc., Ext.--Milton, PA, 128 M.C.C. 142 (143).

Rule 21. Replies and motions; (a) Time for filing.--When motion constitutes reply, opposing party's response is reply to reply and therefore rejected under rule 21(a).--Missouri Pac. R. Co.--Merger--T&P and C&EI, 360 I.C.C. 565 (565)*.

Rule 84. Evidence; filing subsequent to hearing; copies.--When respondent's post-hearing brief referred to attached "trade literature excerpts", but there were no attachments to brief, and respondent had failed to offer this material in evidence at hearing or arranged for its inclusion in stipulations, so as to give opportunities to respond, respondent's motion, filed after initial decision, seeking leave to file material, is denied under rule 84.--P.A.K. Transport, Inc.--Invest. and Revoc., 128 M.C.C. 363 (365-6)*.

Rule 94. Compliance with Commission's orders.--When respondent is ordered to cease and desist from operations not allowed under superhighway rules, it is specifically reminded of its obligation under rule 94 (which carries forward, with certain changes, old rule 99) to describe manner of its compliance with order.--Crouse Cartage Co. Invest. & Revoc. of Certif., 128 M.C.C. 157 (166).

Rule 98. Administrative appeals--rail proceedings; (e) Discretionary review of final decision.--When rule 98(e)(1) and §10327(g) provide for reconsideration of decision upon showing of materially changed circumstances, and evidence suggests substantial changes not only in operating statistic of movement at issue but also of operating characteristics, it is wise to deal with possibility of substantially changed circumstances while reexamining certain issues pursuant to court's remand.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Conrail, 362 I.C.C. 170 (186)*.

Review provisions, of rule 98(e)(1) refer only to rehearing, reargument, or reconsideration of division decisions pursuant to §10327(g)(2), but in petitioning for review of entire Commission decisions filing must allege material error, new evidence, or substantially changed circumstances pursuant to §10327(g)(1).--Missouri Pac. R. co.--Merger--T&P and C&EI, 360 I.C.C. 565 (566)*.

When defendants assert material error, in order to reach merits of arguments raised, defendant's request to waive 10-page requirement applicable to petitions for administrative review under rule 98(e)(iii) is granted.--Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Penn Central, 359 I.C.C. 849 (851)*.

When report is both final decision and decision in first instance, it would be unreasonable to enforce strict adherence to 10-page limit in rule 98(e); petition for reconsideration and other pleading exceeding 10 pages are accepted.--Establishment of Adequate Railroad Revenue Levels, 359 I.C.C. 270 (270-1)*.

When party was not served with initial decision and only became aware of it upon receipt of administrative appeal of applicants, late filing of party's appeal will not prejudice other parties and is not opposed, and appeal raises important issue, late-filed appeal is allowed.--Southern Ports Foreign Frt. Committee--Agreement, 358 I.C.C. 696 (697-8)*.

Rule 247. Special rules governing notice of filing of applications by motor carriers of property or passengers and brokers under sections 206 (except section 206(a)(6) relating to Certificates of Registration), 209 and 211, by water carriers under sections 302(e), 303, and 309, and by freight forwarders under section 410 of the Interstate Commerce Act, and certain other procedural matters with respect thereto.--With respect to §206 applications filed on or after Jan. 20, 1975, additional certificates of shipper support, filed subsequent to filing of application, must be filed with Commission, with copies served on all parties of record, no later than 30 days prior to commencement of hearing, and failure to meet these requirements has effect of precluding additional shipper witnesses from taking the stand to testify in support of application (see 120 MCC 670); however, in considering application filed before Jan. 20, 1975, law judge exercises his discretion to exclude testimony of two shippers when no adequate explanation was offered with respect to long delay between notification by shipper to carrier of shipper's support and signing of certificate, and filing of certificate with Commission and service of copies on parties, but to allow testimony of one shipper where delay was satisfactorily explained and parties would suffer no hardship from delay.--South Bend Frt. Line, Inc.--Pur.--Delia Cartage, 127 M.C.C. 169 (176-7)*.

Protestant's motion to strike portion of testimony of supporting shippers which exceeds scope, in terms of territory or commodity, of their support set forth in their certificates of support is denied; certificates of support provided protestants with sufficient notice, and to limit shippers' testimony to scope set forth in certificates would limit applicant's ability to present evidence of support in fashion not intended by Schaeffer rule (106 MCC 100), since Schaeffer criteria are met when shippers' certificates are filed and notice given protestants.--Id., p. 177.
